HIGH COURT NOTICE.

General Letter No. 2.

To

THE DISTRICT JUDGE OF

Dated Calcutta, the 9th March 1914.

SIR,

Rule 18, Chapter III, page 93, Volume I, of the General Rules and Circular Orders, Civil, prescribes inter alia that orders fixing dates or adjourned dates for the hearing of cases shall be signed then and there by the parties or their pleaders. It has been brought to the notice of the Judges that the working of this rule is unsatisfactory and attended with practical difficulties in obtaining the signatures of the pleaders on the spot.

2. It has accordingly been decided to discontinue the practice of requiring pleaders or parties to sign orders fixing dates on the order-sheet, and in its place to require every Court to post up in the Court-house at the close of each day a list showing all cases for the hearing or adjourned hearing of which dates have been fixed during the day, and the dates so fixed. The list should be posted in a conspicuous place, and parties and pleaders should be directed to refer to it for information.

3. It will be observed that Rule 18, Chapter III, Court's General Rules and Circular Orders, Civil, Volume I, still holds good as regards orders requiring any specific action to be taken by the parties or their pleaders.

4. The enclosed Circular Order No. 4 of 1914 has been framed accordingly and must in future be observed in all Civil Courts. The form of the list is left to the discretion of District Judges.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

Extract (paragraphs 1 and 2) from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Home Department (Public), under date Calcutta, the 8th December 1899.

RESOLUTION.

THE Secretary of State for India has brought to the notice of the Government of India that it not infrequently happens that natives of India, students or others, who have proceeded to England, desire to obtain passports to enable them to travel to foreign countries in which the possession of a passport is necessary or desirable, and that difficulty often arises from want of evidence to show that the applicant is a British subject, and therefore entitled to a passport. Appeals for assistance are also frequently addressed to His Lordship by destitute Indians who desire to return to their country and by students who, owing to embarrassed circumstances, are unable to complete their course of education.

2. In order to enable the Secretary of State to deal with such cases satisfactorily, the Governor-General in Council has decided that it is necessary to press upon Indian students and others visiting England the desirability of providing themselves, before their departure from India, with an authoritative certificate of identity, in the form appended to this Resolution, signed by the head of the district (in a Presidency town, the Commissioner of Police) in the case of residents of British India and by the Political Officer in that of residents of Native States. For a student the certificate should be signed by the head of his last school or college and countersigned by the District Officer (in a Presidency town, the Commissioner of Police) or Political Officer, as the case may be.

OF IMPORTATION OF PETROLEUM.

Ports of importation.

1. The ports of Calcutta and Chittagong are hereby declared to be the only ports at which petroleum may be imported.

Declaration by master of ship carrying petroleum or by the ship's agent.

*2. The master of every ship carrying petroleum shall deliver to the pilot before entering either of the ports mentioned in rule 1, a written declaration under his signature stating—

(a) what quantity of petroleum the ship is carrying;
(b) whether any and, if so, what part of it is dangerous petroleum;
(c) whether any and, if so, what part of it is certificated petroleum;
(d) whether any and, if so, what part of it is petroleum having a flashing-point above 150° of Fahrenheit's thermometer; and
(e) what quantity of petroleum [specifying whether any and, if so, what part of it belongs to each of the classes (b), (c) and (d)] it is intended to land at either of the ports specified in rule 1 or at any other port in British India:

Provided that if, in anticipation of a ship's arrival, the agent for such ship delivers to the Port Officer a written declaration as aforesaid under his signature, no such declaration shall be necessary by the master of the ship.

Delivery of certificate.

*3. If the master or agent declares that any petroleum is certificated petroleum which it is intended to land at either of the ports specified in rule 1 or at any other port in British India, he shall deliver to the pilot, along with his declaration, the certificate relating to such petroleum.

* Rules 2—14 and 17 of this Part are inoperative in the Port of Chittagong where there is no testing officer at present.

Certificate and declaration to be forwarded to Assistant Harbour Master or Port Officer.

*4. Every certificate and declaration delivered to a pilot under rules 2 and 3 shall be made over by him without delay in the port of Calcutta / Chittagong to the Assistant Harbour Master / Port Officer, Chittagong who shall transfer them without delay to the Superintendent of the Port Commissioners' Petroleum Wharf at Budge-Budge or the Collector of Customs, Chittagong, as the case may be.

Delivery of samples.

*5. (1) When the master of, or the agent for, a ship has made the declaration required by rule 2, the Superintendent of the Petroleum Wharf, Budge-Budge, or the Collector of Customs, Chittagong, as the case may be, shall direct an officer to go on board the vessel and obtain samples of all the petroleum on board which it is intended to land at the port of Calcutta or Chittagong as the case may be. If the importer so desires he shall also take samples of all the petroleum on board which it is intended to land at any other port in British India:

Provided that no samples need be taken in the case of petroleum which is declared to be dangerous.

(2) The master shall deliver to the officer aforesaid, without charge samples of every variety of petroleum comprised in the petroleum of which samples are to be taken under sub-rule (1). Such samples shall, if such officer so require, be taken from the particular receptacles indicated by him and under his personal superintendence, and shall not exceed forty fluid ounces:

Provided that when the petroleum is in cases, samples may be taken as delivery proceeds.

Selection of samples.

*6. The minimum number of samples to be selected of each brand or quality contained in the cargo shall be as follows:—

(a) of certificated petroleum in cases—

one sample for every fifteen thousand cases or fraction of fifteen thousand cases;

(b) of certificated petroleum in casks or drums declared to be of uniform quality—

one sample for every one hundred and twenty thousand gallons or part of one hundred and twenty thousand gallons;

(c) of certificated petroleum in bulk or in tanks—

one sample from each group of tanks or tank compartments certified to be of the same brand or quality;

(d) of petroleum other than certificated, in cases—

one sample for every ten thousand cases or fraction of ten thousand cases;

(e) of petroleum other than certificated, in casks or drums declared to be of uniform quality—one sample for every eighty thousand gallons or part of eighty thousand gallons;

(f) of petroleum other than certificated in bulk or in tanks—

one sample from each tank or tank compartment.

Sealing of samples and forwarding the same to testing officer.

*7. When the samples required have been delivered to the officer aforesaid, such officer shall forthwith seal the bottles containing the samples, and shall label them with the name of the ship, the name of the consignee, and such other distinguishing marks as may be necessary. He shall then forward them to the testing officer.

Methods of test.

*8. The testing officer shall test the samples thus received in the manner laid down in the first Schedule to the Act.

Averaging results of tests.

*9 If more than one sample of any one brand or quality forming the cargo or a portion of the cargo of a ship is sent to the testing officer for report, that officer shall test each sample separately and strike an average of the results. If the average flashing point is not lower than 73° of Fahrenheit's thermometer, and no one test gives a flashing point below 70° of that thermometer, he shall report the whole of the petroleum represented by the samples to the Port Commissioners, Calcutta, or the Collector of Customs, Chittagong, as the case may be as non-dangerous.

Procedure when tests show want of uniformity.

*16. If the testing officer, after testing samples, considers further tests necessary to satisfy him that none of the petroleum is dangerous, he shall report to the Port Commissioners, Calcutta, or the Collector of Customs, Chittagong, as the case may be accordingly.

Procedure on report.

*11. On receipt of a report under rule 10—

(a) when the consignment is imported in cases, the Port Commissioners, Calcutta, or the Collector of Customs, Chittagong, as the case may be shall cause the petroleum in question to be landed, or to be discharged into boats, and the officer referred to in rule 5 shall select and deliver to the testing officer one sample from every thousand cases;

(b) when the consignment is imported in bulk, the Port Commissioners, Calcutta, or the Collector of Customs, Chittagong, as the case may be shall forward a second sample and, until receipt of the testing officer's further report, may prevent the landing of any portion of the contents of the tank in question, or may permit it to be landed as provided in rule 18;

(c) if the petroleum has been already landed and stored under rule 18 samples shall be selected as aforesaid.

Report of testing officer.

*12. The testing officer shall, as soon as practicable, and ordinarily within twenty-four hours after receipt of any samples, sign a report certifying that they are, or are not, dangerous petroleum, as the case may be, and shall forward such report to the office of the Port Commissioners. Calcutta, or the Collector of Customs, Chittagong, as the case may be where it shall be deposited.

Fee for testing.

*13. The fee for testing each sample shall be five rupees:

Provided that the total amount of the fees chargeable under this rule shall not, in the case of any one ship, exceed Rs. 50.

When a ship carrying petroleum may anchor at ordinary anchorage.

*14. A ship may proceed to the usual anchorage in either of the ports specified in rule 1 and there discharge any certificated petroleum not exceeding five thousand gallons in quantity:

Provided that the officer whose duty it is, under rule 5, to select samples of petroleum on board, may at any time take a sample of any such petroleum for the purpose of having it tested.

Exception in respect of petroleum declared dangerous which is not in excess of forty gallons.

15. If the quantity of petroleum declared dangerous on board a ship does not exceed forty gallons and there is no other petroleum on board, or the aggregate quantity of petroleum on board, including petroleum declared dangerous, does not exceed forty gallons, the said petroleum may be forthwith landed.

When a ship carrying petroleum must anchor at a special anchorage.

16. Save as provided in rules 14 and 24, every ship having petroleum on board shall be anchored at such anchorage as the Conservator of the port shall appoint in this behalf. If the petroleum is intended to be discharged at either of the ports specified in rule 1, the vessel shall not leave such anchorage, except for the purpose of discharge of bulk oil petroleum as laid down in rule 19, until all the petroleum has been so discharged. If the petroleum or a portion of it is intended for some other port, the petroleum or such portion of it shall be temporarily discharged at such anchorage before the vessel proceeds into the harbour. If it is not so discharged, the vessel shall remain at such anchorage until her final departure.

Such anchorage shall in no case be the same as that for vessels laden with explosives, and shall be sufficiently far removed from the anchorage for vessels laden with explosives to prevent the possibility of a fire originating at the former place affecting vessels anchored at the latter.

Petroleum referred to in rule 16 not to be landed until it has been tested.

*17. Save as provided in rule 18, no petroleum, of which samples have been taken under rule 5, shall be landed from any ship referred to in rule 16 until the testing officer's report in respect thereof has been received in the office of the Port Commissioners, Calcutta, or the Collector of Customs, Chittagong, as the case may be.

Landing of petroleum in anticipation of the testing officer's report.

18. (1) The Port Commissioners may, in anticipation of the testing officer's report, allow the consignee of any petroleum to discharge the same into boats or to land it.

(2) Such permission shall be subject to the condition that the boats into which the petroleum is discharged shall remain at such place as may be directed by the Port Commissioners, Calcutta, or the Collector of Customs, Chittagong, as the case may be, or that the petroleum shall be landed at a landing-place duly appointed for this purpose, and be stored in an installation licensed under rule 13 or 14 of Chapter IV, Part II.

Landing of petroleum in bulk.

19. When petroleum is imported in bulk, its removal from the ship shall be effected by means of a hose and a metal pipe, and it shall be pumped into storage-tanks. The discharge shall be continuous, day and night, until completed, weather and appliances permitting. When working at night electric light only shall be used; and, when the ship has finished discharging, the pipe to the storage-tanks shall immediately be emptied by means of a supplementary pump on shore. If for any cause the discharge of petroleum is at any time suspended, arrangements must be made by means of a valve for effectually preventing any of the oil left in the pipe from escaping.

Landing of petroleum otherwise than in bulk.

20. When petroleum imported otherwise than in bulk is landed within the port—

(1) it shall be landed either at jetties provided for the purpose, or in cargo-boats, and, except where electric light is exclusively used, only after sunrise and before sunset, and only at such place or places as the Conservator of the port shall direct;

(2) dangerous and non-dangerous petroleum shall not be conveyed to the shore at the same time on the same cargo-boat;

(3) no smoking, fire or light of any description (other than lights required by the port rules), shall be allowed in any cargo-boat during the time that the petroleum is on board the boat.

Transhipment of petroleum.

21. Petroleum may be transhipped from one ship to another for conveyance to any other port, whether within or beyond the limits of British India:

Provided that—

(a) the petroleum shall not be transhipped between sunset and sunrise except when electric light is exclusively used,

(b) dangerous and non-dangerous petroleum shall not be conveyed at the same time on any boat which is used for transhipping the petroleum, and

(c) no smoking, fire or light of any description (other than lights required by the port rules), shall be allowed on any boat which is being used for transhipping the petroleum from the one ship to the other.

Import-licenses how obtainable.

22. (1) Applications for import-licenses under section 5 of the Act shall be submitted to the officer appointed by the Government of Bengal in this behalf, who will, after enquiry, forward the same with his opinion to the Government of Bengal.

(2) If the application is granted, a license in Form M, signed by a Secretary to the Government, shall be forwarded to the applicant through the officer to whom his application was submitted. The license may be granted for a period of twelve months.

Petroleum comprised in ship's stores.

23. Nothing in the foregoing rules in this Part applies to petroleum, other than dangerous petroleum, comprised in a ship's stores and manifested as such provided it is not of unreasonably large amount. If any question arises as to whether any petroleum manifested as ship's stores of an unreasonably large amount, the decision thereon of the Collector of Customs shall be final.

Petroleum having a flashing point above 150° F.

24. Nothing in the foregoing rules in this Part applies to petroleum which has a flashing point above 150° of Fahrenheit's thermometer. If the master of, or agent for, a ship certifies in writing that any petroleum on board is of this description, the Port Commissioners Calcutta or the Collector of Customs.

Chittagong, as the case may be shall allow it to be discharged in the same manner as ordinary cargo; but the Superintendent of the Petroleum Wharf at Budge-Budge or in Chittagong the Superintendent of Police or the District Magistrate, as the case may be, may at any time require a sample of any portion of it to be delivered to him, with a view to having it tested.

By order of the Governor in Council,

H. L. STEPHENSON,
Secretary.

FINL. DEPT., SEP. REV. BRANCH, CALCUTTA, the 12th May 1914.

No. 273T.-Com.—The 23rd May 1914.—The following communique regarding the opening of seven Chinese ports to foreign trade is published for general information.

H. L. STEPHENSON,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. 10 (3632), dated Peking, the 12th January 1914.

BY virtue of a Presidential order, dated the 9th instant, the Chinese Government have spontaneously opened to foreign trade seven towns in North China. These new "ports" are Kueihuach'eng, Kalgan, Dolonor, Chihfeng, Taonanfu, Hulutao and Lungkow, and the main result of their "opening" will be to develop international trade and interests in Inner Mongolia.

2. Kueihuach'eng is in the extreme north of Shansi: it is a town of approximately 200,000 inhabitants and is an important market for skins, camel hair, ropes and cereals. Kalgan, in the north of Chihli, has a normal population of 430,000, and is the principal outlet from Inner Mongolia. Both places are connected by rail with Peking. Dolonor, east of Kalgan, contains a mixed population of about 15,000, but it is more in the nature of a military encampment than a commercial city. Chihfeng is about 100 miles east of Dolonor. Both the latter towns lie outside the great wall. Taonanfu is an important point on the Mongolian frontier of Fengtien, and will shortly be connected by rail with the South Manchurian Railway.

3. Hulutao was artificially created, under a British Engineer, during the latter years of the Manchu rule with the object of forming an ice-free port on the Gulf of Liaotung under purely Chinese control. It is already connected with the Peking-Mukden Railway by a branch line from Liensban. The question of improving the water approaches to Newchwang by the conservancy of the Liao river is at present under consideration and if, as is to be hoped, the scheme materializes there may be a better prospect of retaining for Newchwang and Hulutao the trade which is now to some extent being diverted to Dairen.

4. Lungkow, in Shantung, is situated about 100 miles west of Chefoo and is already one of the principal centres of the junk-borne coolie traffic into Manchuria. Some of this traffic might possibly now find its way to Hulutao.

5. Of the above seven towns, three only are likely to have much interest for British commerce; namely, Kueihuach'eng, Kalgan and possibly Hulutao. Taonanfu might also become a distributing centre for trade with the Eastern section of Inner Mongolia. The advantages of Kueihuach eng and Kalgan are that British goods will, as is the case with the inland open marts of Manchuria, now reach those places on payment of a single import duty of 5 per cent. instead of the additional 2½ per cent. levied on transit trade. • • • • •

The opening of both these places will enable foreigners to watch at close quarters the working of the transit pass trade and will facilitate the immense export business of Tientsin as well as develop foreign commercial intercourse with both Inner and Outer Mongolia.

• • • • • • •

J. N. JORDAN,

His Majesty's Minister at Peking.

10. (1) The Returning Officer shall attend for the purpose of counting the votes on such date and at such time and place as may be appointed by the Local Government in this behalf.

(2) Every candidate may be present in person or may send a representative, duly authorised by him in writing, to watch the process of counting.

(3) The Returning Officer shall show the voting papers, but not the counterfoils, to the candidates or their representatives.

(4) If any objection is made to any voting paper on the ground that it is invalid under these rules, or to the rejection by the Returning Officer of a voting paper, such objection shall be decided at once by the Returning Officer, whose decision shall, subject to the provisions of rules 15 and 16, be final.

11. (1) When the counting of the votes has been completed, the Returning Officer shall, subject to the provisions of section 4, forthwith declare the candidate or candidates, as the case may be, to whom the largest number of votes have been given to be elected.

(2) When an equality of votes is found to exist between any candidates and the addition of a vote will entitle any of the said candidates to be declared elected, the determination of the person to whom such one additional vote shall be deemed to have been given shall be made by lot to be drawn in the presence of the Returning Officer and in such manner as he may determine.

12. Upon the completion of the counting and after the result has been declared by him, the Returning Officer shall seal up the voting papers and all other documents relating to the election and shall retain the same for a period of six months, and thereafter cause them to be destroyed.

(2) If the Commissioner or the said officer is satisfied that the provisions of rules 1 and 2 have been sufficiently complied with in respect of the car, he may grant a certificate to that effect, and thereupon the car shall be deemed to have been registered under these rules and the Commissioner shall cause to be made in the register of motor-cars such entries in respect of the car as are required by clause (6) of the said rule 1.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in the proviso to clause (1) of rule 2, if the owner of any heavy motor car which was registered under rules formerly in force under the Bengal Motor-car and Cycle Act, 1903, does not within one month after the commencement of these rules obtain a certificate as aforesaid in respect of the car, the car shall not be used until it has been registered under these rules, except for the purpose of being taken to be registered; and the previous registration of the car shall be cancelled.

(2) The registered axle-weight of an axle of a heavy motor-car shall not exceed eight tons, and the sum of the registered axle-weights of all the axles of a heavy motor-car shall not exceed twelve tons.

5. (1) (a) In all cases the driving wheels of heavy motor vehicles shall be fitted with twin resilient tyres.

(b) The non-driving wheels, if fitted with resilient tyres, shall, if the axle load is or exceeds four tons, be fitted with twin tyres.

(c) The non-driving wheels, if fitted with non-resilient tyres, must be smooth and without any projection, and shall not be constructed of separate plates separated by any spaces whatsoever.

(2) The width of the non-resilient tyre of each wheel of a heavy motor-car shall be not less than six inches and the tyres of the wheels on the same axle shall be of equal width.

(3) The permissible axle-load shall not exceed five hundred weights for each inch in width of the combined width of the two tyres of the axle in question.

Diameter of wheel of heavy motor-car.

6. The diameter of the wheels of heavy motor-car, if they are fitted with a tyre which is not pneumatic or is not made of a soft or elastic material, must be not less than two feet six inches.

Use of heavy motor-car upon bridges.

7. (1) When any authority who is liable for the repair of a bridge affixes or sets up in suitable and conspicuous positions, on the bridge and in each approach to the bridge notices stating that the bridge is insufficient to carry a heavy motor-car the registered axle-weight of any axle of which exceeds such weight as may be specified in such notices, the owner of any such car shall not cause or suffer the car to be driven, and the person driving or in charge of any such car shall not drive the car upon the bridge, except with the written consent of the said authority.

(2) The owner of any heavy motor-car, the axle-weight of any axle of which exceeds six tons, shall not cause or suffer the car to be driven, and the person driving or in charge of any such car shall not drive the car upon any bridge at any time when another heavy motor-car is on the bridge.

(2) Not more than one trailer shall be drawn by any motor-car:

Provided that the Commissioner may, by order, for special reasons to be recorded by him, permit more than one trailer to be drawn by any such car upon such conditions (if any) as may be specified in such order.

(3) The Commissioner of Police may, by notification or otherwise, prohibit the use of certain public places—

(i) by heavy motor-cars on the grounds of—

(a) public safety or convenience; and

(b) the suitability or otherwise of such roads to heavy motor-car traffic; as well as

Marking of trailer.

9. The owner of every trailer shall cause to be printed or otherwise plainly marked on a conspicuous part of the right or off side of the trailer, in letters and figures not less than one inch in height, and of such shape and colour as to be clearly legible and clearly distinguishable from the colour of the ground whereon the said marking is made,—

(a) the weight of the trailer when unladen, and

(b) the axle-weight of each axle of the trailer, if the weight of the trailer when unladen exceeds one ton; and shall cause the said marking to be from time to time repaired or renewed, as often as may be necessary to keep the said letters and figures clearly legible and clearly distinguishable.

Axle-weight of trailers.

10. The axle-weight of an axle of a trailer shall not exceed four tons.

Power of Commissioner or his office to ascertain axle-weight of heavy motor-car or trailer at any time.

11. (1) Whenever the Commissioner, or any officer duly authorized by him in this behalf, has reasonable ground for suspecting that the axle-weight for the time being of any axle of any heavy motor-car or trailer drawn thereby exceeds the registered or marked axle-weight of that axle, he may—

(a) require the person driving or in charge of the car to drive the car, or cause it to be driven, with or without the trailer, to a weighing machine, and

12. To every trailer exceeding one ton in weight, when unladen, the wheels of which are fitted with tryes which are not pneumatic and are not made of soft or elastic material, clauses (1) (c), (2) and (3) of rule 5 shall apply, with the substitution—

(a) of three inches for six inches as the minimum width of the tyres, and

(b) of references to the axle-weights marked upon the trailer in pursuance of rule 9 for the references to registered axle-weights.

Diameter of wheels of heavy trailers.

13. Rule 6 shall apply to every trailer exceeding one ton in weight when unladen, the wheels of which are fitted with tyres which are not pneumatic and are not made of a soft or elastic material.

PART IV.—Motor-cabs.

1. For the purpose of these rules a motor-cab means a light motor-car as defined in Part I used for the purpose of standing or plying for hire in any street or public place.

2. All taxi-cabs plying for hire on the streets shall be registered annually and hold a subsisting certificate.

3. On the registration of a motor-car as a motor-cab, a certificate of registration shall be granted by the Commissioner of Police in the form given in Schedule II to these rules.

4. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in sub-clause (3) of rule 1 in Part II of these rules the fee payable for the first registration of a motor-car intended for use as a motor-cab shall be Rs. 16 and that for every re-registration of such a car shall be Rs. 8.

5. A license to drive a motor-cab shall be in the form given in Schedule III to these rules, and the rules therein contained shall be read as a part of these rules.

6. An applicant for a driver's license under these rules shall, before receiving such license, satisfy the Commissioner of Police that he is acquainted with the principal places and streets in and around Calcutta and Howrah, that he has a thorough knowledge of the prescribed rates for hire, and that he is in all respects a fit person to be the driver of a motor-cab.

7. The license of a driver may be cancelled or suspended or otherwise dealt with by the Local Government for any breach of these rules.

8. No motor-car shall be used as a motor-cab, unless fitted with a taxi-meter or approved mechanical device for automatically and visibly registering on each occasion the fare to be charged according to the rates for distance or time or a combination of distance and time. Every taxi-meter when in use shall be locked and sealed, so that it may not be tampered with.

Every taxi-meter shall be fitted with an indicator or handle in the form of a flag on which shall be printed the words "for hire." The taxi-meter shall be so constructed that when the indicator is vertical the taxi-meter shall be out of action. Such indicator shall be so placed as to be clearly visible to any person outside of and in front of the vehicle, and to the hirer when inside.

The vertical position indicates that the vehicle is available for hire, and no driver shall without reasonable excuse refuse to accept a fare when the indicator is in the vertical position.

Any owner, driver, attendant or other person who shall break or tamper in any way with the seal placed on the taxi-meter, or who shall, with intent to deceive, tamper with the taxi-meter or the driving mechanism thereof, shall be deemed to have committed a breach of this rule.

8*a*. Every taxi-meter referred to in rule 8 shall, after it is affixed to a motor-cab, whether for the first time or after repair or other readjustment, be submitted to the Commissioner of Police, or to such officer as he may empower in this behalf for the purpose of being examined as to correctness of fittings, and being given a practical road-test over a measured distance of one mile and a time-test of not less than half-an-hour. If found to be correct, the taxi-meter and its fittings shall then be sealed to the motor-cab in such a manner that it cannot be removed or tampered with without the seals being broken or removed.

8*b*. Every taxi-meter shall, at the end of each period of six months (the first of such periods commencing from the date of the test referred to in the last preceding rule), be submitted to similar test:

Provided that every taxi-meter shall, at any time, if so required by the Commissioner of Police, be submitted to him or to such officer as he may empower in this behalf, for the purpose of undergoing such test or any portion thereof.

8*c*. The owner of every motor-cab shall cause to be kept in the cab, for the inspection of the Public, a register in which the testing officer referred to in rule (8*a*) shall, after each of the tests contemplated in the preceding rules, enter the date and result of such test.

8*d*. Every motor-cab shall be provided with a light so placed as to illuminate the taxi-meter at night.

9. In every motor-cab there shall be available for the inspection of customers a list of rates, and the fare charged for the hire of the motor shall not exceed the maximum fare calculated according to the scale of the rates set forth in the list as may be applicable.

10. The driver of every motor-cab shall, as soon as he is hired and no sooner, set the taxi-meter in motion, and upon the termination of the hiring shall immediately stop the same. If he neglects or fails to do so, he shall be deemed to have committed a breach of this rule. But if a motor-cab is called from a garage or a stand to take up a passenger at any place less than 500 yards from the garage or stand, the taxi-meter shall not be set in motion until the motor-cab shall arrive at such place and be ready to take up the passenger:

Provided that in the event of a motor-cab whilst hired being unable to proceed from any mechanical derangement or tyre failure, either temporarily or otherwise, the driver shall at once stop the mechanism of the taxi-meter as against the hirer, and shall not re-start the same until such time as the defect is remedied.

11. A driver of a motor-cab shall, in the absence of reasonable cause to the contrary, proceed to the destination named by the hirer and by the shortest and quickest route.

12. The brakes shall, as far as possible, be so affixed as to be capable of easy adjustment. At least one brake shall be so made as to be applied by the foot of the driver, and at least one shall act directly upon the road wheels.

13. All brake and steering connections secured with bolts shall have such bolts secured with nuts, the same to be locked or pinned.

13*a*. Every motor-cab shall be capable of being readily steered, and able to turn on each lock and to proceed in a contrary direction within a roadway not more than 30 feet wide from kerb to kerb:

Provided that the Commissioner of Police may, in his discretion, grant a certificate of registration as a motor-cab to a motor-car intended for use as a motor-cab, if such car is capable of turning within a reasonable space over and above the 30 feet above prescribed.

14. Every precaution shall be taken by the owner to see that all parts of the mechanism of the car are periodically inspected and kept in proper working order, and a register shall be kept of such inspections in a convenient form giving the particulars shown in Schedule IV to these rules. This register shall be open at any reasonable time to the inspection of the Commissioner of Police or any person duly authorized by him in that behalf. Any failure to maintain this register or to produce it when called for by lawful authority shall be deemed to be a breach of this rule.

15. No oil shall be allowed to drop upon the roadway, and where a tray or undershield is fixed below the mechanism of the car for the purpose of preventing this or for any other purpose, such tray or undershield shall be so placed or constructed that no petrol from the tank, supply pipe or carburettor can collect therein.

16. Tanks for petrol must be so placed that any overflow shall not fall on to nor soak into cushions, upholstery or floor mats in or about the body, and the filling nozzle shall be brought to and permanently fixed to some point outside the body. No petrol shall be poured into the tank whilst the engine is running or whilst any lamp is burning in or on any portion of the car.

16*a*. Effective means shall be provided in every motor-cab for preventing the heat of the motor or of the exhaust pipe connections from injuriously affecting other parts of the cab or interfering with the comfort of passengers. All wires carrying an electric current must be properly insulated and protected from injury, and so placed that they cannot be a source of danger.

16*b*. In any motor-cab the outlet from the silencer shall not be so placed as to project the exhaust directly on to the road, or so placed or directed as to alarm horses that may be immediately behind the cab.

17. Every motor-cab shall have at least one driving wheel fitted with an approved means of preventing or limiting side slip, and shall carry at least one spare inflated tyre and rim or other approved device which can, if necessary, be quickly fitted to any wheel.

18. Every motor-cab shall be provided with a means of communication between passenger and driver.

18*a*. Every motor-cab shall be provided with adequate means for the conveyance of a reasonable quantity of luggage, and with a sufficient number of chains, straps or other means of securing such luggage. No luggage shall be carried on the roof of the cab, unless there has been affixed thereto a guard rail of a type approved by the Commissioner of Police or by such officer as he may empower in this behalf.

19. Where acetylene or other gas is used to light the carriage, the cylinders or vessels which contain the gas or in which it is generated must be fixed outside in such a position as to minimize the danger of accidental ignition.

19*a*. No celluloid or zylonite fittings shall be placed inside or outside any motor-cab:

Provided that this rule shall not apply to the inside of the accumulators contained in such cab.

20. No printed or written matter other than the sanctioned rates for hire or these rules shall appear on the outside of a motar-cab or be carried by way of advertisement. Small advertisements of a pattern to be approved by the Commissioner of Police may, however, be exhibited within the cab.

20*a*. The cushions of the seats in every motor-cab shall be covered and stuffed with suitable material to be approved by the Commissioner of Police or by such officer as he may empower in this behalf.

21. The doors, windows, seats, roof, springs, wheels, cushions, linings, panels, etc., and all furniture and appointment of a motor-cab, shall be in proper order and repair the paint and varnish in good condition and the inside perfectly clean. The floor shall be covered with a mat of rubber, coir or other suitable material.

22. The Commissioner of Police may prohibit the use of a motor-cab which is in his opinion unfit to ply for hire until such time as the defects are remedied to his satisfaction.

23. The carrying capacities of all motor cabs shall be fixed by the licensing officer.

24. The driver of a taxi-cab immediately after any hiring shall carefully search for any property accidentally left in it, and take the same within 24 hours, if not sooner claimed by the owner, to the nearest Police station.

The following conditions must also be strictly complied with :—

Each new type of motor vehicle intended for licensing must be presented at such place as the Commissioner may appoint for inspection. The proprietor must at the time of inspection produce the certificate from the maker stating that the materials of which all the parts of the vehicle are constructed are good, that the machinery is safe, and that the vehicle is in every way fit for use as a public carriage.

8. If, after inspection, the vehicle is approved, such approval may extend to all vehicles of that description, and others of the same type need not be again presented except as hereinafter provided, but taken to such place as the Commissioner may appoint to be registered and passed, provided a certificate from the maker is submitted with each vehicle presented for licensing purposes, stating that it is in every respect similar to that already approved and respecting which a certificate has been furnished.

It must be clearly understood that, if after the type has been passed, defects develop, which in the opinion of the Commissioner render it unsuitable as a type for public service, the Commissioner reserves the right to withdraw such approval entirely or until the defects have been remedied to his satisfaction.

9. A certificate from the proprietor, stating that there has been no alteration in the design of the machinery since the previous inspection and date covered by the makers' certificate, must be presented with each omnibus submitted for renewal of license. Should any alteration be made, full particulars of such must be stated and the same course may be required as for a first inspection.

10. Should it be deemed necessary, an expert will be employed to advise on the subject. The fee for the expert examination must be deposited by the proprietor with the Commissioner, which fee will be returned should the vehicle be passed without alteration being required.

11. When making application for the carriage to be inspected the proprietor must specify the route or routes upon which he intends the vehicles to ply, and these routes may not be departed from except after due notice has been given to the Commissioner, and sanction received.

NOTE.—Nothing in this regulation shall be taken to prohibit a proprietor changing the route as often as he chooses, provided the carriage has been previously certified to be fit for such route.

Chassis, length. the frame the total length may be 21 feet.

Clearance.—All the underparts of the vehicle inside the pivots of the front axle and steering arms (which must be placed as near as possible to the road wheels) as far back at least as the rear axle must clear the ground at least 10 inches when the vehicle is fully loaded, sufficient allowance in addition being made to provide for the wear of the tyres, set of the springs, or other causes of lessened height, so that the minimum clearance of 10 inch is at all times maintained.

Chassis, springs. Must be properly hung, of sufficient strength and flexibility to meet all purposes which may be required of them.

The rear springs must be attached to, or bear upon the back axle or axle-casing as near to the road wheels as possible and the distance between the outsides must not be less than 5 inches; where a cross spring is used, it must be so applied that it shall not cause or increase side ways. The front spring must be as wide apart as possible, and not less than 38 inches, from outside to outside.

Wheel-base. Should not exceed 14 feet 6 inches and it should in all cases be so proportioned that skidding or improper movements shall be as far as possible, avoided.

NOTE.—If it is found that a vehicle is apt to skid or be otherwise improperly moved unduly, the Commissioner reserves the right to serve a notice on the proprietor "not to use", and may refuse to license the vehicle again until the defects have been remedied.

Wheel track. For both front and rear wheels should coincide, and measurement from centre to centre taken in line with the axles, must not be less than 5 ft. 6 in. In no case must the front track be less than the rear.

Road Wheels. Must be of sufficient and suitable diameter, but not made so heavy as to throw an undue strain upon the steering gear or other parts.

Chassis, tyre. The materials of which the tyres are made must be soft and elastic, so as to reduce vibration, etc. Sectional tyres must not be fitted to a vehicle submitted for inspection and license.

Chassis, length. Must be such that the total length of the complete vehicle in no case exceeds "21 ft."

Chassis, breadth. The breadth must not be greater than 7 ft. 6 in. at any part.

14. Each vehicle must be fitted with at least two independent brakes each capable of stopping and holding carriage under all conditions. They must also, where necessary, be fitted with an approved form of compensating device.

NOTE.—The maintenance of the brakes in perfect order is of the utmost importance, and this will be at all times insisted upon. They will at any time be subject to inspection by the Police.

15. The brakes, should, as far as possible, be so fixed as to be capable of easy adjustment, and at least one must be supplied by a pedal. Brakes will not be deemed independent which are operated by pedals, or levers acting through the same connections, upon the same brake blocks, or upon the same brake drums and at least one must act directly upon the road wheel without any connection with the propelling gears.

16. The operation of either brake must be in no case declutched.

20. The ball and socket joints of steering connections, when such are used, should not be pendant but the longitudinal or transverse rods must be carried upon the ball.

21. All brake and steering connections secured with bolts or pins must have such bolts threaded and fitted with nuts, which latter must be locked or pinned. The whole of the brake and steering parts must be maintained in perfect order and will be subject to inspection at any time.

22. All parts connected by bolts, or studs and nuts, subject to severe vibration, must be fastened by lock nuts, or by nuts and approved spring or lock nut washers, to prevent their working loose and causing noise, and any carriage with lamp brackets or other fittings loose, and likely to cause unnecessary noise, will be regarded as unfit for public service.

23. The machinery must be so constructed that no undue noise or vibration arises from its use.

The maintenance of the carriage in a satisfactory condition in this respect will be strictly enforced.

24. Every vehicle must be submitted at a time and place appointed, to be specially tested, in respect of noise and vibrations.

25. All omnibuses must be so geared that their highest speed shall not be in excess of the maximum laid down, viz., 12 miles an hour.

26. When a vehicle is submitted for inspection the gear ratios must be supplied and this ratio must both be altered without the authority of the Commissioner. The revolution of the engine when running at the speed which will give 12 miles an hour with the stated highest speed gear must also be supplied.

27. The lubrication of the engine and the carburation of the working mixture must be so controlled that smoke shall not be emitted with the exhaust, or from any other part.

Propretiors of vehicles not properly maintaining them in accordance with this requirement may be served with a notice "not to use" until the defect has been remedied.

28. Carburattors or other petrol receptacles, unless they are suitably encased or screened, must not be placed in close proximity to magnetos, or to connections of wires carrying electric current.

30. Suitable and approved appliances for extinguishing fire must be carried in such a position as to be readily available for use.

31. Tanks for petrol or other liquid fuel must be made of suitable material, properly constructed, and of sufficient strength. They must be so placed that any overflow shall not fall upon wood-work, or accumulate where it can be readily ignited. The filling nozzle or inlet for the petrol or other liquid fuel should, where possible, be brought to the outside of the body.

32. All wires carrying electric current must be properly insulated and protected from injury, and so placed that they cannot be a cause of danger.

33. Effective means must be adopted for preventing the heat of the motor, generator or of the exhaust pipe connections, from injuriously affecting any parts of the vehicle or the comfort of the passengers.

34. The exhaust pipe must not be led inside the tray or under-shield or be fixed in such a position that oil, or any inflammable material, is likely to be dropped upon it.

35. The outlet from the silencer must not be so placed as to project the exhaust directly to the rear or on to the roadway, or be so placed, or so directly as to alarm horses immediately behind the vehicle.

36. The machinery must be so constructed or placed that oil or grease from the bearings cannot drop on to the roadway, and the maintenance of the vehicle in this respect will be strictly enforced.

37. When trays are fixed beneath the parts. they must have suitable webs for retaining the oil when ascending or descending bridges, or be otherwise suitably constructed with that object. Oil or other material collecting in the trays must be cleaned out frequently and not allowed to accumulate.

38. If requisite, a bar or bars, having an eye or bridle to surround the propeller shaft, must be so fixed, that in the event of either the shaft or gear-box breaking, either damage or danger therefrom is minimised.

39. Driving chains and sprockets must be protected by a suitable guard.

40. Body, camber.—The camber should not be more than 3 inches but may, if the proprietor so desires, be made up to but not exceeding 5 inches, provided the outside of roof is so constructed as to give an equivalent in all respects to a 3-inch camber and the maximum height from the ground is not in any way increased.

Height.—The height inside measured in the centre line of the omnibus from the top of the floor battens to the lower edge of the hoop stick or other projections must not be less than 5 feet 10 inches nor more than 6 feet to the centre line of roof-boards. From ground to the spring of roof outside, or edge of drip-boards, the height must not be greater than 9 feet, nor must the height to the outside centre of roof be more than 9 feet 3 inches.

Body breadth inside.—The width between seat backs must not be less than 56 inches where the seats are placed lengthwise.

Body-seats.—At least 16 inches measured in a straight line must be allowed for each passenger on every seat. which seat must be fit and proper and covenient for sitting on. When cross or "garden" seats are fitted inside these must be at least 26 inches clear from the inside back of the seat in front of it. So that there shall be room for the keens of passengers.

41. Corner pillars for bodies must be of sufficient strength, and the body must be properly ironed and stayed to give the necessary strength for the weight to be carried and to resist the effects of the vibration to which it is liable.

(1) No member of the Board of Examiners shall act as a local examiner, except in emergent cases.

(2) When possible, one or more members of the Board of Examiners shall attend every examination on at least one of the days.

(3) So for as is practicable, the local examiners shall be—

(b) Two Mining Engineers or Colliery Managers who must be the holders of first-class certificates. Provided that a Mining Professor may be appointed instead of one of the Mining Engineers or Managers.

(4) The remuneration of each local examiner shall be Rs. 150 for each examination, and a capitation fee of Rs. 2 for each first-class candidate and Re. 1 for each second-class candidate examined, and travelling expenses and halting allowances on the first-class scale under Civil Service Regulations; but an Inspector of Mines, acting as a local examiner, shall not be entitled to any fee or remuneration whatsoever, beyond the travelling expenses and halting allowances due to him in his official capacity.

(5) The subjects for examination shall be—

(b) Practical and theoretical coal-mining, including surface and underground arrangements, sinking, timbering, ventilation, gases met with in coal-mines, a knowledge of plans, surveying and levelling, and of the various instruments used in mining. Questions may also be asked upon geology, sanitation, hydraulics, explosives, safety-lamps and similar subjects. The candidates may also be required to show how to arrange the ventilation and haulage of a mine on a given plan.

(c) Practical mechanics, including steam, steam-engines, steam-boilers, pumps and strength of materials; and questions may be asked upon electricity and compressed air as applied to coal-mining.

(6) The examinations shall be both written and oral, and the subjects and conditions shall be the same for candidates for both classes of certificates; but the examination questions shall be made suitable for each class of certificate.

The examiners shall have power to eliminate the oral examination in the case of candidates who do not reach a standard in the written examination to be prescribed by the Board of Examiners.

(7) The following shall be the maximum number of marks given for each subject:—

Subject.	First Class			Second Class.

(8) No candidate who fails to obtain 66 per cent. of the total number of marks, or 33 per cent. in either of the subjects of mining or mechanics, shall be passed by the examiners, and if a candidate fails to obtain 33 per cent. of the marks given for either of the subjects of arithmetic and handwriting or the Indian Mines Act, any marks he may have obtained in such subjects shall not be included when the total is determined.

(9) Before each examination each candidate shall declare whether he presents himself for a first-or second-class certificate. No candidate for a second-class certificate shall be eligible at that examination for a first-class certificate, but a candidate for a first-class certificate, who does not reach the necessary standard, may, nevertheless, at the discretion of the local examiners, be recommended to the Board of Examiners for a second-class certificate, if, in their opinion, he has done sufficiently well to deserve it.

(10) The Secretary to the local examiners shall report, by registered post, the result of the examination, giving the number of marks obtained by each candidate in each subject, to the President of the Board of Examiners within one month of the close of the examination.

(11) The questions which the local examiners intend to put in the examination papers shall be submitted in draft to the Board of Examiners, for approval, at least six weeks before the date of the examination. Answers to questions on arithmetic and those involving calculations and all plottings and levellings must be submitted to the Board of Examiners along with the question papers.

(12) At least one examination shall be held annually in one of the Bengal or Bihar and Orissa coal-fields; and in other parts of India examinations will be held whenever, in the opinion of the Board of Examiners, the number of candidates in a coal-mining centre justifies the holding of an examination.

(13) No candidate will be allowed to take part in the examination until he has produced an authorization from the Board of Examiners.

(14) Every candidate must sign his name at the top of every page of the paper on which he gives the answers to the questions. He must also sign a register in the presence of the examiners.

(15) The number of the question must be given in bold figures before the answer to each question.

(16) The calculations and work by which a result is obtained must be clearly shown in immediate connection with the answer to each question.

(17) Answers must be strictly confined to the questions asked.

(18) Sketches may be made to make answers clear.

(19) When sketches are asked for, it should be understood that, unless otherwise stated, free-hand sketches, with dimensions, are all that is necessary, and candidates should not spend time in making finished drawings.

(20) Any candidate speaking to any other candidate during the examination, or using any book, notes or private paper, or acting in any manner which the examiners consider improper will be liable to be disqualified at their discretion. The Board of Examiners may in such a case use their discretion as to allowing the candidate to sit at any future examination.

(21) When a candidate has completed the answers to the questions, or when the time allowed for answering the questions has elapsed, or he has been disqualified, he must hand the paper of questions and his answers to the examiners, and at once leave the examination-room.

(22) A time-table will be supplied to each candidate at the commencement of the first day's examination.

(23) The oral examination will be held at a subsequent date. Only those candidates who obtain a certain degree of proficiency in the written examination will be examined orally. Due notice of time and place will be sent to each candidate required by the examiners for oral examination.

(24) The number of marks given for each question will be shown in brackets at the end of the question.

(25) Ink and paper will be provided, and no paper other than the official paper provided may be used. Candidates must bring their own pens and pencils, drawing pens and drawing instruments, including a protractor.

All previous regulations are hereby cancelled.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

NUMBER OF APPOINTMENTS LISTED AS OPEN TO THE PROVINCIAL CIVIL SERVICE IN BENGAL, BIHAR AND ORISSA AND ASSAM.

ESTABLISHMENTS.

Delhi, the 19th December 1913.

RESOLUTION.

PRIOR to the creation of the Bengal Presidency as now constituted and the provinces of Bihar and Orissa and Assam the following appointments, ordinarily filled by members of the Indian Civil Service, were included in the list of appointments open to members of the Provincial Civil Service in Bengal and Eastern Bengal and Assam :—

Bengal.

Superior appointments—
(a) Headships of districts	3
(b) District and Sessions Judgeships	4
(c) Junior Secretaryship to the Board of Revenue ...	1
Inferior appointments—
(d) Under-Secretaryship to Government	1

Eastern Bengal and Assam.

Superior appointments—
(a) Headships of districts	2
(b) District and Sessions Judgeships	3
Inferior appointments—
(c) Junior Secretaryship to the Board of Revenue ...	1

2. On the reconstitution of the provinces in April 1912, the Government of India made the following redistribution of the listed appointments, subject to confirmation by the Secretary of State for India :—

	Bengal.	Bihar and Orissa.	Assam.	Total.
Superior posts	7	5	1	13
Inferior post (Under-Secretaryship to Government) ...	1	1	...	2
	8	6	1	15

The appointment of Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Bengal, has been recently abolished, and in the province of Bihar and Orissa there is only one Secretary to the Board of Revenue. One additional superior appointment has, however, been made over to the Provincial Civil Service in the Bengal Presidency in lieu of the appointment of Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue, and a new post of District and Sessions Judge recently created has also been assigned to the Provincial Service. In view of the fact that the whole question of listing appointments has been for some time under consideration and will doubtless be reviewed afresh by the Royal Commission on the Public Services in India, the Government of India do not consider it necessary, at this stage, to insist upon the specification of the precise number of each class of superior appointment to be listed in the Bengal Presidency and in Bihar and Orissa, and the Secretary of State's approval has been obtained to the listing of the following appointments in the three provinces :—

	Superior.		Inferior.		Total.
Bengal Presidency ...	Headships of Districts or District and Sessions Judgeships ...	8	Under-Secretaryship to Government ...	1	9
Bihar and Orissa ...	Ditto ...	5	Ditto ...	1	6
Assam	District and Sessions Judgeship ...	1	... ...	...	1
		14		2	16

The Governments of Bengal and Bihar and Orissa will be at liberty, as circumstances may demand, to vary within these totals, the number of each class of superior appointment to which members of the Provincial Civil Service are actually appointed.

3. The Governor-General in Council is also pleased to declare, with the Secretary of State's approval, that the following rates of pay shall be attached to the several appointments in question when held by officers of the Provincial Civil Service :—

(i) Headships of districts—

	Rs.
1st grade	1,600
2nd grade	1,200
3rd grade	1,000

(ii) District and Sessions Judgeships—

	Rs.
1st grade	2,000
2nd grade	1,600
3rd grade	1,200

(iii) Under-Secretaryship to Government ... 700

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Governments of Bengal and Bihar and Orissa, to the Hon'ble the Chief Commissioner of Assam and to the Finance Department for information, and that it be published in the supplement to the Gazette of India for general information.

6. Any officer, of not less than three and not more than twelve years' service, who proves his possession of a sufficient elementary knowledge of Russian by obtaining not less than ·6 of the total marks at one of the preliminary examinations held by the Civil Service Commissioners, or passes one of the preliminary examinations in Russian held in India, will be permitted to proceed from England to Russia for a further course of study of the Russian language.

7. After passing the preliminary examination, and receiving permission to proceed to Russia, he must start from England within a fortnight from the date of the India Office letter conveying such permission unless specially authorised to defer his departure. He must on no account start for Russia until he has received a letter of instructions on the subject from the India Office. No officer on leave on medical certificate will be permitted to proceed to Russia under these rules unless reported fit to do so by the India Office Medical Board.

8. On starting for Russia he may be granted an advance of pay not exceeding 35 days' furlough pay and also not exceeding £100. Such advance will only be granted to an officer who draws his furlough pay from the India Office, and will be recovered in instalments spread over eight months after his arrival in Russia.

9. On his arrival in Russia, he shall report to the India Office his address and the date of his crossing the Russian frontier. Any subsequent change of his address shall likewise be reported.

10. Every officer permitted to go to Russia under these regulations is required to spend ten months in that country and to present himself for final examination at the first examination held after the end of these ten months.

11. Two months before his final examination, he shall notify to the India Office the address in England to which his order for examination should be sent by the Civil Service Commissioners.

12. On his return to England he shall report to the India Office in writing his arrival and the date of his crossing the Russian frontier on his return. If he left India on medical certificate, he shall apply for permission to appear before the Medical Board at the India Office. He shall not leave Russia, either temporarily or permanently, earlier than fourteen days before the final examination, without obtaining leave of absence for a definite period from the Under-Secretary of State for India.

13. If he succeeds at the final examination in qualifying to be a 1st class Interpreter in the Russian language, he shall receive a gratuity of £80 and if he qualifies as a 2nd class Interpreter under the same conditions he shall receive a gratuity of £40. He will also be granted travelling expenses* from London to and from St. Petersburg or Moscow, as the case may be. The gratuities shall be paid only in cases where there has been the full term of residence in Russia for the purposes of study. He will also be granted a free passage from England to India unless granted leave on private affairs before returning to India (see paragraph 15) and will be treated with retrospective effect† as an entitled passenger to England or to Russia when first proceeding there. No grant on account of travelling expenses shall be made to an officer who fails to qualify to be an Interpreter, but he may earn the gratuity, travelling allowance, and passages (or payments in lieu) if he succeeds at any subsequent examination in qualifying to be an Interpreter, provided he has not more than 12 years' service at the time of re-examination.

14. An officer may re-qualify as a 1st class Interpreter after an interval of five years by passing the oral part of the examination together with an extempore translation from and into the language. The grant for re-qualification as a 1st class Interpreter will be one quarter of the grant for the original qualification.‡

15. Whether successful or not at the final examination, he shall rejoin in India within two months from the date on which it began, unless his leave or furlough extends beyond that period. If, however, his leave has been granted under medical certificate, it will be necessary for him as usual to obtain a certificate that he is in a fit state of health to return to his duty.

16. A member of the Indian Civil Service or a Military Officer subject to the Civil Leave Rules shall be entitled to count as Indian duty for promotion and pension, but not as service for furlough, the period of ten months spent in Russia. The whole time passed in the course of study and until the date of his return to duty in India will be treated as part of the furlough taken, and he will be entitled to the usual furlough pay.

17. A Military officer in civil employ, but subject to the Leave Rules for the Indian Army, shall be entitled to count as Indian duty for promotion and

The half-yearly preliminary examinations in India are held in January on the third Tuesday and in June on the second Tuesday; and the names of the officers who are recommended by the Government of India for permission to proceed direct from India to Russia will be communicated to the India Office as soon as the result of the examination is known. The names of the officers who are finally selected will be communicated by the India Office to the Government of India, who will give authority to each officer to take up his residence in Russia, to which country he should proceed about May or November so as to be on the same footing as the officers of his batch who proceed from England. FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

No. 201C.—The 20th January 1914.—The following Resolution of the Government of India, Department of Commerce and Industry, is republished for general information.

H. L. STEPHENSON,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. 43—71-13, dated Delhi, the 6th January 1914.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Department of Commerce and Industry.

THE following information relative to the International Rubber Congress and Exhibition which will be held at Batavia (Java) in September 1914 is published for general information.

The Government of India have decided not to participate in the Exhibition.

INTERNATIONAL RUBBER CONGRESS AND EXHIBITION TO BE HELD AT BATAVIA (JAVA), SEPTEMBER 1914.

AN Internation Rubber Congress and Exhibition will be held at Batavia (Java) in 1914, the importance of which is not under-estimated in view of the fact that 260,000 acres are planted with rubber in the Netherlands East Indies, and that 2,249 tons of rubber were exported from the Indies in 1911. It is therefore obvious that the Dutch eastern possessions occupy an important position on the list of rubbur-producing countries of the tropical East.

The excellent collection of exhibits from the Netherlands East Indies at the International Rubber Exhibitions held in London in 1906 and 1911 are sufficient guarantee that no pains will be spared to make the Batavia Congress and Exhibition a success.

The Congress and Exhibition will be held under the auspices of the Netherlands East Indian Government. H. R. H. The Prince Consort of the Netherlands has honoured the undertaking with his Patronage, and the valuable support of His Excellency the Governor-General and of His Honour the Director of Agriculture, Commerce and Industry, is assured. The international importance of the Congress and Exhibition needs but little explanation. The amount of foreign capital invested in rubber-estates in the Netherlands East Indies amounts to £18,500,000, of which £14,922,490 British, £138,000 German, £800,000 American, and £2,500,000 Belgian.

The Congress will be of incalculable importance to all concerned with rubber-growing in the tropical East, as the views of well-known authorities on vital questions will most certainly throw light on many matters of consequence. Both Congress and Exhibition will be unique inasmuch as, being held in a rubber-producing country, rubber-yielding species will be planted in the Exhibition grounds, and rubber-estates in the vicinity of Batavia and elsewhere in the Indies can be visited.

Batavia, the capital of Java, is most favourably situated for the Congress and Exhibition. It is connected by regular steamship lines with Europe and all the important ports of the Straits Settlements, the Federated Malay States, India, Ceylon and other parts of the East.

The Municipality of Batavia has, in view of the great importance of the Exhibition, granted the loan of a large plot of land in the centre of the upper town, Weltevreden, within a few minutes' distance from the hotels, railway stations, and trams.

A very active interest is being taken in the undertaking by His Honour the Director of Agriculture, Commerce and Industry, the agricultural associations in the Netherlands Indies and all important commercial houses which have rubber interests. The decidedly augurs well for its success.

The object of the CONGRESS, which will be held from the 7th to the 12th September 1914, is the study of the scientific, economical, technical and commercial questions, which concern the rubber culture and industry. Well-known authorities will be invited to contribute dissertations, and the subjects which are best suited for the purpose will, after they have been reported upon, be brought into debate during the Congress. At the conclusion of the Congress the dissertations, the reports thereon and the reports of the debates will be printed.

A Congress Committee is charged with the preliminary arrangements in connection with the Congress, which will be divided into eight sections, viz. :—

1. Botany and Zoology,
2. Climate and Soil,
3. Culture and Crop,
4. Preparation, etc,
5. Working policy, etc.,
6. Synthetic Rubber,
7. Commerce, and
8. Publications.

The Secretary of the Committee, Dr. C. J. J. VAN HALL, Buitenzorg (Java), will willingly supply any information desired concerning the Congress, a definite programme of which will shortly be issued.

The object of the Exhibition, which will be held from the 8th September to the 10th October 1914, is to show how the culture and preparation of rubber is conducted in the principal producing countries, so as to obtain an idea how this is done in various parts of the globe. The necessary attention will also be devoted to wild rubber species.

A separate Committee to the Congress Committee is charged with the preliminary arrangements in connection with the Exhibition, all correspondence concerning which should be addressed to the Secretary-General.

In order that those interested may become acquainted with manufactured rubber-goods, an exhibition of these will also be held. The manufactured goods exhibited may be offered for sale.

Prizes and diplomas, a list of which will be published later, will be offered. Governments, corporations, associations and private persons or firms will be permitted to offer special prizes for exhibits or, after consultation with the Committee, form special competitions in connection with the culture and preparation of rubber and to lay down, if desired, special conditions regarding such competitions.

The Jury will be international.

Applications for space should be made to the Secretary-General before February 1st, 1914. The application should mention the number of square metres floor area or wall area required.

Space will be allotted by the Committee.

Exhibitors will be permitted to erect their own buildings for the exposition of exhibits. The plans and designs of such buildings will, however, have to be approved of by the Committee.

No charge will be made for exhibits which will not occupy more than 5 square metres, excepting for tools and machinery, for which the tariff is 10 guilders per square metre wall area and 25 guilders per square metre floor area. For exhibits likely to occupy more than 5 square metres wall area or floor area there is a special tariff, which will be sent post free on application.

Agreements will be made with the railway companies and steamship lines for chief freight-rates, particulars of which can be obtained on application from the Secretary-General. Costs of transport are for account of the exhibitors. The Committee will attend, on request, to the receipt, transport to the Exhibition grounds and unpacking of exhibits, but will not accept any responsibility for damage which the goods may suffer during transport.

The Committee will also attend to the protection of the exhibits during the days of the Exhibition is open and will insure them free of charge against fire and burglary for the value declared by the exhibitors. The Government of the Netherlands Indies will exempt exhibits from the payment of customs duties.

All machinery for which motive power is required should be at the Exhibition grounds on or before July 10th, 1914. The Committee will take the necessary measures so that the erection of the machinery can be commenced on that date. The building material required will be on the spot, providing it is applied for before March 21st, 1914. All other exhibits must be on the spot on or before August 1st, 1914. Live plants and perishable goods can be received until September 1st, 1914.

Exhibitors are advised to attend personally to the arrangement of their exhibits within the space allotted to them. In the event of their not being able to do this, the Committee will attend to it free of charge. For the erection of machinery the services of an expert will be available, if required, for account however and at the responsibility of the exhibitors, who will be called upon to pay the cost of the building material used for the foundations.

No. 900-C.—The following papers having been presented to Parliament by His Majesty's Secretary of State for India are published for general information.

H. WHEELER,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

No 3, dated Simla, the 24th July 1913.

From—The Government of India, Home Department,
To—His Majesty's Secretary of State for India.

WE have the honour to communicate for Your Lordship's information the result of an examination which we have made in consultation with local Governments of certain important considerations relating to the recording of the confessions of persons accused of criminal charges.

2. The enquiry formed part of a general examination, which was initiated in 1911, of the provincial rules in force governing various matters connected with the investigation of offences by the police, the object of which was to apprise all local Governments of the action which had been taken in other provinces towards dealing with the same subjects, and to ensure the further scrutiny of the local regulations with a view to remedying possible defects in them and embodying provisions which had been found useful elsewhere. With our Home Department letter of the 12th July 1911, we accordingly circulated a précis of the orders in force on the subject of the procedure to be followed in the production before Magistrates of accused persons who had intimated a wish to confess, and in the actual record by Magistrates of the confessions of persons who were thus brought before them, and while inviting opinions regarding amendments which might suggest themselves, we particularly asked for answers to the following questions, namely :—

(1) whether, on a balance of advantages and disadvantages, it facilitated the ends of justice to have confessions recorded at all before the trial commences, except in very special circumstances and by the orders of the District Magistrates;

(2) whether, assuming that the practice of recording confessions before trial continued, it was practicable to introduce more stringent safeguards against abuse; and

(3) whether the actual procedure of Magistrates in recording confessions was susceptible of improvement.

We annex copies of the replies received (enclosures Nos. 2 to 11), and in reviewing the matter we have had regard to various suggestions which have been mooted by questions in the House of Commons and in the course of discussion in the Imperial Legislative Council, indicating possible lines of reform. Briefly these may be said to comprise the prohibition of all record of confessions prior to trial, or a legal instruction to the effect that no conviction could be based upon a confession, once made but subsequently retracted, unless the commission of the offence was materially corroborated by direct evidence.

3. As Your Lordship is aware, the powers of Magistrates to record statements or confessions made in the course of police investigations are defined in section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code which runs as follows :—

"164 (1) Every Magistrate not being a police-officer may record any statement or confession made to him in the course of an investigation under this Chapter or at any time afterwards before the commencement of the inquiry or trial.

"(2) Such statement shall be recorded in such of the manners hereinafter prescribed for recording evidence as is, in his opinion, best fitted for the circumstances of the case. Such confessions shall be recorded and signed in the manner provided in section 364, and such statements or confessions shall then be forwarded to the Magistrate by whom the case is to be inquired into or tried,

"(3) No Magistrate shall record any such confession unless upon questioning the person making it, he has reason to believe that it was made voluntarily; and when he records any confession, he shall make a memorandum at the foot of such record to the following effect :—

"I believe that this confession was voluntarily made. It was taken in my presence and hearing, and was read over to the person making it and admitted by him to be correct, and it contains a full and true account of the statement made by him.

(Signed) A. B.,
Magistrate.

"Explanation.—It is not necessary that the Magistrate receiving and recording a confession or statement should be a Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case."

The major issue raised in the discussion of this matter involves the cancellation of these provisions; the minor issues cover the possibility of adopting further precautions with the object of securing that confessions are only recorded if voluntarily made. Underlying the consideration of the whole question is the desire to prevent any miscarriage of justice, arising from the record of confessions which are not willingly volunteered, or which are taken down in circumstances, in which it cannot be guaranteed that they contain a full statement of what the accused person really wishes to say; and with that desire it is needless to state that we are in complete sympathy. The dangers to be avoided are the misuse of their powers by the investigating police in order to induce persons charged with offences to make false admissions of guilt, and the intervention of inexperienced Magistrates who do not appreciate the necessity of ascertaining the circumstances in which a statement is made or of recording it carefully and in detail. We have no wish to deny these risks or to refrain from any measure calculated to minimize them, and we think that it may fairly be claimed that they have long been generally recognized, as is shown by the instructions already issued. There are, however, considerations which deserve to be carefully weighed before the simple expedient is accepted of abolishing the recording of all confessions made before trial, and in dealing with the question we think it essential that it should be approached, not from the standpoint of condemning the whole police force as unscrupulous but rather with the desire to encourage among the police a spirit of pride in their work, to discourage attempts to substitute confessions for intelligent detective methods, and to emphasise the disgrace which attaches to resort to the ill-treatment of prisoners. We believe that this feeling is to be found among the new generation of police to a greater extent than is frequently credited, and our policy should proceed upon its recognition rather than upon an attitude of widespread distrust.

4. Reverting to the main consideration whether the recording of confessions prior to trial shall be allowed at all, the salient feature of the correspondence is the practical unanimity of judicial authority against any prohibition. With the exception of the Lower Burma Chief Court, three Judges of the Madras High Court and one Judge of the Bombay High Court (differing, in the two instances last mentioned, from the majority of their colleagues), the leading Courts in other provinces traverse the arguments advanced in our letter of the 12th July 1911, and urge that no such departure of practice is required. That these high judicial officers are unwilling to approve of any such prohibition is a valuable indication of the fact that these confessions are not regarded in the majority of cases as false or tainted; in fact, the instances in which the courts express a positive opinion that a bogus confession has been obtained by reason of the tutoring or ill-treatment of the prisoner by the police are, we believe, few. It happens, no doubt, that the courts may think it unsafe, in the absence of other evidence, to convict upon the basis of a retracted confession, but this is not necessarily synonymous with a finding that the confession was untrue or that it had been obtained by improper means. The local Governments are in general agreement in this matter with the courts. The Government of Madras regard the idea of prohibition as unnecessary and inopportune; that of Bombay is convinced that to forbid the recording of confessions before trial would be to put a serious hindrance in the way of administering justice, which might end in the necessity of altering the law so as to make police officers competent to testify to statements made to them by accused persons. The Government of Bengal and the late Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam concur in the view of the Calcutta High Court that a man alleged to be implicated in a crime should be permitted to make any statement he likes before a trustworthy and experienced Magistrate. The Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces draws attention to various orders which are in force prescribing the proper use of confessions, and the Lieutenant-Governor of Burma regards a confession as evidence, for what it is worth, which should not be intentionally ignored; he holds that it would be disastrous to discard the evidence of confessions. The Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces considers that the abandonment of the magisterial record of confessions would in no way reduce either the temptation, or the opportunities to put pressure on accused persons, and if this, therefore, is the main object of change, it would not be achieved. The Chief Commissioner of the North-West Frontier Province would encourage the making of confessions, leaving it to the judiciary to assess them at their proper value and to bring to notice any allegations of their having been extorted by improper means.

5. In the face of this consensus of opinion we are not prepared to support the radical modification of procedure which has been suggested. Practically the upshot of the discussion is that much experience shows that confessions are frequently willingly made in circumstances which afford no ground for doubting their truth; their prompt record by a responsible Magistrate at least ensures that there is no conflict as to what the accused actually did say, and as long as statements made to a police officer are inadmissible in evidence, this result can only be secured in this way; the degree of credence to be attached to such a statement is for the court to determine, but because abuses may occur there is no cause to refuse entirely to accept this source of information; the proper remedy is to minimise the chances of its being abused. The advocates of prohibition are ordinarily actuated by two expectations, firstly, that it will do away with one of the principal incentives that the police have for ill-treating accused persons, and secondly, that it will compel the police to rely upon evidence and the pursuit of clues in place of the confession of the accused, as a means of securing the conviction of the guilty. Of these two arguments most weight attaches, probably, to the second, which usually influences those executive and police officers who incline towards this policy, although it should be possible to achieve the end in view by other means. But the prohibition of confessions would do little in itself to diminish the risk of the ill-treatment of the accused, because the obtaining of a confession is not the sole, or even the principal, motive which induces incompetent or dishonest police officers to resort to a mixture of coaxing, threatening, worry and ill-usage; their object is rather to induce the accused to give up stolen property or to indicate where some clue may be found, and the opportunities of putting pressure on him with this in view would still exist. If this is the case it seems to us to be unwise to ignore the proved fact that the novice in crime in this country is frequently unable to keep his guilty knowledge to himself, while even the more hardened criminal not infrequently insists upon unburdening his mind, and the prohibition of confessions would only deprive the courts of evidence which in many cases may be quite reliable and of value, without ensuring that a higher standard of police investigation will be attained in consequence. That confessions, after they are made, are frequently retracted is not surprising; once the accused finds himself awaiting trial there are his fellow-prisoners and, in some instances, possibly even the prison-warders, to advise him to withdraw his statement and adopt a line of defence, which they sometimes suggest. It is easy to represent that retractation can do no harm, while it may turn the scale in his favour, and after the first moment of excitement in which the confession was made these considerations may well prevail; but that fact does not inevitably indicate that the first confession was false, and for what it is worth, we are strongly of opinion that the court should be able to consider it.

6. Our conclusion in this respect need not, however, prevent the adoption of any measures calculated to discourage the police from placing reliance on confessions and thus neglecting to pursue definite clues, to diminish the risk of the ill-treatment of accused persons, or to give surer guarantees that confessions made under section 164 are really voluntary and are carefully recorded, and we proceed to discuss seriatim the various suggestions which the correspondence has revealed. Some of these were put forward in our letter of the 12th July 1911, others have been advanced by local Governments.

(a) Proposal that the police should be forbidden to question a prisoner once he has been arrested.

The Madras Government recommended the issue of instructions to make it clear that when the police are endeavouring to discover the author of a crime there is no objection to their making enquiries of, or putting questions to, any person from whom they think they can obtain useful information, but that when once an accused person has been arrested, while they may, and indeed should, listen to any statements which he may voluntarily make they should be strictly forbidden to interrogate him or press him to make a statement. The primary duty of the police after arrest is to take an accused person before a magistrate within the time prescribed in section 61 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and it is only in very exceptional circumstances that he should thereafter be returned to police custody. We understand that the instructions actually issued in Madras further stipulate that if the police desire to question an accused after arrest, the permission of the magistrate must be obtained. We welcome these suggestions as most useful, and are prepared to direct their general adoption. It is true that no rules will prevent the police from questioning a man if they wish to do so and have the opportunity while he is in their custody, but if they do so they will know that they are acting contrary to rule, and it is only by the steady pressure of instructions, that they will be made to understand that attempts to obtain confessions are not only improper but a sign of want of intelligence or a lack of industry. It would be irrational to forbid the interrogation of a man while he is merely a suspect, but once he has been arrested (and he should not be arrested on insufficient evidence) he should not be pressed to incriminate himself. The object, in fact, is to limit the use of section 164 as far as possible to cases in which the accused is really anxious to unburden his mind before a magistrate. Making allowances for differences in the Indian system as to the evidential value of statements made to the police, the remarks of Lord Brampton on the point in an address to English constables [of which we annex an extract (enclosure No. 12)] seem to us clearly to summarise the appropriate principles to be followed.

(b) Proposal that a prisoner who has confessed should, in no circumstances, be returned to police custody.

This was mooted in our letter of the 12th July 1911, and the general views of those consulted is that an absolute prohibition of remands to police custody after confession is impracticable, since the prisoner may be required to identify persons or property, to assist at the discovery of property, or, generally, to be present while his statement is being verified. It is moreover to be remembered that it is not the prisoner who has made a confession that stands in much danger of ill-treatment; it is true that he might be further tutored, but it is rather the man who has been sent up to make a statement and who, at the last moment, declines to do so, whom the police are likely to molest. While, however, a rigid restriction of remands is opposed, there is evidence that the cautious exercise of the power to remand may rightly be insisted upon, and after consideration of the various suggestions made we think the following principles should be insisted upon:—

(i) A remand to police custody should not be given unless the officer making the application is able to show good and satisfactory grounds for it; a general statement that the accused may be able to give further information should not be accepted.

(ii) No such order should be passed by an officer of lower status than a stipendiary magistrate exercising 2nd class powers.

(iii) Whenever possible, where the object of the remand is the verification of the prisoner's statement, he shall be remanded to the charge of a magistrate. (The Calcutta High Court would forbid the presence of the investigating police and direct the magistrate merely to confine his attention to verifying the facts alleged, while refraining from any attempt to obtain admissions in corroboration of new facts, but in practice, we think it impossible to attempt an absolute direction to this effect. The presence of the investigating police may, in certain circumstances, be essential, while the magistrate may be trusted to exercise a proper discretion.)

(iv) The period of the remand should always be as short as possible.

(v) A prisoner who has been produced for the purpose of making a confession, and who has declined to do so, or has made a statement which, from the point of view of the prosecution, is unsatisfactory, should in no circumstances be remanded to police custody.

(vi) So far as is practicable, confessing prisoners while in jail awaiting trial should be separated from others.

All these safeguards should materially diminish any risk of abuse of the power to remand to police custody, and at the same time they recognise the practical conditions in which investigations, etc., are conducted, which in some instances preclude the issue of absolutely rigid rules.

(c) Proposal that confessions should only be recorded by a magistrate having jurisdiction, a first class magistrate or a specially empowered 2nd class magistrate.

There is practical agreement among those consulted that the more experienced and responsible the magistrate who records a confession the better. While the risk that a junior magistrate is likely to be improperly influenced by the police is apt to be exaggerated, the presumption is that the more senior officers are more likely to observe carefully the prescribed procedure and to bring a more mature judgment to bear. Good reason has been shown for discarding the condition that the magistrate before whom the accused is brought must be the one who will commit or try the case, but we are willing to limit the recording of confessions to sub-divisional magistrates, stipendiary magistrates of the 1st class, or of the 2nd class if specially empowered. We have not overlooked the opinion of the Madras Government that an absolute restriction to 1st class magistrates, who may be on tour, may be inconvenient, or the suggestion of the Government of Bombay that recourse might be had to a magistrate of lower status if a higher officer cannot be reached within a specified time, which is analogous to a rule already current in the United Provinces to the effect that "every confession which a prisoner in police custody wishes to make should be recorded by the highest magistrate, short of the District Magistrate, who can be reached in a reasonable time." The Calcutta High Court would also recognise that a magistrate of lower status may be called in if no other is available, but on the whole, we think that such instances of practical inconvenience will be few, and we would be prepared to ignore them in view of the advantages of restricting the record of confessions to courts of status and experience.

(d) Proposal that no prisoner should be produced for record of his confession unless he has spent at least one night out of police custody.

The answers received indicate that while the principle underlying the suggestion is recognised to be sound, no definite rule to this effect is practicable. We think that all that can be done is to deprecate the immediate examination of an accused person, directly the police bring him into court, and to suggest the advisability (where possible) of giving him a few hours for reflection, in circumstances in which he cannot be influenced by the police, before his statement is recorded.

(e) Proposal that no accused person shall be produced before a magistrate to make a confession until he has been examined by the district superintendent or assitant superintendent of police.

A rule to this effect is current in the Meerut district of the United Provinces, but while it is desirable that the orders of such an officer should be taken at this stage (and equally before a remand to police custody is asked for) a definite instruction to this effect is likley to be inconvenient, as the higher police officers are frequently absent on tour. The procedure might be enjoined as desirable, when practicable.

This suggestion is offered by the Bengal Government, with whom the High Court agrees, and in the United Provinces there is an instruction to this effect, as also that the fact shall be noted on the record. The precaution seems reasonable, and we would support it for general adoption.

(g) Proposal that confessions should ordinarily be recorded in open court and during court hours, unless for exceptional reasons.

This too is favoured by the Bengal Government, the idea being, presumably, that all shall be done openly and above board. There may be circumstances requiring a different procedure, but ordinarily that suggested should be feasible, and it possesses some advantages.

(h) Proposal that confessing prisoners should be questioned by the court whether they have any complaints of ill-treatment to make.

Of the local Governments who have noticed the point, those of the United Provinces and Eastern Bengal and Assam support the idea, but the Government of Bengal is opposed to the inviting of complaints, and the Allahabad High Court notes that the procedure would be of little benefit. The Chief Commissioner of the North-West Frontier Province considers that it is open to strong objection. It appears to us that the essential point is that the magistrate should satisfy himself that the confession is being voluntarily made, and we would prescribe no direct interrogation of the kind suggested: if an accused person has been coaxed or intimidated into making a false confession, he will certainly have been tutored to deny that he has had any pressure or force put upon him.

(i) Proposal that a magistrate should question the confessing prisoner with the view of ascertaining the exact circumstances in which his confession was made and the connection of the police with it.

This is advanced by the Government of Madras, and it merges in a wider proposition which emanates from other quarters (noticeably from Burma and the Central Provinces) that it should be the endeavour of the Court to record the confession in as much detail as possible, with a view of affording material from which its genuineness can be judged and of testing whether it is freely made or is merely the outcome of suggestion. We are aware that anything like the cross-examination of the accused has been rightly deprecated by the courts, but it seems to us to be desirable that, without any attempt at heckling or endeavour to entrap the accused, a magistrate should record his statement with as much detail as possible. The more detailed a confession the greater the chances of correctly estimating its value. It is also useful to know precisely how it came to be made, to what extent the police had anything to do with the accused prior to it, and in the confession itself, the fullest possible particulars of the incidents involved. Th questions and answers would of course be recorded, and any misuse of the procedure would thus be detected. It would also be expedient that the magistrate should add to the certificate required by section 164, in his own hand, a statement of the grounds on which he believes that the confession is genuine, the precautions which he took to remove the accused from the influence of the police and the time (if any) given to him for reflection. In the United Provinces nine definite questions are prescribed calculated to ensure that the confession is being voluntarily made, but such detail is, on the whole, to be deprecated. But if a record of the general character indicated was made, the attention of the magistrate would be directed towards the possible risks against which he had to guard, and the full circumstances of the confession would be stated at the time.

7. These proposals cover the different safeguards which, after careful examination of the circumstances surrounding this difficult question, we are prepared to recommend, and if they meet with Your Lordship's approval, we will address local Governments requesting them to amend their rules in conformity with them, after such consultation with the different High Courts, etc., as may be necessary. So far as possible we would prefer to proceed by the issue of instructions, but the necessity of amending the law can be further considered when the policy to be followed is finally approved. We will await Your Lordship's reply, however, before any action on these lines is taken.

8. As it appeared to be possible that Your Lordship might desire to make public the discussions on the important questions now raised we have obtained the concurrence of the Judicial authorities who have been consulted to that course.

No. 781—790, dated Simla, the 12th July 1911.

From—A. EARLE, ESQ., C.I.E., Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,
To—The Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras ; the Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Judicial Department ; the Chief Secretary to the Government of Bengal ; the Chief Secretary to the Government of the United Provinces ; the Chief Secretary to the Government of the Punjab ; the Chief Secretary to the Government of Burma ; the Secretary to the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam, Police Department ; the Hon'ble the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces ; the Hon'ble the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor-General in the North-West Frontier Province ; the Chief Commissioner of Coorg.

I am directed to draw the attention of the Governor in Council / the Lieutenant-Governor in Council / His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor / your attention to the question of the procedure to be followed both in the production before Magistrates of accused persons to have their confessions recorded, and in the recording by Magistrates of the confessions of persons so produced. The Government of India will be glad if [with the permission of the Governor in Council / the Lieutenant-Governor in Council / His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor] the provincial regulations on this subject may be examined, and a report submitted with specific suggestions for amendment, where needed, in the light of the remarks in the following paragraphs. To facilitate the task, a précis is sent herewith of the rules in force in other provinces for your information. It is suggested that, as the subject is so closely connected with the administration of justice, the views of the highest judicial authorities may be invited and that their efforts to put down such abuses as still exist may be co-ordinated with those of the local Government.

2. The question to be considered in connection with confessions is whether, on a balance of advantages and disadvantages, it pays to have them recorded at all, before the trial commences except in very special circumstances and by order of the District Magistrate. In an unsophisticated community a confessing prisoner will ordinarily persist in his confession throughout the proceedings against him and no good is secured by hurrying him before a Magistrate prior to his trial. In other circumstances a genuine confession may possibly be obtained in the first excitement of the enquiry, but it will frequently be retracted later, and experience shows that in such a case the courts will demand such ample coroboration as would have been adequate for a conviction even without the original confession. The Government of India wish, in the first place, that this question should be considered.

3. Should, however, Madras / the Bombay Government / Bengal, etc. / you not consider it possible in present circumstances to go so far as to stop altogether the recording of confessions before trial on the motion of the police, the Government of India would wish the safeguards which already exist to be further examined with a view to increased stringency. It should, at any rate, it is thought be possible to forbid absolutely the production of prisoners before Magistrates of the third class and to give the power only to the Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case, or at least to a 1st class, or specially selected 2nd class Magistrate. It should also be considered whether it is not feasible to make it an absolute rule that once a prisoner has confessed he should in no circumstances be given back into police custody. It might also be possible to lay down that before a confession is recorded an accused person should have spent at least one night out of police custody. In a separate letter, the Government of India have suggested the adoption of the Bombay rule that all persons when first produced after arrest should be questioned as to whether they have suffered ill-treatment at the hands of the police. The Government of India hope that it will also be possible to adopt the Bombay procedure on the same subject as regards confessing prisoners. Other precautions may, I am to add, suggest themselves to [the Governor in Council / the Lieutenant-Governor in Council / His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor / you]. If so, the Government of India will be glad to consider them.

4. There remains the question of the actual procedure before the Magistrate in the event of confessions being allowed to be recorded. This is more a matter, the Government of India think, for the judicial authorities than for the local Government. Subject, however, to what they may have to say, the Government of India think that the material contained in the précis will be found to be suggestive.

Enclosure No. 1 (i).

APPENDIX.

The Punjab and the North-West Frontier Province.—Most elaborate rules have been laid down in the Punjab, chiefly by the Chief Court. Many of the instructions are merely a repetition or amplification of those contained in sections 164 and 364 of the Criminal Procedure Code, but the following are the chief additional instructions :—

(1) Magistrates before whom the police produce any person to make a confession should, before recording the confession, consider whether the person should not be taken before a magistrate of higher rank, and, in doing so, should particularly bear in mind the distance to be travelled, the time it would take to cover the distance, and the urgency and importance of the case.

(2) Magistrates deciding cases should bring to the notice of the District Ma istrate any case of a confession which has, in their opinion, been recorded by a Magistrate of the 2nd or 3rd class without adequate reason.

(3) Magistrates of the 3rd class should record confessions only under very exceptional circumstances.

(4) The magistrate is directed to desire the accused person to add his signature or mark to the confession, and, if the accused person declines to do so, the magistrate has to state the fact and the reason, if any, assigned by the accused person for so declining.

(5) The magistrate is required, before recording the confession, to record in the memorandum which he is bound by law to make, the steps taken by him to ascertain that the accused person is acting voluntarily in making a confession. In particular, he has to enquire into the circumstances under which a confession is made, the length of time a confessing prisoner has been under suspicion before arrest and the opportunities afforded to his accuser or to the police to induce a confession improperly.

(6) In considering whether the prisoner should be sent to a magisterial lock-up or be remanded to the police, the magistrate should be guided according to the opinion formed—

(i) whether the confession is voluntary or improperly obtained, and

(ii) whether, in case of opinion that the confession is voluntary, he considers that the return of the prisoner to the police is of importance to the proper preparation of the case.

Police instructions supplement the Chief Court's orders by laying down—

(1) That police officers should take accused persons, who are ready to make confessions to the highest magistrate, short of the District Magistrate, who can be reached in a reasonable time, and should avoid, as far as possible, getting a confession taken by an Honorary Magistrate who, by reason of recent appointment, inexperience or other cause, is imperfectly acquainted with the law.

(2) All cases in which the accused person is ready to make a confession should, whenever possible, be taken up personally by a gazetted police officer.

(3) That, if the investigation of a case cannot be completed within the 24 hours prescribed by section 61 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the investigating police officer should never apply (under section 167 of the Code) to a magistrate for further detention in police custody on the ground that an accused person is likely to confess, and should not apply for such detention, except upon the following grounds :—

(i) That it is necessary to compare the accused person's footprints with the tracks to and from the scene of offence.

(ii) When the accused person offers to point out stolen property or property taken in the offence, a weapon or other articles with which the offence was committed, or evidence of value in the case, and there is reason to believe that the offer is made bonâ fide.

(iii) When it is believed that persons living along the supposed route taken by the accused person might be able to identify him, and when it is considered unreasonable to expect such persons to come forward upon the chance of being able to give evidence.

(iv) Any other good and sufficient special reason.

The rules in the North-West Frontier Province are the same as those in force in the Punjab with some omissions.

Madras.—In Madras, the instructions issued by the High Court are far less elaborate than those issued by the Chief Court of the Punjab. They are briefly to the following effect :—

(1) Village magistrates are absolutely prohibited from reducing to writing or taking the signature of an accused person to any confession or statement whatever made by him.

(2) No magistrate should record any confession or statement made by an accused person under section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code until he has first recorded in writing his reason for believing that the accused is going to make such statement voluntarily, and until he has explained to the accused that he is under no obligation to answer any question at all, and warned him that it is not intended to make him an approver and that anything he says will be used against him.

(3) Confessions or statements are not in any case to be recorded, nor the warning above mentioned to be given, in the presence of the police officers who have arrested or produced the accused.

(4) If a magistrate has a doubt whether the accused is going to speak voluntarily, he may, if he thinks fit, remand him to a sub-jail before recording the confession or statement.

(5) Magistrates are particularly cautioned to guard against accused persons, who are under remand in a sub-jail, being subjected to any interference or undue influence by the police. Once a prisoner is brought before a magistrate for remand (in a sub-jail), the investigating police officers should not be allowed to have anything to do with him nor to see him, except in the presence of the magistrate.

Police instructions supplement the High Court's order—

(1) By explaining, with reference to the saving clause in section 26 of the Evidence Act, which recognises the validity of a confession made to a police officer in the presence of a magistrate, that as soon as the prisoner is produced before a magistrate that functionary, and not the police officer, must conduct all subsequent proceedings and take the statement of the accused.

(2) By directing that all oppression and trickery in regard to obtaining confessions are to be avoided by the police under pain of the severest penalties,

(3) By directing that the police are never to prosecute upon a confession alone, however spontaneously given, and explaining that the only use to make of such confessions is to follow up clues thereby given and circumstances so indicated from other unquestionable sources.

(4) By directing, with reference to the special provisions of section 27 of the Evidence Act, which allows of the proving of so much of a confession made to the police as distinctly relates to facts thereby discovered, that if a disclosure is volunteered by any person in the custody of a police officer, the latter shall, with a view to refreshing his memory, if called on to give evidence, make, if possible immediately, a memorandum of the disclosure in the precise words used by the prisoner, and read over the memorandum to the prisoner, but should not take the prisoner's signature on the paper.

The United Provinces.—In the United Provinces the High Court have not laid down any orders of their own, but have, in their rules and orders, directed a reference to the instructions issued by the local Government. The local Government has issued instructions to the following effect :—

(1) In addition to the memorandum required by section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the magistrate is required to state briefly his reasons for believing that a confession has been made voluntarily.

(2) The magistrate is required to see that the police who have been concerned in the investigation, or effected the arrest, are excluded from the Court while the accused person is being questioned, and to take down a note that this precaution has been observed.

(3) In cases of dacoity and other serious crime, it is directed that confessions should be recorded by the District Magistrate, or by a European Magistrate of some standing, in whatever part of the district the crime may have been committed.

The Police regulations lay down—

(1) That the truth of a confession should be tested before steps are taken to have it recorded.

(2) That confessions shall be recorded by the highest Magistrate, short of a District Magistrate, who can be reached in a reasonable time.

In addition to the above, a circular issued by the Inspector-General of Police, dated the 15th July 1908, warns all District Magistrates and Superintendents of Police against the tendency to rely on confessions and statements unsupported by material or corroborative evidence, and enjoins the free employment of assistant and deputy superintendents in supervising investigations with the object of counteracting the evil. Similar orders are contained in paragraph 4 of the Resolution of the local Government on the police report for 1907 and in paragraph 2 of the Resolution on the police report for 1908. These orders are further developed in paragraph 2 of the Resolution on the police report for 1909, wherein the responsibility of superintendents and their assistant and deputy superintendents in the matter is emphasised. In the Meerut district special orders obtain, directing that a confessing prisoner should not be taken before a magistrate to have his confession recorded, until he has been examined by the superintendent or by the assistant superintendent of Police, directing the police not to request tahsildars and local magistrates to record confessions, and laying down that as a general rule confessions should only be recorded before a first class magistrate at head-quarters or by a sub-divisional magistrate.

Eastern Bengal and Assam.—The instructions of the Calcutta High Court are—

(1) The magistrates should act with deliberation in examining persons brought before them for the purpose of making confessions, and should satisfy themselves that the confession is voluntary, not merely from the declaration of the accused, but from an attentive observation of his demeanour.

(2) That the police officers, who brought the prisoner, should not be allowed to be present while the confession is being taken, or to suggest questions to be put to the prisoner.

The police instructions are—

(1) That though police officers should make use of confessions if they are voluntarily made, they are warned, firstly, against working with the object of obtaining a confession, and secondly, against relying unduly on confessions or admissions to prove a case.

(2) That anything which savours of oppression or trickery in ascertaining a confession must be avoided, and that the first aim of a police officer should be to obtain the necessary circumstantial and oral evidence.

(3) Police officers are warned that confessions are often made in order to mislead the enquiring officers, are rarely true in all particulars, are frequently made in order to throw blame on other persons, or with a view to deter from further enquiry and are generally retracted in Court, in which case, if they stand alone and uncorroborated, they have little or no prohibitive value.

(4) That in many important cases the evidence of an approver is necessary to prove the organisation and doings of the gang, that, if an accused person confesses and names his accomplices, the investigating officer should at once take him before a Magistrate for the purpose of having his confession recorded, and that, after this has been done, he should consult the Superintendent of Police as to whether steps should not be taken to have the confession verified.

If the Superintendent considers the case of sufficient complexity and importance to justify this procedure being adopted he will lay the facts before the District Magistrate, who, if he agrees with the Superintendent, will depute a magistrate to verify the confession locally. During such verification the prisoner is to be in the custody of the magistrate, and the police are to have no concern with him.

Bengal.—The instructions of the Calcutta High Court are—

(1) That Magistrates should act with deliberation in examining persons brought before them for the purpose of making confessions, and should satisfy themselves that the confession is voluntary, not merely from the declaration of the accused, but from an attentive observation of his demeanour.

(2) That the police officers who brought the prisoner should not be allowed to be present while the confession is being taken, or to suggest questions to be put to the prisoner.

The police instructions are—

(1) That the police should be made to realise that a confession, when it is made, is not a final, but rather an initial stage in the investigation, and that corroborative evidence is always required.

(2) The investigating officers should be instructed not to work mainly for confessions, and not to rely on them too much, when made.

(3) That in important cases in which an accused person confesses and names accomplices, the investigating officer shall produce the accused, as soon as possible, before a Magistrate with a view to having his confession recorded, and at the same time consult the Superintendent of Police as to whether steps shall be taken to have the confession verified. If this is agreed to by the authorities concerned the superintendent will ask the magistrate to depute some one in Government service, other than a police officer, to verify the confession locally by way of corroborating the confession.

(4) That, during the period of verification, the confessing accused person shall be in the custody of the officer deputed to make the verification, and not in that of the police.

In Calcutta section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code is not in force, the Commissioner of Police taking the place of the magistrate. In the suburbs of Calcutta, confessing prisoners are taken before magistrates who have jurisdiction to try the case and to no other magistrate.

Bombay.—The Bombay High Court have issued the following instructions:—

(1) Magistrates are particularly warned to satisfy themselves that no inducement, threat or promise has been made in order to induce a confession, and to arrive, by questioning the accused, at a positive belief that a confession has been voluntarily made, before signing the certificate prescribed by section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code. In the latter connection the magistrate should, wherever possible, examine the body of the accused, provided that the accused consents to such examination, and, if there appear to be grounds for suspecting violence, he should, if possible, have the accused examined by a medical officer.

(2) Magistrates are directed to question the accused person as to the length of time during which he has been in police custody.

(3) No police officers, other than those required to secure the safe custody of the accused person, when in the opinion of the magistrate, the duty cannot be safely left to other attendants, shall be present when a confession is being recorded under section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code. In any case the police officer who made the investigation is not to be present.

(4) When recording the confession, the magistrate should note (i) the date and hour of the commission of the alleged offence, (ii) the date and hour of the first detention in police custody, (iii) the section of the Code under which the confession is recorded, and (iv) the extent to which the orders referred to under (1) and (2) above have been complied with.

(5) Before ordering the detention of an accused person in police custody under section 167 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the magistrate must explain in writing to what use he intends the presence of the accused in the hands of the police to be put, and will hear any objection which the accused person may have to offer to the proposed order.

(6) When a confession is retracted before the committing magistrate and the Court of Session, and an allegation is made of ill-usage by the police, the Court is enjoined to enquire into all the circumstances in which the confession was taken and particularly as to the length of time during which the accused person was in custody. Further, the police officer in whose custody the accused person was, when the confession was made, must be produced and closely examined.

The instructions of the Bombay Government amplify the instructions as regards the examination of the bodies of confessing prisoners so as to include the case of all under-trial prisoners (whether confessing or not) on first production before magistrates. They also enjoin that a copy of the medical officer's report as to any marks of violence found on an under-trial prisoner when he first comes to jail should accompany the prisoner to the Court before which he next appears, and provide for immediate enquiry being made if the report discloses marks of violence in regard to which the prisoner makes allegations against the police or others responsible for his arrest or custody.

The Police Manual warns superintendents against the tendency of the police to rely too much on confessions and to neglect the procuring of corroborative evidence.

Burma.—Full instructions, issued under judicial authority, are incorporated in the Lower and Upper Burma Court Manuals. The chief of these are—

(1) Confessions must ordinarily be recorded by the highest magistrate short of the District Magistrate, who can be reached in a reasonable time.

(2) The magistrate shall not record a confession under section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code, that is, before the commencement of the enquiry or trial, until he is satisfied, after questioning the person making it, that it is made voluntarily. To show that this has been done, the magistrate, before recording a confession, has to record a memorandum stating the date on which and the place at which the confession is recorded, the circumstances in which the accused was produced before the magistrate, the period during which, and the place or places at which, the accused has been in police custody, the questions asked—and these must not be of a perfunctory nature—to ascertain that the confession is really voluntarily made, the answers of the accused to the questions, the magistrate's reasons for believing the confession to be voluntarily made, and any remarks the magistrate may wish to make. Any written communication made to the magistrate by the police regarding the wish of the accused to confess is to be attached to the memorandum.

(3) When the confession of an accused person is being recorded, none of the police who have been concerned in his arrest or in the investigation of the case, shall be allowed to be present or to be within sight or hearing of the accused. No police officers shall be present, except such as may be necessary to secure the safe custody of the accused.

(4) It is laid down that it is not necessary to warn an accused before recording his confession or examination, but that, when necessary, the law should be explained to him.

(5) When an accused, on being brought before a magistrate, retracts a confession previously made and accounts for making it by charges of improper inducement, pressure or other misconduct against the police or other persons in authority, the magistrate is bound to give him an opportunity of proving his allegations. Accusations of the kind are to be throughly sifted. The magistrate is required not only to examine such witnesses as the accused may be able to produce, but to call any witnesses whom he himself may have reason to think are able to give evidence in the matter, and to hold a searching enquiry into the allegations. He must invariably record in his order his opinion whether the allegations have been proved or not, and, if the former, he must report the matter to the District Magistrate. Similar orders apply to Sessions Judges in similar circumstances.

(1) If an admission of guilt or complicity in crime is volunteered by any person, the investigating officer should, if possible, immediately make a memorandum of it in the precise words used. The memorandum is to be read over to the person making the disclosure, but such person is not to be required to sign the paper. The memorandum is to be preserved by the investigating officer with a view to refreshing his memory as to the precise words used, in the event of his being required to give oral evidence of any part of the disclosure under section 27 of the Evidence Act.

(2) The police are particularly warned against the danger of unduly relying upon confessions or admissions, and reminded of the importance of substantiating a case, in which a confession is made, by reliable evidence.

The Central Provinces.—The orders issued under judicial authority (the Judicial Commissioner) are—

(1) Where an accused person alleged to be desirous of making a confession is produced before a magistrate, and the magistrate's powers are lower than those required for trying or committing for trial (as the case may be) a person charged with the offence for which the accused has been arrested, the accused shall ordinarily be forwarded to the nearest magistrate having the higher description of powers, and escort required for the journey shall not include any of the police who have already taken part in the investigation. If for special reasons it is desirable to depart from this rule, those reasons shall be recorded by the Magistrate with his own hand.

(2) Under section 164 (3) of the Criminal Procedure Code, it is essential to the proper recording of a confession that the accused should be questioned in the first instance with a view to ascertain whether the confession is made voluntarily. The questions so put, together with the answers thereto, must be recorded before the confession itself is taken down. If any allegation of ill-treatment is made the magistrate shall there and then examine the accused's person, if the accused consents, to see whether there are any marks of injuries as alleged, and shall place on record the result of his examination. If the accused refuses to permit such examination, the refusal and the reason therefor shall be recorded. If the magistrate finds that there is reason to suspect that the allegation is well-founded he shall at once record the complaint, cause the accused to be examined by a medical officer, if possible, and, if he has not power to take up the necessary enquiry himself, forward him to the magistrate having jurisdiction.

(3) Before proceeding to record the confession itself, the magistrate must decide, upon the answers to the preliminary questions and upon the result of any examination of the accused's person, whether there is reason to believe that the confession, if recorded, will be irrelevant on any of the grounds set forth in section 24 of the Evidence Act. If he decides that the confession will be inadmissible on any of the said grounds, he will state his reasons for so thinking and will refuse to record any further statement by the accused.

(4) No attempt shall be made to draw unwilling or unguarded admissions from the accused person by close and inquisitorial questioning; but he may properly be questioned, so far as may be necessary, to enable the magistrate—

(a) to elicit from him whatever facts he is willing to state,

(b) to undetstand exactly what is his meaning and how far he intends his confession or admissions to go.

The magistrate should invariably question the accused person as to the length of time during which he has been in the custody of the police. It is not sufficient to accept the date and hour of formal arrest as entered in the police papers. Every question put must be recorded in full with the most scrupulous accuracy, together with the answer.

(5) The magistrate is to take the signature or the mark of the accused person to the record.

(6) When the confession of an accused is being recorded, none of the police who have been concerned in his arrest or in the investigation of the case should be allowed to be present or to be within sight or hearing of the accused.

(7) In every case in which the record of confession by an accused person, taken under section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code, is received by the magistrate enquiring into, or trying the case, the magistrate shall enquire from the accused person whether he made the confession purporting to have been made by him before the magistrate from whom the record of the confession was received. The confession shall be shown or read to the accused person, and the fact noted by the magistrate, and the accused person's answer to the question shall be recorded in full.

The Jail Manual provides that if any wound or mark of recent injury is observed at the medical inspection on the admission of any under-trial prisoner, the prisoner shall be questioned regarding it, and, if he attributes it to violent treatment while under arrest, the matter shall be immediately reported to the District Magistrate, or, in his absence, to the senior magistrate present at head-quarters.

The instructions of Government are—

(1) The greatest caution should be exercised by an investigating officer in placing any reliance on a confession or admission of guilt by an accused person.

(2) The practice of adopting a confession blindly and regarding it as obviating the need for further enquiry is absolutely forbidden. Every detail in it is to be put to the test and corroborated as far as possible by independent testimony, so that if, as frequently happens, it is retracted, sufficient evidence may still be forthcoming to ensure success.

(3) Superintendents and assistant superintendents are to make the subordinate police understand that no sort of pressure, direct or indirect, is to be put upon persons to make them confess.

(4) If a disclosure amounting to an admission of guilt or of complicity in crime be volunteered by any person, the investigating officer shall, if possible, immediately make a memorandum of it in the precise words used. He should read the memorandum over to the person making the disclosure, but he may not take the latter's signature on the paper. The memorandum will be preserved by the investigating officer with a view to refreshing his memory as to the precise words used, in the event of his being required to give oral evidence of any part of the disclosure under section 27 of the Evidence Act.

(5) In important cases, if the disclosure thus noted down amounts to a confession of guilt, and there is a magistrate in the neighbourhood, the person making it should be taken before the magistrate as soon as possible in order that the confession may be formally recorded in the manner prescribed by section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

Enclosure No. 2.

No. 1278-4, dated Ootacamund, the 12th June 1912.

From—The Hon'ble Mr. A. G. CARDEW, C.S.I., Acting Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras, Judicial Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department.

I am directed to reply to the Home Department letter No. 781-790, dated the 12th July 1911, dealing with the question of the procedure to be followed in the production before magistrates of accused persons to have their confessions recorded and in the recording by magistrates of the confessions of persons so produced. The Honourable the Judges of the High Court were invited to give their views on the subject and copies of their minutes are enclosed.

2. The first question raised in the letter under reply is "whether, on a balance of advantages and disadvantages, it pays to have confessions recorded at all before the trial commences." In this connection two extreme views have been expressed: that of Mr. Justice Spencer who would repeal sections 25 and 26 of the Indian Evidence Act so that confessions of the kind specified therein may be admissible as evidence for what they are worth, and that of Mr. Justice Ayling who would retain these sections but would repeal section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code and forbid the recording of confessions prior to trial.

3. The Government consider that there is much force in Mr. Justice Spencer's arguments, but they fear that it would at present be premature to repeal sections 25 and 26 of the Evidence Act. It is not only that the police have not yet reached a sufficiently high standard of trustworthiness, but also that the moral and civic sense of the general population is defective. People who have suffered loss or injury not infrequently urge the police to resort to methods of a highly irregular character, while there is among many classes an undercurrent of sympathy with the criminal.

4. At the same time the Governor in Council recognizes that of late years there has been a very great improvement in police morale. As pointed out by Mr. Justice Spencer, public attention is focussed on a few cases of misconduct while the enormous number of false charges against the police is overlooked. The Madras Government look forward confidently to yet further improvement in police methods and consider it altogether unnecessary and inopportune to repeal section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code and thus to withdraw from the hands of the investigating officer an instrument which, properly used, may be of great service, while its misuse is becoming increasingly infrequent and may be rendered still more difficult by the adoption of safeguards.

5. Moreover, it frequently happens, as observed by Mr. Justice Duthoit in the judgment reported in I.L.R., VI All., 550-551, that the confession made immediately after the commission of the offence is genuine; and even if it is subsequently retracted, the fact that it was made at once does possess some evidential value. There are again cases in which it is of the highest importance that we should have a trustworthy record of a confession at a very early stage of the investigation. For example, in the Tinnevelly conspiracy case, which was recently tried by a Special Bench of the Madras High Court, the prosecution was able to rely on confessions by different persons which had been promptly recorded in circumstances which showed that there could have been no tutoring by the police.

6. After a very careful consideration of the question in all its bearings, His Excellency the Governor in Council has come to the conclusion that the existing statute law may be left as it is, though additional safeguards should be provided to minimise any tendency on the part of the police to put pressure on accused persons to make a confession.

7. Mr. Justice Phillips has suggested that no police officer below the rank of Inspector should be allowed to ask for the record of a confession. It is usually only at the commencement of the investigation that a prisoner is willing to confess, and as it would seldom be the case that the Inspector would be present then, the Government are unable to support the suggestion. They consider that the character of the new class of sub-inspectors recently created in this Presidency may usually be trusted, and that the supervision of superior officers and the careful attention of magistrates will be sufficient to prevent or detect any improper conduct.

8. In paragraph 4 of the letter under reply, the following further safeguards have been suggested :—

(1) To prohibit the production of prisoners before third-class magistrates for recording confessions and to give such power only to the magistrate having jurisdiction in the case, or to first and specially selected second class magistrates ;

(2) To make it an absolute rule that once a prisoner has confessed he should in no circumstances be given back into police custody ;

(3) To lay down that before a confession is recorded the accused person should have spent at least one night out of police custody ; and

(4) To question all persons when first produced after arrest as to whether they have suffered ill-treatment at the hands of the police.

The Governor in Council agrees with the Government of India that no third-class magistrate should ordinarily record a confession under section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and is prepared to limit the power to the magistrate having jurisdiction in the case or to magistrates of the first class. To limit it to first-class magistrates alone would cause considerable inconvenience in this Presidency as they are touring officers for the most part and often absent from their head-quarters, and the police might have to follow them into remote places with the confessing prisoner. In this Presidency a third-class magistrate is competent to commit persons to the Sessions for trial, and it may therefore happen that he would be the magistrate having jurisdiction in the case ; but such cases are likely to be exceptional.

9. With regard to the remaining safeguards suggested in the letter under reply, I am to say that, while the Government of Madras recognize the desirability of keeping all prisoners who express a wish to confess out of police custody for some time before recording their statements, they consider that executive instructions by reason of their greater elasticity would be more suitable than a legislative provision.

This Government are further of opinion that the instructions issued by the Madras High Court for the guidance of magistrates should be amplified so as to direct attention to the importance of ascertaining exactly what happened in regard to the confessing prisoner after the arrival of the police on the scene : e.g., How long after the commission of the offence did the police come and commence investigation? When did they first question the accused? Was he kept under detention before he was formally taken into custody? If so, under what circumstances? How often was he interrogated? Was he urged by the police to make a confession? Does he understand the consequences of the confession and does he understand that he will not be remanded to police custody? The High Court is being addressed on the subject.

Orders have already been issued requiring an examination of the persons of prisoners when first produced before a magistrate.

10. With regard to the instructions which may be issued to the police, the Governor in Council would follow the English practice and make it clear that, when the police are endeavouring to discover the author of a crime, there is no objection to their making inquiries or putting question to any person from whom they think they can obtain useful information. But when once an accused person has been arrested, while they may, and indeed should, listen to any statement which he may voluntarily make, they should be strictly forbidden to interrogate him or press him to make a statement. It should be impressed on the police that, after arrest, their duty is to take the accused person before a magistrate within the time prescribed in section 61 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and that it is only in very exceptional circumstances that he should be thereafter returned to police custody under section 167 of that Code.

11. I am, in conclusion, to express regret that it was not found possible to send an earlier reply to the reference of the Government of India.

Enclosure No. 2 (i).

MINUTES OF THE HONOURABLE THE JUDGES OF THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT MADRAS.

The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Sankaran Nair.

It is quite unsafe to base a conviction on confessions which are afterwards retracted.

If the confession is to be relied upon, it must appear that no police influence was brought to bear upon the person making it. For this I would suggest that, wherever possible, the accused must be taken to the nearest magistrate and by him forwarded, not under police escort, to the nearest civilian magistrate. As ordinarily there will be only one person to make a confession, it ought not to be difficult for the magistrate to provide escort out of his own peons.

I am not in favour of any second-class magistrate recording any confession. There may be, no doubt, as in every class there are, exceptions. But as a rule, they cannot be trusted to act without fear of the police. A prosecuting police inspector's pay is Rs. 150. The police inspector's pay is Rs. 150 to Rs. 250: the sub-inspector's pay is Rs. 50 to Rs. 100. The sub-inspector is the station-house officer who has to proceed to the scene of offence first. In more serious cases the inspector follows. And the higher officials—the Assistant, Deputy and Superintendents—follow in very serious cases like murder and dacoity and are expected to supervise the investigation. It will appear therefore that the investigation is really in the hands of the sub-inspector and inspector. A magistrate's pay is one hundred rupees except a few stationary sub-magistrates who, I believe, get Rs. 120. Pay determines the social grade and influence, and even a permanent sub-magistrate's presence is not a guarantee of the voluntary nature of the confession. As a fact, however, a large percentage of these sub-magistrates are permanent clerks on a pay of Rs. 50 or thereabouts made to act as sub-magistrates and draw a pay, say, of Rs. 75. They are considered decidedly inferior in status and position to the police officers who have to deal with them. They generally hesitate to act against police wishes. This is the reason of the want of popular confidence in them so far as the police are concerned. They must be therefore left out of consideration. As to first-class magistrates I take the civilian first. When an accused person is forwarded to him by a magistrate, if he considers there has been a sufficient interval of time to escape the police influence, he may with the usual precautions record the confession. Otherwise he may be allowed to detain him in his own custody (no police guard) as long as he likes and then may record it.

As to the Indian first-class magistrates, so far as this Presidency is concerned it is not desirable to authorise them to record confessions. Under the system of appointment which once prevailed, we had young and able men appointed first-class magistrates and they formed an independent judiciary who commanded and deserved popular confidence. But the men now appointed commenced their life as clerks below Rs. 40 or Rs. 50 pay. They are probably better revenue officials, but as magistrates they do not command popular confidence. There is no harm in giving the power to record confessions to the men appointed by competition. But the distinction may be invidious and it is safer not to give such power to any non-civilian magistrate.

The other suggestion I have to make is that there should be no remand to police custody. The purpose is served by keeping him under the custody of warders or peons who have nothing to do with the police or investigation of crime.

The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Abdur Rahim.

In my opinion the most satisfactory solution of the problem would be to prohibit the use of any confession alleged to have been made by an accused person after arrest by the police and the recording of any such confession by a magistrate before trial. This will not of course prevent the police from making any use that they may find useful of any statement or information supplied by a person under suspicion or in arrest in making further investigation. It is so extremely rarely that any reliance is placed on a retracted confession that the presence of confessions made before trial on the record might well be said to have the effect of embarrassing the magistrates and judges rather than guiding them to the right conclusion. So long as such confessions are admissible in evidence the police officers will always, as experience has shown, be tempted to take the chance for a conviction on confessions alone, however stringent the instructions to them may be as to the proper use that should be made of confessions. And as it is well pointed out in the police instructions (3) of Eastern Bengal and Assam, confessions are often made to mislead the enquiring officers and, I may add, to get off from police custody at any risk. But police officers of the subordinate ranks are most often either successfully hoodwinked or are inclined to save themselves further trouble of investigation. The warning by the magistrate, however careful, is seldom of any use because the motive underlying most pre-trial confessions is to mislead the investigating officer and to be released from police custody as soon as possible and not to make a clean breast of everything, actuated by remorse. When the latter motive undoubtedly exists my experience shows that there is no difficulty in securing sufficient evidence to support a conviction without the confession, and such confessions are not usually retracted.

If pre-trial confessions are to remain admissible in evidence, I agree with Sankaran Nair, J., that the sub or stationary magistrates should not be authorized to record them and that they should be recorded by a civilian magistrate of some standing. I approve of the suggestion in paragraph 4 of the Government of India letter that before the recording of the confession the accused should be kept at least for one night out of police custody, and I should add that such arrangements be made for the accused's detention in the meantime as to effectively preclude all police influence.

As regards remands to police custody, it is my experience that the magistrates, generally speaking, are too prone to grant the application of the police officer and are seldom alive to the requirements of law on the subject. I am afraid that many magistrates of the subordinate rank have not the courage, when such an application is made, to properly examine the grounds for the application and to refuse the application when there are no sufficient grounds for remand. On this point the police instructions of the Punjab Government (3) are worthy of adoption, but I should add that the reasons should be fully and clearly stated in the application to the magistrate which ought to be made in writing. Instructions should also be issued to magistrates on the same basis. I should also suggest the adoption of the Bombay rule (5) that the accused or his pleader, if he is represented, should be heard with respect to the application for remand to custody. I should not authorise any but first-class magistrates to make orders for remand to police custody in any case.

The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Sundara Aiyar.

I agree in the view that only first-class magistrates should record confessions, but I would not confine the power to civilian magistrates. I would provide that a magistrate should take steps to keep the accused free of police influence for at least 24 hours, for a longer time generally. I would not provide that a confession should not be recorded before the regular trial or inquiry. Witnesses are often unwilling to depose in criminal investigations, but the fact that the accused has confessed of his own accord may induce them to depose.

The magistrate should question the accused about his treatment by the police and record any ill-treatment he may speak to.

I agree that when an accused is sent to a magistrate for the purpose of his confession being recorded he should not be sent under police escort.

The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Ayling.

In my opinion it does not pay (to quote paragraph 3 of the Government of India's letter) to get confessions recorded between arrest and commencement of trial; and the soundest plan would be to discontinue the practice altogether. So far from hampering, I believe such a step would have the most beneficial effect on police investigation and the administration of justice. At present, once such a statement is recorded, the average police officer considers the case is safe, and relaxes his efforts if he does not discontinue them altogether: in the majority of cases the confession is subsequently retracted, the court refuses to act on it, and unless good evidence has been secured before the confession, the case probably fails. In the comparatively few cases in which the accused adheres to his confession he would probably have confessed in the course of the trial without any preliminary recording thereof. If on the other hand the police knew that the confession would not be proved against the accused they would be driven to use all information furnished by him in the legitimate way, i.e., as a basis for further investigation, and I firmly believe the percentage of convictions would show a marked increase.

I am no believer in the efficacy of any of the measures designed to protect accused persons from police influence. It would be most unsafe to send prisoners charged with grave crime to a first-class magistrate with only peons for escort: and such a measure would not prevent the police having as much opportunity as they liked while on the journey to influence the prisoners. Even the distinction between the sub-jail and the police lock-up is in my opinion too much relied on. It is no doubt not so easy for the police to get hold of a man in the sub-jail: but it is not really difficult, especially if the sub-jail officer (usually the sub-magistrate) is amenable. So also with the status of the magistrate recording the confession. No doubt a first-class magistrate can be better trusted than a magistrate of lower class to put his foot down if he sees reason to suspect improper influences. But it all depends on the prisoner himself complaining and throwing himself on the magistrate's protection. I do not remember ever hearing of a case in which this was done. The fact is the police do not put a man whom they have induced to confess, unless they are pretty sure he will not give them away: and the preliminary questioning, etc., by a busy magistrate with plenty of other work to do is apt to be of a somewhat perfunctory character.

If it be deemed unsafe to amend section 26 of the Evidence Act, until some experience is obtained, I would suggest that departmental orders be issued forbidding the police to put up prisoners before a magistrate for recording confessions without the orders of the District Magistrate: whenever the latter sanctions such a step, he should report the fact to Government, stating briefly his reasons.

The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Bakewell.

The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Spencer.

I endorse most of what Ayling, J., has written, and so far as confessions mean statements of accused persons upon which a conviction may be based without any corroborative evidence, I would abolish the taking of them altogether between the arrest and the trial. I may be unorthodox in my opinion, but I would go a good deal farther and amend sections 25, 26 and 27 of the Evidence Act. The status of the police has been raised in recent years by introducing the sub-inspector grade, by endeavouring to recruit the more responsible native officer from a better class of families, and by remodelling the department. The best way to further improve the morality of the force is to encourage them to take a straight path in the detection of offences by showing a little more confidence in their rectitude than is now the fashion. Attention is apt to be focussed on the real cases that come to light from time to time of that survival of what used to be a common practice of a semi-barbarous country, namely, torture to procure confessions; the public is invited to become hysterical on the subject: and we easily lose sight of the enormous number of false complaints of extorted confessions, of foisted property, and of concocted evidence recklessly preferred against the police by criminals who see their only hope of salvation to lie in an attempt to prejudice the mind of the court against the persons responsible for their prosecution. The disastrous effect upon the morality of the population produced by the vast proportion of grave crimes that go unpunished owing to the limitations placed upon police investigation and the strict exclusion of statements made by accused persons is also a matter which deserves serious consideration. In the flush of excitement after the commission of a crime a man will often freely publish what he has done, but during the uneventful days that he spends in the sub-jail before his trial commences he has time for sober reflection on the probable consequences of what he has done and said, the natural desire of self-preservation reasserts itself and he denies all that he has said, or he attributes it to police influence, knowing that the police have a bad name and that his explanations will be readily accepted. The statement of a criminal at the moment of his arrest, if the account of it can be trusted, is often of the greatest importance. I would instance the case of the lascar who was recently convicted and hanged in England for the murder of a stewardess on a P. and O. steamer and made an incriminating statement or question regarding himself to the police officer who took charge of him on the arrival of the steamer in the Docks. The evidence of the police officer was admissible at a trial in an English Court, and a conviction was the result. To take another concrete instance. In the Madura district a man murdered his wife in the dead of night, when she was lying asleep in a house, the doors of which were open. Then he rushed out and told the villagers whom he met what he had done. When he was taken before a magistrate he denied all concern with the murder and suggested that it was the work of thieves and persisted in this defence throughout the trial although there was no evidence to support his version and no indication of thieves having come. On the side of the prosecution there was no corroborative evidence. A blood-stained piece of wood was found beside the corpse, but there was nothing to show who in particular had used it on the deceased's head. Although everybody knew the man to be guilty, the case ended in acquittal, because according to reported decisions a retracted confession, even if reduced to writing by a magistrate acting in conformity with section 164 and the Criminal Rules of Practice, cannot be acted upon unless corroborated by independent evidence, and verbal accounts of what an accused said must stand on an even lower level.

The statements of the accused were inadmissible in evidence as conduct under section 8 of the Evidence Act, because Explanation I to that section defines "conduct" as not including statements unless those statements accompany and explain acts other than statements. I believe I am right in thinking that such statements could be proved against a man in English law. If so, my point in citing these two instances of actual cases is this. It is time that an attempt should be made to raise our guardians of the peace to the level of those in England and other European countries and to encourage in them a sense of self-respect by showing we trust them in all cases where they prove themselves worthy of trust. Evidence may freely be admitted to contradict them or to prove that individual policemen are unworthy of credit, but it is not reasonable that a policeman just because he is a policeman should be trusted less than any one else on earth. The remedy that I propose is to abolish the rule of evidence that statements made to the police are not admissible in evidence; to lay it down that as against those that make them, confessions are not necessarily conclusive evidence of the matter stated in them, unless they are made by an accused person at his trial in court when pleading to a charge; to place the responsibility on courts of discriminating between the value of confessions made under varying circumstances and in every case allowing evidence to be adduced as to the circumstances under which they were made; and impose on sub-jail officers, who are generally magistrates, the duty of inquiring of all under-trial prisoners at their admission into jail whether they have any complaint to make of their treatment since their arrest, of recording their statements in full if they allege ill-treatment, and of having their bodies promptly examined by the nearest medical officer in such a case. Superintendents and Assistant Superintendents of Police should be instructed to constantly impress on their subordinates the importance of not relaxing their efforts to unravel cases to the bottom simply because one or more of the persons suspected to have committed the crime has made some sort of admission. As laid down by the Government of the Central Provinces in the words of Appendix II to the Government of India's letter the greatest caution should be exercised by an investigating officer in placing any reliance on a confession or admission of guilt by an accused person, and the practice of adopting a confession blindly and regarding it as obviating the need for further inquiry should be absolutely forbidden. Where however a statement has been made by an accused person in the hearing of any one and it has a direct bearing on the issues before the court, evidence of it should be admissible for what it is worth, and courts should be allowed full latitude in weighing such statements and assessing them at their proper worth. Confessions are made for various reasons. Some are intended to throw the authorities off the scent. Some are genuine. The danger lies in treating them all alike.

The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Phillips.

I do not agree that confessions before trial should be altogether prohibited, They may be induced by police influence or they may not, and I think that the recording magistrates should make a full inquiry in order to satisfy themselves that the confessions are voluntary before they proceed to record them. In my experience I have found that genuine confessions are retracted just as often as induced confessions, and it is extremely rare to find a case when a confessing prisoner, who has been confined in a large District or Central Jail for some time before trial, does not retract his confession even when made before a committing magistrate. The fact that a confession has been recorded may induce the police to slack off in investigation, but now that the general status of the department has been raised, I do not think that such slackness is so frequent as it used to be. It is well known in the Police Department that a retracted confession by itself will not secure conviction, and consequently an intelligent police officer will continue his efforts to secure corroborative evidence. As remarked by Sundara Aiyar, J., the existence of a confession is often an inducement to witnesses to come forward and give evidence, and this is a point which should not be lost sight of. I think it will be generally admitted that there has been considerable improvement in the work of the police in recent years, and I think that to prohibit confessions altogether would discourage police officers as casting an additional slur on their work. They have been quite sufficiently abused in the past and it might be advisable now to give them some encouragement in the hope that the improvement which has begun may be continued.

It is of course necessary that rules should be prescribed with a view to prevent police officers from inducing confessions by torture or otherwise, but it must not be overlooked that if the police wish to evade the restrictions placed upon them they can generally find some means of doing so. It is therefore a question for consideration whether it is advisable to increase those restrictions or whether it would not be better to trust more to the police themselves, and I think that the necessary restrictions might be laid down in departmental instructions. If it is laid down that no police officer below the rank of Inspector should be allowed to ask for a confession to be recorded, I think that some weight should be attached to his request. I do not think that it is advisable to restrict the right of recording confessions to first-class covenanted magistrates. They are already so overworked that it is doubtful whether a perfunctory inquiry by them would be of more value than an inquiry by a second class magistrate or a deputy magistrate. A civilian magistrate would certainly not be amenable to police influence, but I am inclined to think that the fear of wrongful police influence is somewhat exaggerated. Why should not a man of the rank of Inspector be trusted to do his work properly, subject of course to the control of his superior?

The question of custody of the prisoner before and after confession is also one of the points which in my opinion is not very material. If the police are bent on exerting a wrong influence, they can do so through peons or sub-jail warders. All that is required is that the recording magistrate should satisfy himself that the confession is voluntary, and for this purpose he should personally see that the prisoner is kept away from the police for some reasonable period and question him closely as to the reason for his confession.

I think, therefore, that the rules in force in Madras ought to be sufficient to ensure the proper recording of confessions. The question is really one of the proper working of the Police Department, and I do not think that that department will be improved so long as they are given to understand that under no circumstances will police officers be trusted to do their work as it should be done.

The Hon'ble the Chief Justice.

The difficulty of this question is illustrated by the divergence of view of the civilian Judges who have had practical experience, at first hand, of the working of the present system.

Although I think there is considerable force in Ayling J.'s observations, I am not prepared to adopt his suggestion that in no case should a confession made after arrest and before trial be admissible in evidence. Even if it were adopted it would have to be subject to the proviso that the fact that a prisoner had confessed might be taken into consideration in connection with the question of sentence if he is convicted. A prompt confession, made in circumstances which leave no room for doubt as to its truth and voluntary character, is a matter to be considered in the prisoner's favour in determining the sentence. This is a point which seems to have been lost sight of.

On the other hand, I do not think the time has come for making confessions to the police admissible in evidence, and leaving it to the Court to attach such weight to the confession as it thinks fit, which I understand to be Spencer J.'s suggestion.

As regards this Presidency, I hope I am not taking an unduly optimistic view in thinking that the morale of the police has improved and that it will continue to improve. Even if this is not so, I think the subordinate judiciary and the subordinate police must realise by this time that a confession, as the foundation of a case for the prosecution, is of very little use.

I would leave the statute law as it is.

As regards this Presidency, I think the High Court orders, supplemented by the existing police instructions, if honestly observed and enforced, ought to be sufficient to prevent abuses. But in this matter something in the nature of a uniform Code, applicable generally throughout India, seems desirable, and to secure this end I should raise no objection to the adoption of the Bombay rules.

The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Benson.

The papers were circulated when I was on leave, so I do not now think it necessary to record any lengthy minute on the questions raised. I may, however, say that I entirely agree with the minute of Phillips, J., and would accept the conclusions of the Chief Justice.

The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Wallis.

I am not prepared to recommend that confessions should be made inadmissible in evidence. The result of so doing would probably be the increased fabrication of evidence to prove what was well known but could not otherwise be proved. On the whole I regard the admissibility of confessions as the lesser evil. I agree generally with the conclusions of the Chief Justice.

Enclosure No. 3.

No. 3780, dated Bombay Castle, the 17th May 1912.

From—C. A. KINCAID, ESQ., C.V.O., Secretary to the Government of Bombay, Judicial Department,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department.

I AM directed to refer to Home Department letter No. 781-790, dated the 12th July 1911, on the subject of the recording by magistrates of the confessions of accused persons before trial and to reply as follows.

2. The Governor in Council is unable to accept the premises on which the proposals embodied in the above letter are based. These are—

(a) that in an unsophisticated community an accused who makes a confession is likely to adhere to it throughout the course of the proceedings and that accordingly nothing is gained by having his confession recorded before the actual commencement of his trial;

(b) that in the case of retracted but genuine confessions the Courts will demand such corroborative evidence as would be sufficient in itself to secure convictions.

With regard to the first premise, I am to point out that in the interval between arrest and trial a prisoner, however unsophisticated, is necessarily subject to many influences tending to make him retract. In jail it is impossible to keep him separate from other prisoners, often old offenders, who explain to him the folly of telling the truth. He also receives similar advice from the friends and especially the lawyers who visit him.

With regard to (b), I am to point out that it has not been the rule of the Courts of this Presidency to demand in the case of retracted confessions such ample corroborative evidence as would be sufficient to prove guilt without any confession at all. Confessions of which the genuineness is apparent from their fullness and consistency and by the circumstances in which they have been recorded have always been regarded by the Bombay High Court as evidence so valuable as to justify, even when uncorroborated, a conviction.

3. The Governor in Council has obtained the opinions of the Judges of the High Court and of a number of the most experienced District Magistrates and District Judges of the Presidency. In view of the almost unanimous opinions expressed by these officers the Governor in Council is convinced that to forbid the recording of confessions before trial would be to put a serious hindrance in the way of administering justice. The accused will continue to be subjected to the influences already mentioned and will simply not confess at all. And, since in India the police cannot count on the public for assistance, the result will be a serious diminution in the detection and punishment of crime. Indeed, if the practice of recording confessions before magistrates were done away with, it would probably in the end prove necessary to alter the law in such a way as to make police officers competent to testify to statements made to them by accused persons, a step which would bring the criminal procedure of India into line with that of other countries.

4. I am to quote the remarks made by Sir Narayan Chandavarkar on the general question of the value of confessions in India :—

> "It has been remarked in some quarters that the readiness with which illiterate and ignorant persons accused of crime confess in a large number of cases at the beginning of police investigation and retract the confession later on when trial has commenced shows that those confessions are, generally, the result of police torture or influence. This remark ignores one fact which is patent to any one who knows the character of our people, especially the illiterate and ignorant portion of them. In ordinary life we find that when a servant is suspected of anything wrong he will first deny, but after a little questioning he will give evasive answers and at the last admit. The fact is, our people cannot successfully conceal their acts or motives. Hence it is that when a man, who has committed a crime, is arrested, he will, after a little questioning, make a clean breast of it. The unsophisticated man in this country may be given to lying but he does not know, because he has not learnt, the art of persisting in his lie and keeping his own counsel so as to mislead others for any length of time."

5. With regard to the restrictions proposed by the Government of India, the Governor in Council is of opinion that the rules already in force in this Presidency constitute ample safeguards. The Governor in Council is of opinion that it is inadvisable to lay down any rules as to the length of time the accused should be out of police custody before he is allowed to make a confession. Such a matter is essentially one for the exercise of the magistrate's discretion.

As to the proposal that an accused who has confessed should in no case be handed back to police custody, the Governor in Council would point out that it is often immediately after a confession that it is most essential for the police to have the accused handed over to them. He may be required to point out and identify his associates and to hand over property.

6. The Governor in Council is, however, prepared to accept the suggestion that, as far as possible, confessions should be recorded by the magistrate of the highest class available and that an accused should be taken before a third class magistrate only when it is impossible to produce him before a magistrate of higher rank within 12 hours. If this proposal meets with the approval of the Government of India the Governor in Council will move the High Court to embody it in their circular orders.

7. The Honourable Mr. M. B. Chaubal has made two suggestions, and the minute recorded by him is attached to this letter.

Enclosure No. 3 (i).

Minute recorded by the Hon'ble Mr. M. B. Chaubal, dated the 25th April 1912.

Though I believe that there is still considerable improper influence exercised by the police both in obtaining confessions and in making prisoners stick to them in the committing magistrate's courts, I agree that it will not do to give up retracted confessions and make them altogether inadmissible in evidence, and that such a step in the present state of efficiency in the police force must prejudicially affect the volume of crime in the country.

With reference to the concluding portion of paragraph 4 of the letter under reply, I desire to suggest for the consideration of the Government of India two proposals which I believe are calculated to materially check objectionable police practices and give to accused persons a fairness of trial which I consider desirable in the interests of judicial administration—

(a) I desire that section 162 of the Criminal Procedure Code should be so amended as to secure to the accused or his pleader free access to police papers and to the statements of witnesses during the police investigation, certainly in the Courts of Session and perhaps also in the magistrate's courts. I am of opinion that there can be no useful purpose served by keeping the course of police investigation a sealed book to the accused or his counsel after such investigation has terminated, while on the other hand such access is likely to give to the accused opportunities for exposing some of the unfair practices resorted to by the police, and to enable the trying Judge to correctly appreciate the worth of the witnesess for the prosecution. A witness, e.g., has made three or four varying statements on material points during the police investigation. It is only his last and finished version which appears before the court, but the accused is often-times entirely ignorant of the changes and improvements in the witness' story, and is not in a position to show the Judge the degree of credibility which ought to attach to the statements of such a witness. Under the law as it stands at present, the accused is entirely at the mercy of the trying Judge who may or may not have been diligent enough to wade through the police papers, and at the mercy of the public prosecutor, who in the mofussil is not often fair enough to point out to the Judge the previous variations in the story of the witness. There is no reason why as regards these papers the prosecuting counsel should be in a position of advantage as compared with the accused's counsel. The desirability of this change would naturally not strike trying magistrates, but there is reason to believe that many Sessions Judges and the entire bar would be glad if the said section were amended as proposed. The desirability of such an amendment has been forced upon me during a fairly large practice at the bar extending over 27 years.

(b) The other suggestion I desire to make relates to what are known as magisterial lock-ups. There is one of these at almost every taluka station, and under-trial prisoners are confined in these. Though known as magisterial these lock-ups are controlled and guarded by the same subordinate police force to which the investigating police belong. Practitioners in criminal courts often complain that these lock-ups are easily accessible to the investigating police, notwithstanding rules and departmental circulars to the contrary, and in some cases these complaints are justified. There is of course no positive ill-treatment while prisoners are there, but if confessions have been obtained wrongly, this easy access is frequently utilized for such intimidation or inducement as will make the accused stick to his confessional statement. The remedy I suggest in order to mitigate and check this evil is that the police manning these places of confinement should be a separate branch of the police, and their leave, promotions, etc., should all be entirely in the hands of the District Magistrates.

Enclosure 3 (ii).

Minutes recorded by the Honourable the Judges of the High Court. Bombay, re recording of confessions.

With regard to the first question on which our opinion is asked, viz., whether, "on a balance of advantages and disadvantages it pays to have confessions recorded at all, before the trial commences except in very special circumstances and by order of the District Magistrate," I have the honour to state as follows.

I must premise that I speak from the point of view of a barrister for 21 years and a Judge of the High Court for nearly eleven years in the Town and Island of Bombay only.

I am strongly of opinion that if the recording of voluntary confessions were done away with the course of justice throughout this Presidency would be most seriously interfered with. I have sat frequently on the Appellate Side; so am speaking with authority, as to that and the Original Side of the High Court.

For many years I have thought that the current views as to pressure and torture by the police are much exaggerated. With some Judges the idea is almost a "fetish." It is common knowledge that the ordinary native in India will, when he is in a strait, primâ facie say what he thinks will please the Sahib. This peculiarity often leads them to say things which the inexperienced addressee styles untruths but which really are not so. This I am convinced is the motive power at the bottom of a large percentage of confessions. The next point is that where more than one person are engaged in a crime and are arrested, each one fears that the other will tell on him and he wants to be first in the field with his statement.

This is a striking feature in dacoities and similar crimes.

Another thing that prompts the majority of confessions is that the accused thinks that by confessing he has a better chance of the Sirkar taking a more lenient view of his case. I am absolutely convinced—after having given many hours' reflection to the matter—that to do away with confessions would prevent the greater number of serious offences being detected at all. In the present state of unrest in India such a step would in my opinion be nothing short of a fatal error. Moreover, such a step would be a fatal blow to the prestige and position of the police in India who—looking at the late charges against them in Calcutta—have lately been seriously depreciated. It is their duty to detect crime, and after all if an accused person is foolish enough to give himself away by confessing he has only himself to blame. At the same time if I ever had a suspicion that a confession had been extorted by improper means I would insist on the fullest inquiry, and, if the offender were guilty, would punish him with the utmost severity.

With regard to the second point submitted in paragraph 4—

In my opinion a third class magistrate is as qualified as one of a higher grade to take a confession. To deprive them of this power would in my opinion be to cast a certain slur upon them.

The sections of the Criminal Procedure Code and the rules are plain enough to the poorest understanding and I would deprecate such an alteration as is suggested.

If it can be worked, I see no objection to ordering that, after his confession, the accused be not placed again in police custody.

In conclusion I do not see how the Bombay rules can be improved upon and would suggest that they be adopted in toto in all the other Presidencies and Burma.

LOUIS P. RUSSELL.

The first question proposed in the letter of the Government of India "in connection with confessions is whether, on a balance of advantages and disadvantages, it pays to have them recorded at all, before the trial commences, except in very special circumstances, and by order of the District Magistrate." In my opinion, it will pay. Experience shows that in a large majority of cases, in which confessions have been recorded before trial, they have been retracted at the trial and that the retractation is due, where the accused is defended by counsel or pleader, to legal advice, and where he is not so defended, to his consciousness that, since he is going to be tried and is called upon to defend, the safest course for him is to let the prosecution prove its case and try his luck. What will happen, therefore, if the proposal in question passes into law, is that in almost every case the accused will not confess after trial has begun. And this result will have an unfortunate effect on the detection and punishment of crime in a country where the first and greatest difficulty in this respect has long been felt to lie in the passivity of the people, who will not willingly come forward to help the police, to give evidence and bring a criminal to justice.

Further, the proposal is open to this objection that "special circumstances," under which alone it is suggested a confession should be recorded, is a vague term. No doubt the District Magistrate is, according to the proposal, to determine whether "special circumstances" exist. If what in some quarters is alleged is true, viz., that the police are corrupt and extort confessions, it will not be difficult for police officers to make out special circumstances and get the District Magistrate's order in almost every case. They have only to satisfy him that it is impossible to get independent evidence, because witnesses are reluctant to come forward. And such a case may easily be made out in a lage number of crimes committed, having regard to the passivity of the people in this country. What District Magistrate will deem it expedient to refuse to give an order, if the police come and say: "Sir, it is so difficult to get to the bottom of this offence, unless you permit the accused's confession to be recorded. Or else the crime will go undetected"? Will the District Magistrate in such a case take the responsibility on himself and let the police shirk theirs on the ground that the District Magistrate has made the crime impossible to detect?

Such a proposal would be indeed welcome and I should endorse, if all that has been alleged against the police at this day were either wholly or mostly true. I have no intimate knowledge of the state of things in this respect in the parts of India other than the Presidency of Bombay. Confining myself to this Presidency, I venture to think that the police to-day are an improvement on what they were, say, 15 or 20, or 30 years ago. In the first place, our policemen have been, generally speaking, drawn from among the people of whom they form a part socially. That gives them the advantage of local knowledge and sympathy. Secondly, corruption is very much less now than it used to be in the police, and the native police force in its higher grades is officered by men better in point of education and enlightenment than their predecessors of, say, a quarter of a century ago. Thirdly, the severity with which policemen who have been found to have extorted confessions are punished by the Courts has, I believe, proved a great deterrent. In this Presidency at any rate I have observed during the period of my judicial experience, that there has been no remissness on the part of those at the head of the police to bring to justice police officers found torturing accused persons for the purpose of extorting confessions. And in this connection I should call attention to the significant fact that during these three or four years, though in and outside the House of Commons grave charges have been made against the police and they have been assailed, responsible police officers at the head of the Department have not been slow to detect and bring to justice cases of police extortion. This shows that there is a wholesome feeling growing in the police force, that its higher officers are alive to their responsibility, and are not given to shielding their department, where public interests and welfare are concerned.

It has been remarked in some quarters that the readiness with which illiterate and ignorant persons accused of crime confess in a large number of cases at the beginning of police investigation and retract the confession later on when trial has commenced shows that those confessions are, generally, the result of police torture or influence. This remark ignores one fact which is patent to any one who knows the character of our people, especially the illiterate and ignorant portion of them. In ordinary life we find that when a servant is suspected of anything wrong, he will first deny but after a little questioning, he will give evasive answers and at last admit. The fact is our people cannot successfully conceal their acts or motives. Hence it is that when a man who has committed a crime is arrested, he will, after a little questioning, make a clean breast of it. The unsophisticated man in this country may be given to lying, but he does not know, because he has not learnt, the art of persisting in his lie and keeping his own counsel so as to mislead others for any length of time.

If these facts are borne in mind, I think Government will perceive that it will not conduce to the better administration of justice to do away with the recording of confessions except after trial has commenced. Such a restriction will hamper justice and only succeed in promoting crime.

Nor can I approve of the proposal to forbid absolutely the production of prisoners before magistrates of the third class and to give power only to the magistrate having jurisdiction in the case or at least to a first class, or specially selected, second class magistrate. What is the complaint against magistrates of the third class? They are no longer the inefficient men that their predecessors years ago were. They are drawn from the educated classes; they know the people. And if a magistrate, whatever his class, knows his duty, he can by careful inquiry of the prisoner brought to him, after taking all prudent and necessary precautions, find out whether in confessing, he is speaking voluntarily and telling the truth or is telling a story manipulated by the police. All depends on the kind of men chosen as magistrate, not on the class or grade they occupy. I venture to think our magistrates of the third class are upon the whole intelligent men who know what it is to record a confession and what responsibility it entails.

As to the proposals to make it an absolute rule that once a prisoner has confessed, he should in no circumstance be given back into polce custody, and that before a confession is recorded, an accused person should have spent at least one night out of police custody, I have to say this. All such rules are good and will serve as useful safeguards, so far as they go. But it should be remembered that our Courts in dealing with confessions look to all the surrounding circumstances and act upon them only when they are satisfied that there has been nothing suspicious about the conditions in and under which a confession was recorded. If a few rules by way of restrictions are made, some magistrates and judges are apt to think that that is all they have to look to before accepting or rejecting a confession. The matter is one which after all has to be left to the sound discretion of the Court. Our Evidence Act has wisely provided that a Court should not act upon or admit as evidence a confession which appears to it to have been extorted. The use of the word appear, as contrasted with the word proved in the Evidence Act, shows how large a discretion is given to the Court. And whatever rules are made, however fine they may look on paper, all must depend on the one hand on the soundness of judgment of those who administer justice and on the personnel of the police force on the other. It is improvement in these directions that alone can effectually remove such abuses as exist. These abuses have lessened considerably owing to the improvement made in those directions.

N. G. CHANDAVARKAR.

The 18th September 1911.

The only question in this letter from the Government of India on which I hold a very definite opinion is the question "whether, on a balance of advantages and disadvantages, it pays to have confessions recorded at all." I am decidedly of opinion that it does pay, in the sense that it materially aids what I conceive to be the principal object of criminal law and procedure, namely, the detection and punishment of offenders. I would not object to any reasonable method of still further safeguarding confessions, but I am of opinion that to rule them all out as inadmissible in evidence is quite unnecessary and would be little short of disastrous.

2. If that heroic step was ever to have been taken, it should have been taken many years ago. There is no necessity for it now in the Bombay Presidency, where, as I believe, police oppression in extorting confessions is already of rare occurrence, and is every year becoming rarer.

3. It is worth observing that in this country, so far as my observation goes, there is virtually no public opinion in favour of the law as against the individual criminal: that he is "a poor man with a family" or "is not likely to do it again" is popularly a grave and serious argument for the offender's escape. And I cannot doubt that to a large number of the persons who conduct the campaign against the police and confessions it is a matter of serene indifference whether offenders against the criminal law go unpunished or not. That, however, is not a view which is possible to a civlised Government responsible for law and order; such a Government cannot lightly throw away a useful weapon in a country where their armoury against crime is necessarily meagre and imperfect.

4. That such is in fact the position of an Indian Government is manifest; the causes operating to produce this effect are, or should be, so obvious to any one discussing the problem that I will allude only to one of them. Our criminal law, which (for historical reasons quite apart from India) is extraordinarily tender to an accused person, depends for its success on the realisation of the underlying assumption that the citizen is willing to help the State, willing to give information of crime brought to his knowledge, willing to give information of crime brought to his knowledge, willing to give evidence in Court against the accused. This assumption is grotesquely untrue in India, where (I speak as my experience suggests) the only willing witness is the false witness or the personally interested witness. That is one great and constant difficulty in the way of the police in this country, where the sense of any communal interest has not yet developed.

5. There are many other difficulties equally familiar. I have no time to refer to them, nor should it be necessary to do so. It is obvious, I think, that if, in the hands of an experienced magistracy and judiciary, confessions are of real assistance in securing the punishment of crime, they ought not to be abondoned. On this point one can speak only from his own experience: my experience is that in numerous cases the existence of a confession which, though afterwards retracted, was, to my mind, clearly voluntary and true, has turned the scale, enabling me, with clear conscience and convinced mind, to convict the offender of his guilt.

6. I entirely deny that considerations adduced from English life and English characteristics can properly be appealed to as guides in this matter. In England, it is constantly said, the criminal generally does not confess. Quite so. It is not the English way (if one excludes special crimes of passion). But I believe that the normal Indian is far more prone to confess. I believe that, conscious of his own guilt, and suddenly confronted by authority, specially if that authority be armed with the smallest piece of apparent proof, the Indian is apt to collapse and confess, where the Englishman with centuries of different training behind him would harden his heart and make no sign.

7. For these and many similar reasons, including the skill and trustworthiness of our superior magistrates and our judges, I should record my vote decidedly against the proposal to make all confessions inadmissible.

8. But I quite agree that no effort should be spared (as, I believe, none is spared now) to drive home to the Indian police constantly and continuously that their first business is to work for the collection of evidence, not for the obtaining of confessions. I would agree even with the Meerut rule that a confessing prisoner should not be taken before a magistrate to have his confession recorded until he has been examined by the Superintendent of Police or his Assistant; indeed my own opinion has long been that, in the case of any confession, of any serious offence, the intervention of a gazetted officer of police might with advantage be more frequent than it now is.

9. I also see no objection to the proposal that the power to record confessions should be reserved to first class magistrates or the magistrate having jurisdiction in the case.

S. L. BATCHELOR.

The 14th September 1911.

The Government of India have ascertained that the Hon'ble Chief Justice Sir Basil Scott entirely agrees with the opinion recorded by the Hon'ble Justice Batchelor.

I am and for the last twenty years have been strongly of opinion (a) that retracted confessions should be excluded altogether, (b) that we should delete section 24 from the Evidence Act. As the law stands Sessions Judges in the mufassal are required to do violence to their conscience or intellect every time they admit a retracted confession.

2. For every Sessions Judge of any experience, who knows the native, would upon rigorous self-examination, I think, admit that the average mufassal criminal would never confess if left entirely to himself.. In fact he confesses literally in shoals. The Sessions Judge of experience who knows the mufassal police as well as he knows the native, in his heart knows very well WHY.

3. It is in my opinion safe to say that, excepting violent crimes, what I call passional crimes, when the murderer is half mad, or actually proud of what he has done, all other retracted confessions have been directly or indirectly induced by improper means. It is impossible within the limits of a readable note to exhaust the reasoning by which I hope I could convince any reasonable and unprejudiced man of the certain truth of this conclusion. Where actual torture is not used, the widespread belief that it ordinarily is used upon obstinate suspects, and the knowledge that it will be used, may induce a number of criminals who would not otherwise confess to do so in anticipation of the methods they dread being employed upon them. This is as far as any reasonable man, who is acquainted with the conditions prevailing in the remoter parts of the mufassal, would go in the way of concession to those who believe that all the confessions made by prisoners while in police custody and uniformly retracted at the Sessions trial, are voluntary. And I may add that the opinions of Judges whose experience has been restricted to the criminals and police of the Presidency towns, is relatively valueless on this point. They do not know and cannot know what goes on in the mufassal. I feel that I must enter this protest because I anticipate that judged by numbers only, I shall be in a minority, if not altogether alone, amongst my learned brethren of the High Courts. I have devoted much thought to this subject for many years, have written much upon it, and have had ampler opportunities than most of my colleagues for gaining experience at first hand.

4. Those who contend that if we abolish retracted confessions we might as well abolish the Penal Code really mean that it is necessary to admit confessions that have been improperly induced. I am not concerned now with that point, though as I began by saying this is the only logical alternative to excluding retracted confessions altogether. But let us be frank about it. Further I dispute the broad proposition. I deny that it is true. I believe that after a year or two, we should be able to convict as many accused persons without the need of retracted and deeply tainted confessions as we are now able to do with that questionable aid. I go further: I believe we should convict more. First because a retracted confession always has a most damaging effect upon a prosecution where a case is tried by jury. Next because by excluding this time-honoured and much-valued weapon, we should put the police on more intelligent and vigorously prosecuted enquiry. They might be expected by degrees to become more efficient in that department of their duty in which, in the mufassal, they are now most backward—Detection.

5. The average low caste native of this country is not by common consent addicted to the truth. Why is it that the average criminal who is drawn from this class, should suddenly show himself a marked exception and volunteer the truth.....to the police.....in a matter where he is most vitally interested in concealing it. Why should the most untruthful people in the world become in one set of conditions and one only, the most confessing people in the world? And why again should this phase coincide precisely with the period during which they are helplessly at the mercy of the mufassal police? Surely the answer is only too plain. With respect to those who allow themselves to hold and express the opinion that the native of India is "prone to confess," I must say emphatically that in my judgment such a generalization cannot be sustained. It can only be supported by referring to the disproportionately large number of confessions supplied by our criminal courts, and assuming that these are all voluntary. It is hardly necessary to point out that this is begging the question. I answer shortly that these confessions are not voluntary, and therefore do not afford any proof that the native is prone to confess.

6. The theory of moral collapse much in vogue with those who contend that these retracted confessions are voluntary, is as inadequate as, in my opinion, it is absurd. The average native criminal is utterly devoid of nerves, in the Western sense, and left to himself would certainly not suffer from any "moral collapse" merely because he was arrested upon a charge which he knows could not be brought home to him without his own assistance. What he does suffer from is sheer, well-grounded terror of what may be and in all human probability is in store for him, if he refuses to confess when the police exhort him to do so.

7. It is a commonplace that the conditions of police work here differ widely from those prevailing in England. Here the police get hardly any assistance from the people themselves. At home every one who can, is ready and willing to help the detection of crime. The villager dreads being involved in a criminal case, almost as much as being accused of having committed the offence. It means that he may be dragged away from his fields for weeks and kept hanging about Magistrates and Sessions' Courts, and exposed all the time to police pressure on one side, and the pressure of personal influences on the other. The remedy for this might be found in local assizes, bringing the trial of local crimes to the doors of the people where they were committed. But from a theoretical point of view, this kind of argument resolves itself into this. We cannot detect crime unless criminals confess; therefore let us make them confess, somehow.

8. I accept my brother Hayward's practical suggestion. If for no other reason, because it would prove convincingly and dramatically that I am right upon all my main grounds. If confessions were so restricted, there would be none. I except always those rare cases of passional crime to which I have once referred. And in those cases the confessions are almost always unnecessary. Res ipsa loquitur. So that where confessions are genuine we find that they are superfluous. They ought to be superfluous in all cases.

9. It may be objected that if the police were stopped from extorting confessions, the prisoners would be in no better case. The police would still torture to extort information. That is true. It would be true at least for a year or two after all retracted confessions were excluded. But gradually we might hope to find the police training themselves in detective work and relying less and less upon the traditionary disreputable methods. In England the police do not rely on confessions; as a rule they do not want them and would rather be without them. Yet they obtain convictions. So it would be in India once they were shut off from this easy road to getting them. It is needless to dwell on the farce which is gone through before the third class Magistrate, intended to guarantee the voluntariness of the confession. Everyone knows that it is a farce and that it guarantees nothing.

10. I have no time to examine the persistent confusion of thought which would make the believed truth of a confession, justification for its extortion. Doubtless many true confessions are extorted. But what we are concerned with is the grave reproach cast upon our present system by the need of having recourse to such ways of eliciting the truth. I am most strongly in favour of excluding retracted confessions altogether from Judge and Jury at Sessions trials. Either that or abandoning the rather thin and naive belief that they have all been voluntarily made, and frankly acknowledging that we do not care how they were obtained as long as we believe them to be true. I could adduce a great many more reasons in support of my own position, and in refutation of all arguments to the contrary, but I could not do that satisfactorily within the limits of a note. What I have said will be enough to indicate one or two main lines of reasoning that, followed up, must necessarily lead to a true conclusion.

F. C. O. BEAMAN.

P. S.—I wish to guard myself against being supposed to have attacked in a controversial spirit any of the opinions or reasons of my learned colleagues. I have not seen any of their minutes. I do not know what views they have expressed or what reasons they have given. Mr. Hayward informed me orally of his suggestion.

F. C. O. BEAMAN.

I think the time has fully come for insisting that the main object of a police investigation should be the collection of evidence and not the extraction of confessions. I should therefore be in favour of limiting the powers of recording confessions to first class Magistrates at head-quarters provided with a prison in the independent charge of the Jail Department; of providing that no confession should be recorded until the prisoner had been at least 24 hours in the independent custody of the officers of the Jail

Department; and of prohibiting remand to police custody after confession except upon the orders of the District Magistrate.

M. H. W. HAYWARD.

Enclosure No. 4.

No. 1347-P. D., dated Darjeeling, the 28th May 1912.

From—The Hon'ble Mr. C. J. STEVENSON-MOORE, C.V.O., I.C.S., Chief Secretary to the Government of Bengal,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department.

I am directed to refer to Sir A. Earle's letter Nos. 781—790, dated the 12th July 1911, in which this Government was asked to examine the regulations in force in Bengal regarding the procedure to be followed in the matter of the production before Magistrates of confessing accused persons and the recording of their confessions by such Magistrates, and to suggest, in consultation with the highest judicial authorities, amendments, where necessary, of the existing rules after a consideration of the following specific questions:—

(i) Whether, on a balance of advantages, and disadvantages, it pays to have confessions recorded at all before the trial commences, except in very special circumstances, and by order of the District Magistrate;

(ii) Whether, in case it is not considered possible to stop altogether the recording of confessions before trial on the motion of the police, the safeguards which already exist, cannot be made more stringent with a view to maintain the voluntary character of confessions;

(iii) Whether it is possible to withdraw the power of recording such confessions from Magistrates of the third class and to give it only to the Magistrate having jurisdication in the case, or at least to a first class or specially selected second class Magistrate;

(iv) Whether it is not feasible to make an absolute rule that once a prisoner has confessed he should in no circumstances be given back into police custody;

(v) Whether it might not be possible to lay down that, before his confession is recorded, an accused person shall have spent at least one night out of police custody; and

(vi) Whether it might not be possible to introduce in Bengal the Bombay procedure of questioning a confessing prisoner, when first produced after arrest, as to whether he has suffered ill-treatment at the hands of the police.

2. Selected officers both of the executive and judicial branches of the service and the High Court have been consulted in the matter and their opinions have been subjected to careful scrutiny and consideration by the Governor in Council. I am now to enclose a copy of the High Court's letter on the subject and to submit the views of His Excellency in Council on the suggestions made in the letter under reply.

3. In regard to the first question I am to say that the weight of opinion and notably that of the Hon'ble Judges of the High Court is against the exclusion from evidence of confessions recorded under section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code. His Excellency in Council has given the matter his careful consideration and agrees with the High Court that a man alleged to be implicated in a crime should be permitted to make any statement he likes before a trustworthy and experienced Magistrate. The Governor in Council does not deny that abuses exist and that from time to time cases occur in which confessions are alleged or proved to have been obtained by means of violence or threats of violence and in which Magistrates who have recorded confessions have, by neglect of the rules on the subject and by want of the exercise of proper care and intelligence, failed to detect that the confessions were not made voluntarily. It is important, however, not to lose sight of the first principle involved. The object of criminal proceedings is to find out whether persons accused of offences have in fact committed them or not and this result can best be arrived at by examining all the evidence obtainable on the subject. No one is able to give more conclusive evidence as to what was done than the person who did it and any general rule to exclude that person from giving the assistance which he is obviously in a position to give amounts to an artificial obstruction to the attainment of the object for which the whole judicial system has been created. His Excellency in Council, therefore, thinks that the proper course is not summarily to rule out a most important class of evidence, least of all without the support of the high judicial authorities who habitually scrutinise all evidence with the utmost vigilance, and show the greatest anxiety to secure fair play for accused persons, but to try to eradicate such abuses as are known to occur. I am also to observe that the proposals of the Government of India in this matter relate solely to the judicial use of confessions and are not likely, in the opinion of the Governor in Council, to provide a complete remedy for the disease. Most police officers know that a confession is chiefly valuable for the clues which it provides and an unscrupulous police officer in search of clues would not be deterred from ill-treating an accused person by the fact that the accused's statement would not be placed on the record as a confession. His Excellency in Council, therefore, would deprecate the introduction of any such rule as that suggested by the Government of India, but he thinks that steps should be taken to strengthen the existing rules by the provision of further safeguards with a view to maintain the voluntary character of confessions

4. The following are some of the measures which commend themselves to His Excellency in Council as likely to be helpful in attaining this result. It should be strictly laid down that at the time when a confession is about to be recorded, the officer who brought the confessing prisoner in custody must not be in evidence at all. Again the recording of confessions in open Court during Court hours should be prescribed as the correct practice only to be departed from in exceptional circumstances. Further before recording a confession the Magistrate must impress on the accused that he will not be returned to the custody of the officer who arrested him or brought him before the Magistrate, and that he has nothing to fear at his hands. Finally to impress on Magistrates the importance of satisfying themselves as to the voluntary nature of the confession, the certificate to that effect should not be printed as it is at present on the form on which such statements are usually recorded but should be filled in by hand in each case.

5. The Governor in Council accepts in the main the suggestion of the Government of India that confessions should be recorded only by first class Magistrates. He would only modify it by adding that authority should be given to any Subdivisional Officer as such, whatever his magisterial powers, to record confessions within his subdivision, since it is sometimes necessary to place a Civilian officer not yet endowed with the powers of a Magistrate of the first class in temporary charge of a subdivision, and difficulties would arise if such an officer had not the power to take a confessing prisoner's statement.

6. In regard to the fourth suggestion made by the Government of India the conclusion arrived at by His Excellency the Governor in Council is that, once a prisoner has confessed he should not ordinarily be given back for the verification of his confession except to the charge of a Magistrate but that, when no Magistrate is available, the prisoner may be placed in custody of a police officer not lower in rank than an Inspector of Police of the first or second grade who has had no previous concern with the accused in the case. His Excellency in Council does not think it feasible to prohibit absolutely the remand of a confessing accused to police custody. Such a provision might seriously hamper a perfectly honest investigation and a rule on the lines proposed supplemented by the conditions of section 167, Criminal Procedure Code, should be effectual in preventing abuses.

7. The Governor in Council is prepared to accept the proposal that before a confession is recorded an accused person should have spent at least one night out of police custody, subject to the addition of the words "where practicable." This slight modification seems necessary to provide for cases where a confessing accused is taken before a Subdivisional Officer when he is out in camp and far removed from head-quarters.

8. Finally with regard to the last suggestion made in your letter under reference I am to point out that the Bombay rules do not seem to provide as is stated for the questioning of a confessing prisoner when first produced before a Magistrate as to whether he has suffered ill-treatment at the hands of the police and such a procedure is, in the opinion of the Governor in Council, to be deprecated, since it would invite complaints. His Excellency in Council considers that the requirements of the case would be met by the imposition of a rule directing that the Jail Superintendent must examine medically a confessing prisoner immediately on his admission to the jail as a matter of routine, and that if any marks are discovered the medical report should be forwarded at the same time as the confessing prisoner to the Magistrate, who will record the confession.

Enclosure No. 4 (i).

No. 75, dated Calcutta, the 29th February 1912.

From—R. L. Ross, Esq., I.C.S., Registrar of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, Appellate Side.

To—The Secretary to the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam, Revenue and General Dept.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 2844-Pl., dated the 24th August 1911, with which you forwarded a copy of a letter No. 781-790, dated the 12th July 1911, and enclosures, from the Government of India in the Home Department, regarding the procedure to be followed both in the production before Magistrates of accused persons to have their confessions recorded, and in the recording by Magistrates of the confessions of persons so produced. You requested that the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam might be favoured with the expression of the views of the Hon'ble the Chief Justice and Judges on the subject.

High Court.
English Department.
Criminal.

PRESENT:
The full Court.

2. In reply I am to say that the first question on which the opinion of the Court is asked is whether, on a balance of advantages and disadvantages, it is desirable to have confessions recorded at all, before the trial commences except in very special circumstances and by order of the District Magistrate. In the opinion of the Judges, the answer to this question should be in the affirmative. They think that any man who is alleged to be implicated in a crime should, if he so desires, be permitted to make any statement either admitting his guilt or explaining any facts or circumstances which appear to inculpate him, and to have that statement recorded by a trustworthy and experienced Magistrate.

3. The next point raised in Sir Archdale Earle's letter touches the safeguards which exist and suggests that they may be made more stringent. On this point the Court recommends that the statement made by an accused person should ordinarily be recorded by a Magistrate who has jurisdiction to try or enquire into the case. Only in the event of such a Magistrate not being available should a junior or an Honorary Magistrate be allowed to record it. No police officer who has been engaged in the investigation should be allowed to be present when the statement is recorded and only those officers who may be necessary to guard the prisoner.

4. The Judges think that the practice of verifying confessions should be carefully limited and should be confined to a verification of the facts which have been stated by the prisoner. Cases have been brought to notice in which the so-called verification has been used as a means of obtaining admissions to corroborate facts which have come to light after the confession has been made. This practice should be discontinued, and a verification for the purpose of amplifying a confession should not be allowed. A verification of a confession should be entrusted to an experienced Magistrate who should accompany the accused to the places referred to by him and his proceedings should be restricted to the verification and discovery of facts and local features which themselves either prove or disprove the truth of the statement. The investigating police officer should not be present at the time of the verification and only sufficient police guard to prevent the prisoner from escaping.

5. Where the prisoner alleges that improper influence, physical or moral, has been brought to bear on him to induce a confession, the charge should be promptly investigated; and where physical violence is said to have been used, the prisoner should be examined at once by a medical officer.

6. In conclusion the Judges desire to suggest that the best safeguard against the acceptance of an untrue confession improperly obtained will be found in the care and ability displayed by the Magistrate who is entrusted with the duty of recording it. They think that no advantage would be gained by a further elaboration of the rules in force in this province regulating the procedure to be followed after the prisoner has been brought into the presence of the Magistrate. The only essential is that the Magistrate who records the statement shall be an officer of intelligence and experience sufficient to enable him to determine whether it is a free and voluntary confession and not a statement which is the result of outside influence.

Enclosure No. 5.

No. 1532, dated Naini Tal, the 8th May 1912.

From—S. P. O'DONNELL, Esq., Secretary to the Government of the United Provinces, Judicial Dept.,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department.

I am directed to reply to Home Department letter No. 781-790, dated Simla, the 14th July 1911, on the question of the procedure to be followed both in the production before Magistrates of accused persons to have their confessions recorded and recording by Magistrates of confessions made by persons so produced. In that letter the Lieutenant-Governor was requested to examine the Provincial regulations on the subject and submit a report with specific suggestions for amendment and to invite the views of the high judicial authorities.

The practice in this province is contained in orders 851 to 853, Manual of Government Orders, and in the Police Regulations :—

United Provinces Manual of Government Orders.

"851. Every confession which a person in police custody wishes to make should be recorded by the highest magistrate short of the District Magistrate who can be reached in a reasonable time."

"852. Magistrates should comply carefully with the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code with regard to the recording of confessions or statements made by accused persons. Section 164 requires that no magistrate shall record a confession unless, upon questioning the person making it, he has reason to believe that it will be made voluntarily. No confession, therefore, should be recorded until the magistrate has thoroughly satisfied himself by all reasonable means that the person before him has not been subjected to improper influences of any kind, and that the statement he is about to make will be his own free and spontaneous statement. The magistrate should also, in addition to the memorandum prescribed by the section, record the fact that he has duly questioned the prisoner for the above purpose, and should further state briefly his reasons for believing the confession to have been made voluntarily. In no case, if possible, should the police, who have been concerned in the investigation or who have arrested the accused, be present while the latter is questioned and his statement taken down: a note that this precaution has been taken should also be put on the record."

NOTE.—Care should be taken that the memorandum required by section 164 is added.

"853. In view of the special importance of securing a trustworthy and correct record of any confession made in cases of organized dakaiti, a confession by one of a gang of dakaits should, wherever the circumstances permit it, be recorded by an experienced and well-qualified officer. The task requires patience and judgment, and instances have occurred of its being inefficiently performed. Confessions in important cases of dakaiti made under section 164, Criminal Procedure Code, should, therefore, be recorded by the District Magistrate or by a European magistrate of some standing, preferably the joint magistrate of the district in whatever part of the district the dakaiti may have taken place. The same principle may with advantage be observed in regard to other serious criminal cases."

Paragraph III, United Provinces Police Regulations.

"Before having a confession recorded it is advisable to test the truth of it; if not supported by strong corroborative evidence it may be of little value in court though recorded before a magistrate. The main use of a true confession is to determine the direction of the investigation."

"Every confession which a person in police custody wishes to make shall be recorded by the highest magistrate short of the District Magistrate who can be reached in a reasonable time. The higher the rank of the magistrate recording a confession, the greater is its value in evidence."

2. I am to enclose copies of the opinions of the Hon'ble Judges of the High Court and of the Judicial Commissioner and of the Additional Judicial Commissioners of Oudh and to state the views of His Honour upon the subject.

3. I am to draw attention to the following remarks in the resolution on the work of the police in the United Provinces in 1907:—

"The Lieutenant-Governor's experience from the cases that have come before him on applications for remission or commutations of sentence strongly bears out the view that investigating officers too frequently overlook the necessity of obtaining evidence to corroborate facts ascertained from the confessions made by accused persons. The practice ordinarily followed seems to be to endeavour to get some admission from the accused person at as early a stage in the investigation as possible. Once this has been obtained the investigating officer is apt not to worry himself too much in making an exhaustive investigation: at some later stage of the proceedings before the courts the accused person withdraws his confession. Nothing could be more unsatisfactory than this system of investigation which begins at the wrong end. The proper course for the investigating officer to pursue is to test every possible theory for the commission of the crime by investigating and analysing every fact that becomes available. If, as the net is drawn closer round an individual by the ascertainment of facts that bring the case home to him, he elects to confess, the confession adds confirmation to the evidence already collected. But the process of beginning the case by securing some admission from an accused person instead of first endeavouring to procure all the direct or circumstantial evidence that may be available is certain to shake the confidence of the courts in the results of the investigation by the police. In the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion there is no matter connected with police administration that demands reform more urgently than this."

The following passage occurs in Mr. Trethewy's report on the police administration in the United Provinces in 1909:—

"It is very hard to eradicate the tendency of subordinate police officers to rely too much on confessions. This is a question which has engaged the earnest attention of the Deputy Inspector-General and myself. I have gone through the proceedings in many cases leading to acquittals of important offences, such as dakaiti and murder, in order to look out for defects in the action of the police and can say that most superintendents are now alive to the necessity of exercising caution before allowing a confession to be recorded and accepted as the basis of the investigation. Mr. H. G. Richardson and Mr. B. M. Hamilton may be specially mentioned as taking great pains in this direction. The Magistrate of Meerut remarks: 'I am rapidly coming to the opinion that it would be better for police work if confessions were entirely inadmissible in evidence. The tendency to try and get some sort of a confession and then to build up evidence around it seems inevitable. Undoubtedly the cleverer criminal now realizes that all he has to do to ensure his comfort when tackled is to confess, and that he is practically certain of acquittal when he retracts later on. I have long ago stopped tahsildars or local magistrates from recording confessions.' The Superintendent of Police at Meerut has issued an order that no confessions are to be recorded till the accused has been produced before him. The Commissioner endorses the views of these two officers as to the harm done by confessions. These opinions and orders seem sound as applying to the kind of confession obtained during the course of an investigation, and when a gazetted officer supervises the proceedings of the police in which a person has confessed it is certainly advisable that he should see the accused apart from the subordinate police and question him carefully to determine whether his statement is true. There is however another kind of confession often made in murder cases, specially when the motive of the crime has been jealousy; the murderer rushes off hot-foot to the police-station and reports all the circumstances of his guilt; on such an occasion there is no harm in getting his statement recorded by the nearest magistrate, for if he is left to get cool he may think better of his original intentions to welcome punishment. With reference to confessions of the first kind there are two points which the police are prone to overlook. The first is that the confession, if true, may be more useful as giving a direction to the course of the investigation than as a piece of evidence; it shows the police which line to follow and where to look for proof. The second is that especially in a dakaiti or gang case the confession should not be accepted as a whole till all the details have been checked as much as possible. Many a prosecution has failed because a confession, true in the main, is false in some particulars."

The comment made on this passage in the Government resolution was—

"In this connection it will be useful to consider the vexed question of how far confessions should be allowed to affect the work of police. It is impossible to lay down more than very general rules on this subject. It is absolutely necessary that the subordinate police should be made to understand that no sort of pressure, direct or indirect, is to be put upon persons to make them confess. His Honour sees no reason to suppose that there is anything like a general practice of putting pressure upon persons to make them confess. It has been broadly suggested in some quarters that such a practice exists, and some persons have gone so far as to imply that the use of physical torture is by no means uncommon. The Lieutenant-Governor is unable to find that the facts support these allegations. Occasionally it is discovered that confessions have been improperly obtained; but there is no justification for a general charge against the police of this province of using illegal and improper methods to extort confessions. His Honour considers that it would be exceedingly difficult for torture to be inflicted by a police officer in any case without certain risks of detection, and the fact that in hardly any instance has such torture been proved goes to show that the allegations of persons who assert the existence of such a general habit are without foundation. Even when a confession is made spontaneously and without any pressure being placed upon the person making it, it frequently leads to subsequent bad work in investigation. Too often an investigating officer considers that, once a confession has been obtained, the case is over. The real value of a confession is the clue it gives for carrying on the inquiry on right lines. If investigating officers would only recognise this fact less would be heard of cases failing owing to confessions being retracted in courts. This is another matter in which supervision by superior officers is essential. It is on their guidance of the subordinate police, their intelligence in pointing out correct methods and their restraining the use of incorrect methods that success in working out difficult cases must finally depend."

4. These remarks sufficiently indicate the place that the confession should in the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor take in the work of investigation. The following instructions were issued in the form of a circular letter to all superintendents of police, dated the 15th July 1908, by the Inspector-General of Police, to impress the importance of these principles:—

"There is a growing tendency on the part of the police to deal with important cases of murder and other heinous crimes solely on confessions or statements unsupported by material or corroborative evidence. Instead of working on the information so obtained and procuring corroborative evidence, investigating officers generally take immediate steps to have the confession or statement recorded by a magistrate and then consider they have done all that is required in the case. It constantly happens that such confession or statement is subsequently retracted and, there being little evidence available, the case breaks down in court.

Superintendents of police must do all in their power to instil sounder methods of working into their subordinates, and in order to ensure that this is done in all important cases, it is desirable that the services of assistant and deputy superintendents should be freely utilized in supervising investigations.

The subordinate police will welcome the assistance that these officers can render them in the handling of such enquiries, and in any case this step will ensure that the investigation is thorough and complete.

Deputy Inspectors-General should, when inspecting districts, satisfy themselves that these orders are carried out, and should note in their inspection reports the number of cases in which assistant superintendents and deputy superintendents have been entrusted with investigations.

The subject should be noted on in the district annual reports."

There is reason to believe that the instructions given are being followed intelligently and that the defects found in 1907 are disappearing.

5. The next point to be considered is the manner in which a confession should be recorded. I am to suggest that what is required is a record of a confession which will, in practically all cases, prove itself as spontaneous and unimpeachable, or the reverse. The two main objects to be attained are to guard against improper pressure being put upon the person confessing, and to secure that, if improper pressure has not been put upon the person confessing, he shall not usually be able to retract his confession successfully.

6. This subject has already been considered by Sir John Hewett, and in October 1910 he examined closely the procedure adopted in recording confessions in this province.

The view which he took was that while it is for the Government to modify rules affecting matters of an executive nature such as those regarding custody of under-trial prisoners, directions as to the manner in which judicial officers should exercise their functions as courts of justice can only emanate from the chief judicial tribunals. This is the view which is accepted by the Government of India in the letter under reply. Although the Lieutenant-Governor considered that a modification of the procedure under which judicial officers recorded confessions was for many reasons desirable, there did not then seem to him to be sufficient grounds on which he could approach the highest judicial authorities on the subject. Conditions have since altered, and now that the opinions of the judicial authorities have been taken and their views are found to be in general accord with his own, His Honour proposes to make certain suggestions to the High Court and the Judicial Commissioner with the object of regulating and improving the procedure in vogue.

7. The Lieutenant-Governor considers it desirable that a rule should be made that no confession shall be recorded except by a magistrate of the first class or specially selected magistrate of the second class, and that it should be recorded, whenever possible, by the magistrate who decides the case or commits the case for trial. The suggestion will be placed before the High Court and the Judicial Commissioner. The employment of a tahsildar as the officer before whom confessions are recorded appears to the Lieutenant-Governor to be usually undesirable. It is not likely that there will be any inconvenience caused by prohibiting tahsildars from recording such confessions. There are now only 96 out of 216 tahsils which are not on a line of railway, and in the circumstances it will not in most cases entail any appreciable delay if an accused person who desires to confess is conveyed from a tahsil to headquarters. It will further be suggested that the magistrate shall first examine the accused, noting whether he is suffering from excitement, whether he appears tired, worn out or restless and generally whether he is in a normal and ordinary condition for a man of his class, and examine him closely for bruises or other marks of injury. It will be also proposed that a medical man, if procurable, should also examine the man thoroughly, and that the magistrate should make a careful and detailed note, stating the result of his examination, and adding to it the written note of the medical examination, if any. The Lieutenant-Governor will further suggest that in no case should the police, who have been concerned in the investigation or who have arrested the accused, be present while the latter is questioned and his statement taken down, and that the magistrate should, if possible, keep the prisoner for some time in his court, in other than police custody, after all police officers connected with the case have been excluded, so that any influence which may have been brought to bear on the prisoner may have a chance of being lessened or destroyed.

8. The Lieutenant-Governor will also suggest that questions in the following or some similar form should be put to the prisoner by the magistrate, the actual questions to be varied or amplified at his discretion, subject to the necessary condition that every question that is put must be recorded:

Q.—Do you understand that you will not return again to or go near the police officers connected with this case?

Q.—Are you making a statement of your own free will?

Q.—Have you been ill-treated in any way by the police or anyone else in order to make you confess?

Q.—Are you afraid that anyone will do you an injury if you do not confess?

Q.—Has a police officer or anyone else told you that you will gain anything if you do confess?

Q.—Do you hope to gain anything if you do confess?

Q.—Has a police officer or anyone else given you anything you wanted to make you confess?

Q.—Do you understand the position clearly? You have nothing to hope or fear from the police officers you have previously been with. You are not going near them again. They cannot help you or injure you. I promise you nothing. I do not promise you a pardon, or any mitigation of sentence. I have no reason for supposing that you will be pardoned or have your sentence reduced if you are guilty because you are confessing. Do you wish to make a statement?

Q.—What have you to say?

The suggestion will continue that, after fully satisfying himself that the prisoner is desirous of making a genuine confession, the magistrate should proceed to record his statement, as nearly as possible verbatim, and to ask any questions necessary to explain or even to amplify the confession made and should carefully record every question put, and that finally he should append a certificate to the effect that all the instructions above suggested have been fully carried out, recording his reasons for any deviation from them, and stating fully his reasons for believing the confession to have been a genuine one, if such be his conviction. It will further be suggested that when the confession is over the magistrate will have it carefully read to the man, and then send him in custody of police officers other than those connected with the case to the nearest magistrate's lock-up

9. The Lieutenant-Governor will consider separately the necessity for providing restrictions to the restoration of a confessing prisoner to police custody. It may be possible to arrange that in no circumstances will such a person ever remain in police custody after he has made a confession with a provision that the police, if they wish, can interview him afterwards in the presence of the jail authorities, and that, further, when a man is sent up to confess and refuses to confess he will not be sent back to police custody. It may not, however, be possible to prohibit absolutely the detention of such persons by the police in any circumstances, but every attempt will be made, even if the prohibition be not made absolute, to reduce the occasions and the period of such detention to a minimum.

10. The question of confessions is connected intimately with the question of remands to the custody of the police. The Police Commission referred in paragraph 166 of their report to informal arrests. One of the abuses most difficult to eradicate from police work is the tendency of the police to keep a man in illegal detention and practically under arrest and to describe this procedure as the detention of him under observation. The practice was formerly common. It has been on the wane in this province for years and is gradually (though slowly) dying out. Sir John Hewett is of opinion that if the legal authority to remand in police custody were taken away the practice would again increase. The time when torture is to be apprehended is not the time after the man has been placed under legal arrest. For it becomes easy to bring home proof against an offending police officer by marks of torture. The opportunity for torture arises before legal arrest takes place, and the abolition of such remands, so far from assisting the suppression of torture by the police, would be likely to interfere with the discovery and the proof of this form of crime. At the same time the Lieutenant-Governor considers that remands for as long as fifteen days are unnecessary in places where communications are as good as they generally are in the United Provinces, and he would like to see the law altered so as to limit remands to police custody to a period of seven days except in more backward tracts and elsewhere under the express orders of the District Magistrate. A modification in the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure will be required before this object can be effected, but as the question of amending the Code is now under the consideration of the Government of India the present will be a suitable occasion for consideration of this proposal. It also seems desirable to Sir John Hewett that during such remands to police custody the superintendent of police should have the opportunity of satisfying himself by examining a person who is said to be willing to confess that his subordinates have not abused their powers in this respect. With the above modifications the power to remand to police custody may be retained with advantage. Amongst other reasons which can be advanced for its retention in a restricted form, one stands out especially. If effect is to be given to the intelligent procedure suggested in the report of 1909 by Mr. Trethewy, to which reference has been already made, for the guidance of police officers in obtaining and recording confession—a procedure which in the opinion of His Honour provides admirably for the prevention of false confessions and confessions obtained in an improper manner—a certain degree of latitude must be permitted to the police to retain accused persons on certain occasions in their own custody, and in many cases in which the superintendent of police is not at headquarters it will be necessary for investigating officers to retain the accused person in their own custody in order to bring him before the superintendent.

11. The Lieutenant-Governor is inclined to deprecate the addition of further restrictions. He is in absolute agreement with the learned Judges of the High Court and the Judicial Commissioner and the Additional Judicial Commissioner of Oudh that it will be inadvisable to forbid the recording of confessions before the trial commences except in very special circumstances and by the order of the District Magistrate.

12. There is, the Lieutenant-Governor is convinced, sufficient reality in the confession to justify its retention generally, if recorded by a responsible magistrate, and provided that precautions are adopted to ensure that the accused is not exposed to ill-treatment or fear of ill-treatment by the police after he has made his confession or has refused to make a confession before a magistrate. The confession should, whenever possible, be recorded before the magistrate who will hold the inquiry or trial, but provision must be made for cases where this is not possible without unreasonable delay.

13. Sir John Hewett is satisfied after consulting judicial officers of all grades and as a result of observing a very large number of confessions in judicial records which have come before him in applications for clemency of remission of sentence or otherwise that the cases of genuine confessions by Indian criminals are comparatively numerous. It is largely a matter of temperament and environment. For one thing, crimes of passion are much more common in India than in England. For another, the influence of public opinion in an Indian village has more effect on an Indian villager than any public opinion in England on an Englishman. For a third, the people are more emotional and superstitious. Given these causes, it cannot be regarded as surprising that confessions are volunteered in this country to an extent which would seem hardly credible in England. But if comparison were made with a continental country, such as Italy, it would probably be found that the difference was less striking. Some of the reasons which make for a large number of confessions in India make also for their subsequent retractation. The mental condition which drives a criminal to unburden himself is naturally more intense amongst the unbalanced peasants who for the most part commit crimes of passion in this province. But the frenzy which induced such a criminal to exalt his crime or the impulse which impels declaration to obtain a momentary respite is succeeded frequently in such an organization by a reaction under the influence of which the instinct of self-preservation reasserts itself. Under the second influence retractation follows. In addition, the retractation of confession is greatly influenced in this country by the practice of placing under-trial prisoners in close communication with each other in the police lock-up. And once a man has been remanded to the jail lock-up inter-communication between under-trial prisoners and men under sentence becomes practically unavoidable whatever the regulations may be. In the circumstances retractation is not surprising, and does not in any way necessarily reflect on the genuineness of the original confession.

14. I am to add that Sir John Hewett is of opinion that, while the imposition of conditions of the nature suggested will afford sufficient protection for the present, the way should be left open for subsequent consideration of the advisability of altering the law to enable accused persons to give evidence in the same manner as they now give evidence in England. Experience in England has shown that the admission of prisoners' evidence has operated in the interests of the innocent, and in the furtherance of justice, and he sees no reason why action on similar lines should not be adopted with advantage in India, although it is likely that such a change in the law would be opposed here by much the same interests as opposed it in Great Britain.

15. The opinions of the high judicial authorities who have been consulted go to show that they attach no importance to the mere fact that a confession has been retracted, provided that it has been recorded in the circumstances which safeguard its genuineness and its accuracy. It is not the experience of His Honour that the courts of this province attach no weight to a retracted confession per se or that simply because it has been retracted they demand additional evidence which would in itself be sufficient for a conviction in absence of a confession. The courts of this province usually take confessions for what they are properly worth. They take retractations for what they are properly worth, and judge the value of a retracted confession on reasonable principles.

Enclosure No. 5 (i).

No. 2258-XIV—380, dated Lucknow, the 27th September 1911.

From—L. G. EVANS, Esq., Judicial Commissioner of Oudh,
To—The Secretary to the Government of the United Provinces.

With reference to your letter No. 2294-VI—629-1911, dated the 23rd August 1911, I have the honour to submit the opinions of my colleagues and my own opinion on the points raised by the Government of India with reference to the procedure to be followed in the production of accused persons before magistrates with the object of recording their confessions and in recording such confessions.

Enclosure No. 5 (i) (a).

Opinion recorded by T. C. Piggott, Esq., First Additional Judicial Commissioner of Oudh, dated the 5th September 1911.

I would suggest that as a basis for any fruitful consideration of this question it is advisable first of all to arrive at a clear opinion as to the reason why any change in the existing law or procedure is considered necessary, or, in other words, as to the nature of the evils or abuses against which it is sought to guard. So far as my own experience goes, I do not think that there is any foundation for the suggestion that the lives or liberties of innocent persons are in danger under the existing law. I have occasionally come across cases in which the power of causing the confessions of accused persons to be recorded before the commencement of the enquiry or trial under the provisions of section 164 of the Code of Criminal Procedure seems to me to have been abused, and in which confessions so recorded are unreliable or altogether worthless as evidence. I think such cases are readily detected and exposed by the courts and that a person who is really innocent of all connection with a particular crime runs exceedingly little risk of being convicted on the strength of a confession under this section obtained from him by improper means. The real danger to be guarded against, in my opinion, is the temptation which the existing state of the law offers to overzealous, unscrupulous, or incompetent police officers. I do believe that serious failures of justice occasionally occur because a case has been sent up for trial mainly on the strength of some confession or confessions improperly obtained, irregularly recorded and of no evidential value when a more intelligent and straightforward investigation would have resulted in the production of evidence sufficient to bring home their guilt to the actual criminals. On this ground alone I am in favour of some modification of the existing procedure, though feeling strongly that the whole question is one of choice of evils, and that it is inadvisable to hamper the police in their contest with crime, especially with organized crime, by more restrictions than appear to be absolutely necessary.

2. I would strongly deprecate the suggestion that the power of recording confessions before the commencement of an enquiry or trial should be entirely taken away from the Indian magistracy. Such a power appears to be a necessary complement and corrective of the special provision of law in this country which prohibits the tendering in evidence of any confession made by a person while he is in the custody of a police officer. It is particularly valuable in two classes of cases—

(a) in the investigation of organized crimes, such as dakaitis;

(b) in connection with serious offences, such as murders, when it is obvious from the outset of the enquiry that a certain number of persons (as for instance a particular family, or the residence in a particular house or enclosure) must all of them know more or less of the truth regarding the commission of the crime and yet it is almost impossible to bring home the guilt to any particular person or persons except upon the statements made by members of the family or residents within the enclosure.

In the former class of cases the police may often find in their hands at an early stage of the inquiry a member of the gang which committed the offence who is prepared, for one reason or other, to make a clean breast of the whole matter. The inquiry must proceed for the time being upon the information which this individual is prepared to give, and it is of the highest importance that any statement which he may make should be made by him under the sense of responsibility imposed by the knowledge that it could be proved against him in the event of his being put upon his trial. Moreover, in many cases it would seriously hamper the court in trying to arrive at the facts and to estimate the value of evidence subsequently produced, if it were not in a position to take evidence as to precisely what the informer, or the accused who first fell into the hands of the police, had actually stated at the time of, or shortly after, his arrest.

In the second class of cases to which I have referred I am confident that, even as the law now stands, persons are put forward to make to the police and to repeat before a magistrate statements more or less of the nature of confessions, but conveying a false or seriously distorted version of the actual facts. This is done to choke off further inquiry, to put the police on to a wrong track, or simply to offer up one out of several guilty persons as a sort of scapegoat to the vengeance of the law. Confessions made under these circumstances are almost always retracted, and I am confident that in some cases they are carefully calculated beforehand with a view to their intrinsic falsehood becoming demonstrable at the trial, and so involving the failure of the prosecution even as against the individual who had undertaken the risk of "confessing." If statements of this sort were permitted to be made to investigating police officers under gurantee that under no circumstances could they be proved in evidence at the trial, and with the knowledge that the persons making them could not be asked to guarantee their truth by repeating them in the presence of a magistrate before the inquiry by the police was closed, I am convinced that the difficulties of the police in dealing with this class of crime, serious as they are at present, would be very much aggravated.

3. I incline however to the opinion that the class of magistrates empowered to record confessions under section 164, Code of Criminal Procedure, might with advantage be restricted. I arrive at this conclusion with reluctance, and in spite of a feeling that such a measure will in some cases unnecessarily hamper an honest investigating officer in the conduct of a difficult inquiry. At the same time I find from experience that in the majority of the cases (if not in all) in which a confession recorded before the commencement of the inquiry is found to have been obtained by the use of improper methods, to have been irregularly recorded or to be otherwise worthless as evidence, it has in fact been taken by a magistrate whose qualifications and experience were not equal to the responsibilities thus laid upon him. Moreover I think (and this is to my mind the principal advantage to be anticipated from any such change) that if the number of magistrates empowered to record such confessions were restricted, there would be some chance that any instructions which might be issued for their guidance under the authority of the Local Governments or of the High Court would be brought to their notice and would be observed with reasonable fidelity. The instructions issued by the various High Courts which are to be found printed in the appendix to the Government of India's letter under reply are mostly admirable, and it is obvious that very little difficulty would have arisen in this matter if any one of these sets of instructions had always been carefully followed by the magistrates for whose guidance it was intended.

4. I would suggest therefore an amendment of section 164 of the Code of Criminal Procedure confining the powers thereby conferred to magistrates who would be competent (apart from any question of territorial jurisdiction) to try or to commit for trial the offence under investigation. The practical result would be that confessions in important cases would be recorded only by magistrates of the first class, or by magistrates of the second class empowered to commit for trial by the court of session. Indeed, if it were thought more convenient to put the proposed alteration into this form my suggestion would be to restrict the powers conferred by this section to magistrates of the first class and magistrates of the second class, either especially empowered thereunder or empowered to commit for trial by the court of session. This would mean practically that the section would not be used except in cases of serious crime, and I do not know that any attempt is made to use it in petty cases as the law now stands.

5. I would further make it obligatory under the law that the magistrate should, before commencing to record any such confession, question the person making it in order to satisfy himself that it is being made voluntarily, and to put on record as part of the examination the question so put by him to the accused and the answers returned by the latter. Pending some such alteration in the law I think these results might be secured by executive orders addressed to District Magistrates and police officers.

6. When this has been done, and as supplementary to these changes in the procedure, I think all the High Courts might be asked to issue instructions as to the recording of such confessions, and that District Magistrates should be required to see that these instructions are clearly brought to the notice of the first and second class magistrates concerned. As regards the particular form of instructions to be issued, those shown in the Government appendix as issued under the authority of the Judicial Commissioner of the Central Provinces seem to me to meet the case. I should be disposed to require the magistrate to place on record the fact that no police officer connected with the investigation of the case or the arrest of the accused is present in the room, or even within sight or hearing of the accused, while the confession is being recorded; indeed I think the examination ought to commence by putting this fact in the form of a question to the prisoner himself and recording his own admission of its truth. I should be prepared to draw up a certain set of questions which magistrates might be directed in every case to put to the accused before commencing to record his statement, and even to embody such questions in a printed form to be issued for the recording of confessions under section 164 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

7. If anything more than this is required, I think it should take the form of instructions issued departmentally by the head of the provincial police. In order to make such instructions of any value it would have to be clearly understood that a deliberate breach of the same on the part of an investigating officer would be considered an unpardonable offence, that is to say, unpardonable in the sense that some sort of punishment would in every case follow upon its commission. My own opinion is that if all investigating police officers could be got to understand once and for all that the obtaining of confessions in an improper manner, and getting them recorded under pressure, was an offence in the eyes of their departmental superiors and that they would not be allowed to plead in defence or extenuation that they really got hold of the right man or that no conviction of the guilty persons could have been secured at all unless some individual had been induced to speak by the exercise of trickery or judicious pressure, we should hear very little in the way of complaints about confessions obtained before the commencement of an inquiry or trial.

Opinion recorded by B. Lindsay, Esq., Second Additional Judicial Commissioner of Oudh, dated the 5th September 1911.

I have only a few observations to make on the proposals contained in the Government of India's letter.

(1) I do not think that it would be advisable to stop altogether the recording of confessions before trial.

(2) I would limit the power of recording confessions to magistrates who have been invested with powers to commit to sessions.

(3) I am of opinion that in these provinces generally magistrates do not take sufficient care to inquire into the circumstances attending the making of confessions so as to satisfy themselves that they are being made voluntarily. Before the confession is recorded there should be a full note made of the steps taken to ascertain the voluntary nature of the statement. I think it important, as laid down in some of the instructions, that the body of the accused should be examined in order to see if he has been subjected to any violence.

(4) I am in favour of the suggestion that before the confession is taken the accused should be allowed to spend a night out of police custody. And after the confession he should not again be remanded to police custody unless such a step is essential for the prosecution of the police inquiry.

(5) The law as to the admissibility of confessions against the person making them should be explained to the accused before he is allowed to make any statement, and a record of this having been done should be made in the proceedings.

(6) I approve of the direction issued by the Bombay High Court regarding the noting of the date and hour of the commission of the offence and the date and hour when the accused first came into police custody. The accused should himself be questioned on these points.

(7) I also strongly approve of the direction in the orders issued in the Central Provinces that the magistrate is not to ask "fishing" questions. No questions should be put except those that are necessary to enable the accused to explain any statement already made regarding the meaning of which the magistrate may have doubt.

Opinion recorded by L. G. Evans, Esq., Judicial Commissioner of Oudh

I agree generally with the notes made by my colleagues.

My experience is that it is fairly easy to ascertain whether a confession has in it any elements of truth.

Confessions made under police pressure can be detected if the circumstances under which it is (they are?) made are considered.

Broadly stated, true confessions come under two heads—

(1) confessions made by a criminal immediately after a crime, when he has committed a crime in the heat of passion and he knows he cannot get off undetected;

(2) confessions made by a criminal who has deliberately committed a crime, but who finds that sufficient evidence as to his guilt has been discovered by the police and his only hope of escape is to be an informer.

A striking instance of this occurred in a dakaiti case tried by the Judge of Gonda about fifteen months ago. A dakaiti occurred and by a piece of good luck the police got hold of overwhelming evidence against some six men and then they all made desperate efforts to be treated as informers and gave good details of the affair. The genuine nature of these confessions was obvious.

The existing rules as to recording confessions are very good, but much more depends on the good sense and intelligence of the magistrate who records the confession, and for this reason I would restrict the power of recording confessions to first class magistrates only.

Persons who have confessed should not be sent back to the police unless the magistrate certifies that such procedure is in his opinion absolutely necessary to complete the inquiry. Such certificates should not be given as a matter of form, but only after complete and careful consideration.

Enclosure No. 5 (ii).

No. 6090, dated Allahabad, the 18th November 1911.

From—S. P. O'DONNELL, Esq., Registrar, High Court of Judicature for the North-Western Provinces,

To—The Secretary to the Government of the United Provinces.

I am directed to reply to your letter No. 2293-VI—629, dated the 23rd-24th August 1911, enclosing a copy of a letter Nos. 781—790, dated the 12th-19th July 1911, from the Government of India, Home Department, with reference to the procedure to be followed in the production of accused persons before magistrates with the object of recording their confessions, and in recording such confessions.

(1) The Court are opposed to the suggestion "that the recording of confessions should be prohibited except in very special circumstances and under the orders of the District Magistrate." Whilst recognizing that the admissibility of confessions as evidence in a trial leads occasionally to grave abuses, they consider that a prohibition so rigorous as that proposed is, in the conditions obtaining in this country, undesirable and impracticable.

(2) They are entirely in favour however of the proposal that confessions should never be recorded by a third class magistrate. In their opinion confessions should, if this is not impossible, be invariably recorded before a first class magistrate.

(3) In practice difficulties, they apprehend, are likely to attend the enforcement of an absolute rule that a prisoner, who has confessed, should, in no circumstances, be returned to the police. But in their opinion a prisoner who has been produced by the police for the purpose of having his confession recorded should not be returned to police custody without the special order in writing of a first class magistrate, and that, whether he has or has not actually made a confession.

(4) The suggestion that before a confession is recorded an accused person should have spent at least one night out of police custody, has much in its favour, provided adequate arrangements for the proper segregation in the lock-up of the accused person can be made. Where no such arrangements can be made the proposal is in the Court's view impracticable.

(5) The adoption of the Bombay rule that confessing prisoners should be questioned as to whether they have suffered ill-treatment at the hands of the police is not, the Judges think, likely in practice to be of much benefit. It is already the duty of the magistrate to satisfy himself that the confession is being made voluntarily and not as the result of ill-treatment, and the prescribing of particular questions to be put to a confessing prisoner might conceivably defeat the very object aimed at.

Enclosure No. 6.

No. 18-C., dated the 2nd December 1913.

From—The Hon'ble Mr. C. A. BARRON, C.I.E., Chief Secretary to the Government of the Punjab,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department.

I am directed to reply to the letter of the Government of India detailed in the margin in which various suggestions are made for safeguarding accused persons who record confessions in criminal cases under investigation by the police.

Nos. 781—790, dated 12th July 1911.

The opinions of the Hon'ble Judges of the Chief Court were obtained and I am directed to forward a copy of those opinions. It will be noticed that the Hon'ble Judges are unanimous in expressing the opinion that confessions are of great evidential value; that in the vast majority of cases confessions made by accused persons are strictly voluntary; and that no general inference can be drawn from the frequent repudiation of confessions at a subsequent stage of enquiry or trial that they were, in the first instance, extorted by torture or undue pressure of other kinds. The Hon'ble Judges differ somewhat as to the necessity for minor alterations in the existing instructions relating to confessions, but on the broad question of the adequacy or otherwise of the procedure at present prescribed in providing the necessary safeguards they are entirely at one. With this general conclusion expressed so confidently by the highest tribunal in the Province Sir Michael O'Dwyer entirely concurs.

2. The Lieutenant-Governor does not consider that it would be expedient to abolish altogether the recording of confessions on the motion of the police. The existing rules of the Chief Court and of the Police Department direct that such confession should be recorded before the Magistrate exercising the highest powers, short of the District Magistrate, who can be reached within a reasonable time. Third class Magistrates are not allowed to record confessions unless in very exceptional circumstances, and resort to Honorary Magistrates is discountenanced. Magistrates who record confessions are already directed to enquire carefully from the accused whether any pressure or inducement has been brought to bear upon him. and it is their plain duty to examine the bodies of accused persons who make any complaint of personal injury. This duty, it has never been alleged, that Magistrates do not carry out conscientiously. Magistrates before remanding an accused person to police custody have to consider whether there are any reasons against this course, and ordinarily persons who refuse before a Magistrate to make any confession are not returned to the custody of the police. Those who do make confessions may be remanded to police custody if their assistance is required for the further investigation of the case, but are only so returned by written order of the Magistrate and for special reasons which should be recorded by the Magistrate.

3. Such being the instructions already in force on the subject, the Lieutenant-Governor does not advise that any radical alteration should be made in them except that he would be prepared to rule that confessions should usually be recorded only by the 1st or 2nd class Magistrates having jurisdiction in the case, exception being made for a proper discretion being exercised by other Magistrates with equal powers in urgent cases. His Honour would therefore exclude 3rd class Magistrates altogether, but would allow confessions to be recorded by specially empowered stipendiary Magistrates with 2nd class powers and by specially empowered Honorary Magistrates exercising 2nd class powers. Honorary Magistrates of the 1st class are rare in the Punjab and the powers are only conferred with the concurrence of the Chief Court on men of proved ability and experience. They are in His Honour's opinion perfectly fit to be entrusted with the duty of recording confessions. The Bombay rules referred to in paragraph 4 of your letter Nos. 781-790, dated 12th July 1911, correspond closely to the Punjab rules on the subject, but the Lieutenant-Governor would add to the latter the Bombay rule prescribing bodily examination of the accused when there is any allegation or suspicion of ill-treatment. Such a procedure is in the interests of the police themselves, and will tend to prevent the allegations of ill-treatment now so freely, and generally falsely, made at a subsequent stage when the accused retracts a confession.

4. In conclusion I am to express regret that as the result of a serious misunderstanding in office the reply to these letters has been so long delayed.

Enclosure No. 6 (i).

OPINIONS.

I am in favour of a confessing prisoner being taken at once to a Mag strate of the highest class available in order that his confessions may be recorded. There is usually no difficulty in finding a Magistrate of the 1st class and the duty of recording a confession should take precedence of ordinary duties.

It is a matter of common experience in this province that a prisoner, who confesses when he thinks denial is useless, withdraws his confession as soon as he has come in contact with experienced jail-birds, who advise him that the case against him is not as black as he thought. Record by a Magistrate tends to defeat the subsequent withdrawal. This Court has directed that prisoners should not be taken to a Magistrate of the 3rd class if one of a higher class is available without unreasonable delay. Magistrates have been directed to satisfy themselves that the confession is voluntary. For this purpose an examination of the prisoner's person is sometimes advisable. I would leave this to the discretion of the Magistrate. In my opinion confessions are usually made because the prisoner thinks denial hopeless or because his relations and neighbours know that he is guilty.

A. H. S. REID,
Chief Judge.

The 21st October 1911.

Enclosure No. 6 (ii).

I agree generally with the remarks of the Chief Judge, but wish to add one or two observations of my own.

I do not think confessions are by any means so useless as the letter of the Government of India would infer, nor do I think that the police of this province at any rate deserve that the inference should be drawn that torture is at least probable in all cases. I have come across some cases in which, in my belief, torture was to be very strongly suspected, but for one accusation of the kind which I have found to be true I have heard 99 certainly false. So far from my experience being that confessions "are adhered to," my own experience is that almost every confession, true or false, is retracted the moment the accused gets access to hardened criminals. In one case before me it was in evidence that one accused said to another who was being bullied to confess "what a fool you are—confess—and retract it afterwards," and I well remember years ago a Deputy Inspector of Police saying to me "Sahib, we have not much encouragement to treat prisoners well—whatever we do we are certain to be accused of torture." I know nothing of the police of the other provinces. I know the police of the Punjab well, and though I have had in the exercise of my duty to say hard things of individuals in the force, I think they do not in any way deserve the slur which would certainly be cast on them if some of these rules were brought into force. If we show no confidence whatever in our police, who else is likely to show any?

I think that confessions should be recorded before the Magistrate of the highest grade reasonably available and that, if any complaint of ill-treatment is made to him, or at any time to any Magistrate, then the Magistrate should immediately examine the person of the accused. A prisoner brought before a Magistrate to confess, and who refuses to do so, should not as a rule be allowed to go back into police custody. If he makes a confession which the Magistrate is convinced is voluntary the objection is less, but it should only be allowed by special order. I think confessions properly recorded and bearing on the face of them the marks of bonâ fides, are of the greater weight in most of the courts than either the Government of India letter or the remarks of Messrs. French and Wallace would imply. Students of criminology all point out that confessions, so far from being unusual and not to be expected, are the natural tendency of criminals of the "amateur" type, as most murderers in particular are. The principal precautions I recommend are—

(2) Magistrates should satisfy themselves that the confessions are voluntary.

(3) Accused persons brought up to have confessions recorded should not, except by special order after confession, be remanded to police custody, and never if they refuse to confess. The real danger of course is that accused persons should confess for fear of ill-treatment if they do not. I see the police point of view, but the police, when the accused has confessed to them and given valuable information, should consider whether most advantage lies in putting the accused up to confess, and so having to surrender custody of his person, or in the opposite course. I would not forbid the recording of confessions before trial.

F. A. ROBERTSON,
Judge.

The 24th October 1911.

Enclosure No. 6 (iii).

I agree with my colleagues that the Government of India letter underrates the value of the existing law and practice as to confessions. The law is sound enough and should be maintained. The abuses which come to light are so rare that no case is established for abolishing or even largely restricting the powers of Criminal Courts to consider duly authenticated confessions. The practice in the Punjab also seems to me generally sound enough. It was not always so and some years ago I held the view now suggested that the District Magistrate's permission should always be obtained before allowing record to be made of a confession. In recent years so much attention has been paid to the subject, and the police so well understand their duties in the matter, and there has on the whole been so much improvement all round, that I no longer think reference to District Magistrates required, or worth the trouble and delay involved. In a highly criminal province like the Punjab District Magistrates will never have the time to look into all confession cases closely enough to prevent their being anything more than a fifth wheel in the coach. Their advice is only required in special cases of importance, difficulty or doubt, and in these they ought to be consulted by the District Superintendent of Police, without being tied up by further rules.

I agree that men sent to Magistrates for confession should not be relegated to police custody, whether they confess or not. Otherwise I would make no change.

A. KENSINGTON,
Judge.

Enclosure No. 6 (iv).

I agree with my colleagues. My experience is that the cases of torture or pressure on the part of the police to induce confessions are rare and that in by far the majority of cases the original confession is made voluntarily. In order, however, to minimise the risk of illegal action on the part of the police, I would support the suggestion that in no case should the accused person be relegated to police custody.

H. A. B. RATTIGAN,
Judge.

The 11th December 1911.

Enclosure No. 6 (v).

Though I am by no means convinced that a confession made by an accused person in the course of the police investigation in this country is of much ev dential value, I do not think that the existing practice of recording such a confession should be done away with altogether. If it is recorded under proper safeguards, it may safely be treated as one link in the chain of evidence against the confessing accused; the weight to be attached to a confession so recorded is of course another matter, and it must vary according to the circumstances of each particular case.

I am certainly in favour of the proposal that ordinarily a confession should be recorded by a Magistrate of the first class, for Magistrates of lower grades do not usually realise the full responsibility of recording a confession strictly in accordance with the provisions of law on the subject and the general impression seems to be that they take down the confessional statements of the accused persons as a matter of routine without satisfying themselves that they are made voluntarily and not as the result of pressure or torture on the part of the police. The instructions which have been issued by our own Court on the subject are, in my opinion, generally sufficient to meet the necessities of the case, but unfortunately in practice they are not strictly observed by the Magistrates in the majority of cases, and that is one reason why complaints are rife as to confessions being improperly induced.

I also approve of the suggestion that an accused person who has once been brought to a Magistrate to have his confession recorded should not be remanded to police custody, whether he has made a confession or not. I further think that it would be a salutary rule to lay down that an accused person who is willing to confess should be kept out of the custody of the police for a reasonable length of time before his confession is actually recorded by a Magistrate, and the latter should expressly question him as to whether he has been ill-treated by the police.

M. SHAH-DIN,
Judge.

The 15th December 1911.

Enclosure No. 6 (vi).

The main points to be kept in view in dealing with the law as to confessions before trial are—

(a) that the investigation and detection of crime must not be unnecessarily and unduly hampered;

(b) that reasonable precautions must be taken to ensure that confessions are not improperly induced.

No doubt the second of these points is important, but I am inclined to think that in these humanitarian days the extreme importance of the first point is apt to be obscured. The task of detection of crime has always been difficult in the Punjab, and it is probably becoming more and more so as each year passes, and with a full sense of my responsibility I venture to express the opinion that the first point is, in the interests of the public at large, the more important of the two. I do not suggest that we should shut our eyes to the scandal and the cruelty of the illegal procuring of confessions; but before we proceed to make the work of the police more difficult than it already is, we should be quite certain that things are really as bad as they are said to be. Looking back on my 8 years' experience as a Magistrate and 10 years as a Sessions Judge, followed by 7 years in the Chief Court, I have formed the opinion that things are not really as bad as they are now said to be, and it is my firm opinion that no case has been made out for further stringency in the rules and the law. Vigilance is required now as always, for rules and laws are apt to be overlooked and infringed, but any further tying of the hands of the police and any further depriving them of their natural weapons against the criminal will do more harm than good.

The suggestion of the Government of India that the recording of confessions before trial might be given up altogether goes much too far. According to all rational theories of relevancy of evidence a voluntary confession before trial is relevant and extremely valuable, and the mere fact that sometimes it is hard to say whether a confession was voluntary or not is no sufficient reason for adopting the clumsy expedient of ruling out all confessions made before trial. To me it seems obvious that the proper course is to take reasonable precautions and then to leave the court trying the case to determine whether the confession was voluntary or not.

As regards precautions, I agree with my brother Robertson in his final summing up, and especially as regards remand to police custody. Such remand should never be made if the prisoner has, on being placed before a Magistrate, refused to confess, but it is obvious that there are many cases in which police custody of the prisoner is necessary for the proper completion of the investigation. I would go so far as to say that when a prisoner has confessed to a Magistrate before trial, there is ordinarily no objection to his being remanded to police custody, and that this should always be done, if the police intimate its necessity, unless the Magistrate sees some positive objection.

As regards questioning the prisoner and examination of his body before a Magistrate records his confession, in practice Magistrates do ask a prisoner if he has been ill-treated in any way, and no doubt, if his suspicions are aroused, a Magistrate will also look at the prisoner's body; but I would deprecate the passing of a rule that he should make such an examination.

I entirely agree in Kensington Judge's rejection of the proposal that no confessions should be recorded before trial except by order of the District Magistrate. The delays and trouble would be intolerable and the resulting good infinitesimal.

Enclosure No. 7.

No. 602T.—7P.-2, dated Maymyo, the 1st June 1912.

From—The Hon'ble Mr. W. F. RICE, C.S.I., I.C.S., Chief Secretary to the Government of Burma,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department.

I am directed to refer to your letter No. 781—790 (Police), dated the 19th July 1911, relating to the procedure to be followed in the production before Magistrates of accused persons to have their confessions recorded, and in the recording by Magistrates of the confessions of persons so produced.

2. The first question stated in your letter was whether, on a balance of advantages and disadvantages, it pays to have confessions recorded at all before the trial commences, except in very special circumstances and by order of the District Magistrate. And in support of the suggestion that the recording of confessions before trial might suitably be stopped altogether, it was alleged that while a genuine confession may possibly be obtained in the first excitement of an inquiry, the confession will frequently be retracted later, and experience shows that in such a case the Courts will demand such ample corroboration as would have been adequate for a conviction without the confession. The other question stated was whether, if it is considered impossible to go so far as to stop altogether the recording of confessions before trial, any and if so what additional safeguards should be prescribed. The Lieutenant-Governor consulted a number of officers of experience in this Province with regard to those questions, but His Honour does not think it necessary to trouble the Government of India with copies of all the correspondence; it is sufficient to note that only a small minority of the officers consulted were in favour of abolishing absolutely the recording of confessions before trial. The Hon'ble Judges of the Chief Court were included in that minority, and I am to submit a copy of their Registrar's letter* in which they "strongly recommend that recorded confessions made to any person in authority before the magisterial inquiry into an offence commences should be held inadmissible evidence." I am now to set forth the Lieutenant-Governor's own opinion in the matter.

* No. 92—16-3, dated the 9th January 1912, from W. B. Brander, Esq., I.C.S., Officiating Registrar, Chief Court of Lower Burma, to the Chief Secretary to the Government of Burma.

3. Sir Harvey Adamson is strongly of opinion that the recording of confessions before trial should not be stopped. A confession is evidence for what it is worth; and the Lieutenant-Governor cannot admit that evidence should be intentionally ignored. His Honour indeed concurs fully in the opinion expressed in the following words by Mr. B. S. Carey, C.I.E., Commissioner of the Sagaing Division:—

"On the other hand the use of confessions against an accused is a practice which common justice demands. Evidence should not intentionally be ignored. It would in my opinion be wrong to disallow confessions entirely. It is our business to teach and control the police by other means than by handicapping the administration of justice, and I disapprove of the proposal to do away with confessions, as being a departure from the plain course which justice dictates."

Nor can the Lieutenant-Governor admit the correctness of the remark in your letter, that in the case of a retracted confession the courts demand such ample corroboration as would be adequate for a conviction apart from the confession; and Sir Harvey Adamson is not without experience on which to base his contrary opinion. During the last five years, in the Home Department of the Government of India and as head of this Province, His Honour has had occasion to deal with every one of the numerous cases of sentences of death which come up for clemency to the Governor-General in Council and to the Local Government respectively; and His Honour had also previous experience as Judicial Commissioner of Upper Burma and as Chief Judge of the Chief Court of Lower Burma. Sir Harvey Adamson ventures to say, without fear of contradiction, that the High Courts, Chief Courts and Judicial Commissioners thoughout India frequently find that retracted confessions have been voluntarily made, and having so found attach weight to them; and that in many cases in which the accused persons have been found guilty the independent corroboration was in fact not sufficiently ample to have led to a conviction without the confession.

4. The Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt that to a European mind the prevalence of confession in the East is very astonishing. As an instance of this, it may be remarked that for some time after the annexation of Upper Burma almost every prisoner, if guilty, at once confessed his guilt. Further acquaintance with civilization and with our methods of administering justice has altered this practice in Upper Burma, but there can be no doubt that in Burma at the present day, and in India too, there is a strong tendency for the guilty to confess. In China, as the Lieutenant-Governor is informed, confession, however obtained, is a necessary antecedent to conviction. The following extract from a letter received from Lieutenant-Colonel D. J. C. Macnabb, I.A., Commissioner and Sessions Judge of the Magwe Division of Upper Burma, may suitably be given here, not only as illustrating the tendency of the Burman, when guilty, to make true confession, but also as affording proof that even retracted confessions are of value as evidence:—

"If prisoners are willing and anxious to confess, they should be allowed to do so. All the senior Magistrates in this Division concur in the opinion that the great majority of confessions made in this Province are true and assist the administration of justice. If a Burman, after arrest, the natural revulsion of feeling following the commission of a crime, the effort of concealment or evasion of arrest, combined in a large number of cases with the knowledge that his whole village knows he is guilty, induce him to confess. Just as surely the realization that such general knowledge will not avail to convict him, and the advice of advocates and relatives, lead him to retract later. In two cases during the past year I have convicted in murder cases on retracted confessions, and both convictions have been maintained in appeal."

Whatever may be the cause of the tendency to confess, there is certainly a great difference in this respect in the temperament of the Oriental and the European. Undoubtedly confession is prevalent in the East; and Sir Harvey Adamson thinks that few will deny that only a small proportion of the confessions made are due to police torture and illegal inducements. Whatever the cause, at one time or another there comes to many criminals the desire to confess. If taken at this psychological moment, the criminal produces evidence against himself which is the best evidence possible, being the evidence of his own lips. If not taken at the proper time the criminal regains his normal confidence and decides to divulge nothing, with the result that evidence which might have been recorded against him is lost. Sir Harvey Adamson believes it to be beyond dispute that the detection of crime by evidence apart from confession is far more difficult in the East than in England. When a serious crime has been committed in England, the ordinary citizen is against the criminal and on the side of the police. Evidence is easily obtainable, for all persons who know anything material are ready to produce what they know. But in the East it is quite the reverse. Whether from direct antipathy, apathy, fear of reprisal or a disinclination to be mixed up in the matter, the instinct in India is to stand aloof and to give no assistance to the police. It is a matter of common occurrence, within the experience of every District Magistrate and police officer, that a serious crime occurs, the circumstances of which render it morally certain that many persons in the neighbourhood know all about it, and yet not a single witness is obtainable. In these conditions criminal justice in the East cannot, in Sir Harvey Adamson's opinion, afford to ignore any available source of evidence; and His Honour believes that it would be disastrous to discard the evidence of confession.

5. At the same time the Lieutenant-Governor believes that the existing procedure in recording confessions is in urgent need of improvement; and His Honour's opinion to that effect has been already placed before the Government of India in Mr. Fell's letter* relating to the proposed amendment of the Code of Criminal Procedure, to which I am to invite a reference. The frequent retracting of confessions has given rise to serious scandal, but in His Honour's view it is not surprising that confessions, recorded as they are at present, inspire little confidence. The practice is to record a confession simply as the accused chooses to make it; and this puts a premium on tutored confessions, because it is easy to tutor a person as to the substance of a confession when the tutor knows that the statement will be recorded without any attempt to test its truth. The instructions which have been laid down require a Magistrate to question a confessing prisoner as to whether he has come voluntarily to confess, but when the prisoner's statement has been recorded in his own words, the High Courts discourage any further examination of the prisoner with a view to elicit the truth. In Sir Harvey Adamson's opinion what is wanted is to make the confessions themselves contain evidence not only of their voluntary nature but of their truth, so that the Courts which subsequently deal with them may have internal evidence on which to judge of their weight. It is easy for a tutored prisoner to say what he has been told; it is not easy for him to sustain a cross-examination on all the facts which he has stated, and on all the facts which he must know if what he has stated is true. Much greater reliance could be placed on confessions, whether retracted or not, if Magistrates were enjoined, after recording the confession in the prisoner's own words, thereupon to examine him closely as to the statements made by him, as if he were a witness whose evidence the Magistrate distrusted. In Mr. Fell's letter which I have cited the Lieutenant-Governor recommended the amendment of the Criminal Procedure Code on the lines of Scotch Law, by which a prisoner is subjected to examination, before trial, at the hands of the Sheriff and the Procurator Fiscal, and Sir Harvey Adamson adheres to that recommendation. His Honour is aware that objection may be taken to that proposal on the ground that an accused person ought not to be compelled to submit to examination, but in the cases which are now under discussion the position is different. When an accused person has voluntered a confession, there can be no reasonable objection on his part to every means being taken to ascertain from his own lips whether the confession is both voluntary and true. The Lieutenant-Governor's recommendation therefore is that the law should be amended, if necessary, so as to provide that when a confession has been recorded, its truth should be forthwith tested by the Magistrate who has recorded it, by closely questioning the accused on the statements made by him, with the object of ascertaining whether the confession is true or is the mere result of suggestion.

*No. 1018-M.—L.-5, dated the 5th July 1911.

6. While the remarks in the foregoing paragraphs are applicable to India as a whole, I am to submit the following considerations to show that even if the recording of confessions were stopped in India, there are good grounds for extending a different treatment to Burma. In my letter No. 601-T.—7-P.-2, dated the 31st May 1912, the Lieutenant-Governor has pointed out that in Burma cases of serious ill-treatment of prisoners in police custody are comparatively rare, and that cases of actual torture are almost non-existent. In support of that statement certain extracts from letters written by officers of experience were submitted. In addition to those extracts, I am now to cite the following opinion recorded by the Commissioner of the Magwe Division, namely, that "neither I nor the senior officers in this Division know of a single case of proved police torture or extortion of a confession in Burma." There is indeed a general consensus of opinion, in which the Lieutenant-Governor concurs, that torture or serious ill-treatment of prisoners by the police in order to compel them to confess is very infrequent in Burma. The grinding poverty which oppresses large classes of the population in India does not exist in this Province; the police share the merits and failings of the general population, which is more truthful and less skilled in intrigue than other races in India; the people of Burma are more independent and less afraid of the police; there is in Burma, as the Government of India are aware, a thoroughly efficient system of village administration, and the village headmen, who take an important part in investigating crime, are entirely independent of the police: and finally, District officers in Burma are in touch with the people, and serious oppression is not likely to pass unnoticed. The Lieutenant-Governor regards it as beyond doubt that abuses in the matter of extorting confessions are less frequent in Burma than elsewhere in India, and believes that the existing safeguards are sufficient for the protection of prisoners in police custody. His Honour therefore recommends that if the Government of India decide to abolish the system of recording confessions in India, Burma may be excepted from the rule, and that in this Province confessions may continue to be recorded and given in evidence as heretofore.

7. In conclusion, and with regard to the minor safeguards suggested in your letter, I am to say that, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, confessions should be recorded by those Magistrates only who have some experience; and His Honour would therefore restrict the power of recording confessions to Magistrates of the first class and to Magistrates of the second class who have been specially empowered in that behalf. But as regards the proposals (1) that a prisoner who has confessed should in no circumstances be given back into police custody, and (2) that a prisoner about to confess should have spent at least one night out of police custody, I am to explain that both of these are quite impracticable in Burma. In the great majority of cases occurring in this Province,—i.e., in all cases occurring elsewhere than at a comparatively few stations where there are jails,—there is no custody except police custody into which a prisoner could be returned after confession or in which he could be detained beforehand.

Enclosure No. 7 (i).

No. 92—16-3, dated the 9th January 1912.

From—W. B. BRANDER, Esq., I.C.S., Officiating Registrar, Chief Court, Lower Burma,
To—The Chief Secretary to the Government of Burma.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 321—7 P.-5, dated the 11th August 1911, and to say that the Honourable Judges have considered the subject mentioned in this correspondence and have, in accordance with the requests conveyed in your letters of the 18th August and the 21st October, issued a general letter No. 6, dated the 20th September 1911, and a circular which is at present in press, copies of which are attached.

2. As regards the recording of confessions, the system of recording confessions by a Magistrate other than the one who holds the enquiry, and before the enquiry begins, gives rise to the most numerous cases of complaints against the police so far as they come before the Courts. If the law did not permit confessions to be recorded before the commencement of the magisterial inquiry the Honourable Judges feel confident that complaints against the police would greatly diminish. They would hope that as the motive for procuring confessions from accused would be lessened, malpractices on the part of the police with a view to obtaining them would diminish.

The Honourable Judges would strongly recommend that recorded confessions made to any person in authority before the magisterial inquiry into an offence commences should be held inadmissible in evidence.

The reasons already stated above justify this suggestion; but there are others. In the experience of the Honourable Judges retracted confessions are more frequently a source of weakness in the prosecution of a case than a means of securing a conviction.

They would not prevent a prisoner from making a confession during the inquiry to the Magistrate holding it. If an accused should make a statement incriminating himself during an inquiry, he would do so with full knowledge that he was being proceeded against to the end and in many cases he would do so after he had been away from police influence for a considerable time. Such a confession would necessarily have great weight, although it might subsequently be retracted.

The Honourable Judges believe that the adoption of this course would have the following good results:—

The police would in their investigations be compelled to do their utmost to secure sufficient evidence to secure the conviction of the offender apart from any confession of guilt he might wish to make. The case would not be weakened by a subsequent withdrawal of dubious confession and allegations of ill-treatment in connection with it. Investigations by the police would be specially held and not dragged on from day to day in the hope that the time might lead to a confession on the part of the accused. If an accused showed signs of a willingness to confess, the police would have every incentive to complete the investigation with a view to the appearance as soon as possible of the accused before the Magistrate. They would, however, quickly learn that it was not advisable to send up an accused on weak evidence in the hope that he would admit his participation in the crime charged against him.

The Honourable Judges are convinced that if their suggestion is accepted the detective efficiency of the police force will increase and all round better work will be secured.

3. If, however, the system of confessions taken before the commencement of magisterial inquiry is retained, the Honourable Judges do not think it advisable to limit the recording of confessions by reference to circumstances, the special nature of which is to be decided on by the District Magistrate. Such a system would, in their opinion, scarcely be practicable. They think it would be sufficient if the power to record confessions were confined to first class and second class Magistrates.

4. The proposals that it should be made an absolute rule that once a prisoner has confessed he should in no circumstances be given back into police custody and that it might also be possible to lay down that before a confession is recorded an accused person should have spent at least one night out of police custody would not, in the opinion of the Honourable Judges, be practicable in this province.

5. As the proposal that all the persons when produced before the Magistrate should be questioned as to whether they have suffered ill-treatment at the hands of the police, and that an examination of the prisoner's body should be made, if an allegation of ill-treatment is made, has already been adopted, no comment appears to be necessary.

6. To the proposal that the law should be amended if necessary so as to provide that when a confession has been recorded, its truth should be forthwith tested by the Magistrate who has recorded it by close questioning of the accused on the statements made by him with the object of ascertaining whether the confession is true or merely the result of tutoring, the Honourable Judges have no objection.

7. Although actual ill-treatment of prisoners by the police is believed to be uncommon in this province, there is ground for belief that the exercise of inducement in various forms other than actual ill-treatment with a view to obtaining confessions from prisoners is far too frequent. This practice would best be met by making confession whilst in police custody futile as proof against a prisoner.

Malpractices generally on the part of the inferior police can only adequately be met by constant and close supervision by the superior officers of the force, and by frequent visits of Magistrates to lock-ups with a view to seeing that prisoners under detention there are properly treated.

Further a system under which all complaints by prisoners must be brought to the notice of the District Magistrate should inspire confidence in them that their complaints will be duly considered.

Enclosure No. 7 (i) (a).

No. 6, dated Rangoon, the 20th September 1911.

From—W. B. BRANDER, Esq., I.C.S., Officiating Registrar of the Chief Court of Lower Burma,
To—All Sessions Judges and Magistrates.

The attention of all Sessions Judges and Magistrates is invited to the provisions regulating retracted confessions and alleged misconduct by the police contained in paragraph 129 of the Courts Manual.

At the request of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, the Honourable Judges further direct that in all cases in which strictures are passed upon the conduct of the police by any Court whether in a judgment or by means of a separate note, a copy of the judgment or separate note should be sent at once to the District Magistrate concerned, or in Rangoon Town to the Commissioner of Police.

Enclosure No. 7 (i) (b).

No. , dated Rangoon, the January 1912.

To—All Sessions Judges and Magistrates.

The Honourable Judges have had their attention drawn to the fact that confessions are not recorded in the manner prescribed by law.

Under section 164 read with section 364, Code of Criminal Procedure, it is necessary that each question and answer should be recorded separately. Instead of following this course Magistrates frequently record confessions in one continuous narrative.

When confession is taken in this fashion contrary to the provisions of the Code, no presumption of genuineness arises under section 80, Indian Evidence Act, and the confession as it stands is not admissible as evidence. This error can be cured in the manner provided in section 533, Code of Criminal Procedure, by the Court which tries the case examining the Magistrate who recorded the confession as indicated in that section. He should be asked to state so far as he can remember the nature of the questions put up to the accused. It is desirable to ascertain whether any leading questions were put and whether the Magistrate at the time of recording the confession had any knowledge from other sources of the facts of the case and of the facts which the accused might be expected to state. The accused should be present at the examination of the Magistrate and should be given an opportunity of cross-examination.

2. The confession itself is recorded in Form Criminal 68 which has been amended so as to make obvious the necessity for recording separately each question and answer. Form Criminal 69 is at the request of the Local Government also being amended so as to provide that before a Magistrate signs the certificate prescribed by section 164, Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, he shall satisfy himself that no inducement, threat or promise has been made in order to induce a confession and shall arrive at a positive belief that the confession has been voluntarily made. In this connection, the Magistrate shall wherever possible examine the body of the accused, provided that the accused consents to such examination, and if there appear to be grounds for suspecting violence he shall also, if possible, have the accused examined by a medical officer. The following additions are being made to the rules regarding confessions contained in paragraph 127 of the Courts Manual:—

To rule 2 add after "is voluntarily made"—

"and that no inducement, threat or promise has been made in order to induce a confession."

As the second sentence to Rule 2 insert (the present second sentence becoming the third)—

"The Magistrate must, wherever possible, examine the body of the accused, provided that the accused consents to such examination, and if there appear to be grounds for suspecting violence he must also, if possible, have the accused examined by a medical officer."

Add at the end of rule 5—

"It is of the utmost importance that a Magistrate should arrive at a positive belief that the confession has been voluntarily made before signing the certificate."

Enclosure No. 8.

Dated Calcutta, the 31st March 1912.

From—The Hon'ble Mr. H. LEMESURIER, C.S.I., C.I.E., Chief Secretary to the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam.

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department.

I am directed to refer to Sir A. Earle's letter No. 781—790, dated the 12th-19th July 1911, in which the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam was requested to examine the rules in force in this province on the subject of the procedure to be followed both in the production before Magistrates of accused persons in order to have their confessions recorded, and in the recording by Magistrates of the confessions of persons so produced.

The Government of India inv ted the Lieutenant-Governor's attention to the following specific questions in connection with the amendment of the existing rules, and have asked that the Provincial Regulations on the subject may be submitted to a searching examination in the light of the suggestions made and where necessary amended in consultation with the highest judicial authority :—

(1) In the first place it is asked whether, on a balance of advantages and disadvantages, it pays to have confessions recorded at all before the trial commences, except in very special circumstances, and by order of the District Magistrate ;

(2) whether in case it is not possible to stop altogether the recording of confessions before trial on the motion of the police, the safeguards which are already prescribed with a view to ensure their voluntary character might not be made more stringent ;

(3) whether the power of recording such confessions should not be taken away altogether from Magistrates of the third class and restricted to the Magistrate having jurisdiction to try the case or at least to first class, or specially selected second class Magistrates ;

(4) whether it should not be made an absolute rule that once a prisoner has confessed he should never be remanded to police custody, and that before his confession is recorded an accused person shall have spent at least one night out of police custody ; and

(5) whether a rule similar to that obtaining in Bombay should not be framed requiring that all confessing prisoners when first produced after arrest should be questioned as to whether they have suffered any ill-treatment at the hands of the police.

2. The subject has received the most careful consideration of the Lieutenant-Governor. Selected officers both of the Executive and the Judicial, members of the service including the High Court have been consulted and a copy of the opinion of the Hon'ble Judges is annexed to this letter. In regard to the first question, the weight of opinion and notably that of the High Court is against the exclusion of such confessions from evidence, inasmuch as they are often of great assistance in elucidating the facts of a case. In this view Sir Charles Bayley concurs. He agrees however to the proposed alternative that such confessions should only be recorded by a first class magistrate or a Subdivisional Officer. He further concurs in the proposal that before a confession is recorded the prisoner should have been out of custody of the police for at least 24 hours. It is very essential that he should during this period also be kept apart from other prisoners in the jail in which he is confined.

3. The Lieutenant-Governor is in full agreement with the views of the Hon'ble Judges of the High Court quoted below, in regard to the remand of a confessing prisoner to police custody for the purpose of verifying his confession :—

"The practice of verifying confessions should be carefully limited and should be confined to a verification of the facts which have been stated by the prisoner. Cases have been brought to notice in which the so-called verification has been used as a means of obtaining admissions to corroborate facts which have come to light after the confession has been made. This practice should be discontinued and a verification for the purpose of amplifying a confession should not be allowed. A verification of a confession should be entrusted to an experienced Magistrate who should accompany the accused to the places referred to by him, and his proceedings should be restricted to verification and discovery of facts and local features which themselves either prove or disprove the truth of the statement. The investigating police officer should not be present at the time of the verification and only a sufficient police guard to prevent the prisoner from escaping." The rules already in force in this province provide that the guard shall consist not of police officers but of jail warders or persons of the Magistrate's Court and have thus anticipated the High Court's wishes.

4. As regards the desirability of a rule directing that when an accused person is first produced after arrest he should be questioned as to whether he has suffered any ill-treatment at the hands of the police, I am to refer to paragraph 9 of my letter No. 833-Pl., dated the 16th March 1912, in which the Government of India have already been informed that such a rule will be embodied in the Eastern Bengal and Assam Police Manual and circulated to Magistrates through Commissioners.

5. In conclusion His Honour is convinced of the profound truth of the Hon'ble Judges' comment that the best safeguard against the acceptance of an untrue confession improperly obtained will be found in the care and ability displayed by the Magistrate who is entrusted with the duty of recording it. No effort has been spared to impress upon Magistrates the importance of exercising these qualities when recording confessions, and the Lieutenant-Governor's displeasure has been communicated to police officers who have endeavoured to obtain advantage by producing a prisoner before inexperienced and incompetent Magistrates in order to obtain a confession unfairly. He ventures, however, to point out that as a corrollary it is essential that the Courts should receive with fairness and candour the testimony, whether oral or conveyed by the certificates signed under the provisions of the law, by Magistrates who have recorded confessions as to the correctness of the record and the due observance of the precaution laid down by law or by rule. Instances have not been unknown in which Judicial officers influenced either by solicitude for the prisoner's defence or by the insistence of his pleader have allowed their attention to be directed rather to the action of the Magistrate by whom the confession was recorded than to the question of the guilt or innocence of the accused—a state of things which has not always been conducive to the object with which Courts have been established.

Enclosure No. 8 (i).

No. 75, dated Calcutta, the 29th February 1912.

From—R. L. Ross, Esq., I.C.S., Registrar of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, Appellate Side,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam, Revenue and General Departments.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 2844-Pl., dated the 24th August 1911, with which you forwarded a copy of a letter No. 781-790, dated the 12th July 1911, and enclosures, from the Government of India in the Home Department, regarding the procedure to be followed both in the production before Magistrates of accused persons to have their confessions recorded, and in the recording by Magistrates of the confessions of persons so produced. You requested that the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam might be favoured with the expression of the views of the Hon'ble the Chief Justice and Judges on the subject.

2. In reply, I am to say that the first question on which the opinion of the Court is asked is whether, on a balance of advantages and disadvantages, it is desirable to have confessions recorded at all before the trial commences, except in very special circumstances and by order of the District Magistrate. In the opinion of the Judges, the answer to this question should be in the affirmative. They think that any man who is alleged to be implicated in a crime should, if he so desire, be permitted to make any statement either admitting his guilt or explaining any facts or circumstances which appear to inculpate him, and to have that statement recorded by a trustworthy and experienced magistrate.

3. The next point raised in Sir Archdale Earle's letter touches the safeguards which exist and suggests that they may be made more stringent.

On this point the Court recommends that the statement made by an accused person should ordinarily be recorded by a Magistrate who has jurisdiction to try or enquire into the case. Only in the event of such a magistrate not being available should a junior or an honorary Magistrate be allowed to record it. No police officer who has been engaged in the investigation should be allowed to be present when the statement is recorded and only those officers who may be necessary to guard the prisoner.

4. The Judges think that the practice of verifying confessions should be carefully limited and should be confined to a verification of the facts which have been stated by the prisoner. Cases have been brought to notice in which the so-called verification has been used as a means of obtaining admissions to corroborate facts which have come to light after the confession has been made. This practice should be discontinued, and a verification for the purpose of amplifying a confession should be disallowed. A verification of a confession should be entrusted to an experienced Magistrate who should accompany the accused to the places referred to by him, and his proceedings should be restricted to the verification and discovery of facts and local features which themselves either prove or disprove the truth of the statement. The investigating police officer should not be present at the time of the verification and only a sufficient police guard to prevent the prisoner from escaping.

5. Where the prisoner alleges that improper influence, physical and moral, has been brought to bear on him to induce a confession, the charge should be promptly investigated; and where physical violence is said to have been used the prisoner should be examined at once by a medical officer.

6. In conclusion the Judges desire to suggest that the best safeguard against the acceptance of an untrue confession improperly obtained will be found in the care and ability displayed by the magistrate who is entrusted with the duty of recording it. They think that no advantage would be gained by a further elaboration of the rules in force in this province regulating the procedure to be followed after the prisoner has been brought to the presence of the Magistrate. The only essential is that the magistrate who records the statement shall be an officer of intelligence and experience sufficient to enable him to determine whether it is a free and voluntary confession and not a statement which is the result of outside influence.

Enclosure No. 9.

No. 116, dated Nagpur, the 4th April 1912.

From—E. A. DEBRETT, Esq., I.C.S., Chief Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department.

I am directed to refer to Mr. (now Sir Archdale) Earle's letter No. 781—790, dated the 12th July 1911, on the subject of the procedure to be followed both in the production before Magistrates of accused persons to have their confession recorded, and in the recording by Magistrates of the confessions of persons so produced.

The first question put by the Government of India is whether, on a balance of advantages and disadvantages, it pays to have confessions recorded at all before the trial commences except in very special circumstances under the orders of the District Magistrate. The two great disadvantages which are said to attach to the present system are—(a) that the police are tempted to devote their efforts to obtaining confessions to the neglect of the evidence, and (b) that the confessions are often obtained by ill-treatment or actual torture. It is also said that the confessions, when obtained, are seldom of any use, since they are generally retracted, and if not retracted but confirmed at the trial, are superfluous. It is claimed that the repeal of section 164 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, would lead to a great improvement in police work and would remove the occasion for a great deal of abuse now heaped on the police on account of some real and many imaginary cases of torture, while it would deprive the Courts of little or no material of real value. On the other hand, it is urged that the confessions that are of value to the police are those which lead to the discovery of property or of circumstantial evidence, and that the fact that confessions could no longer be recorded by a Magistrate would in no way diminish the temptation to extort such confessions by improper means, that the old type of police officer whose sole idea was to get a confession and then sit down with folded hands and wait for the necessary sequel of a conviction, is rapidly disappearing, that it cannot be said either that subsequently confirmed confessions are superfluous or that retracted confessions are valueless, and that to repeal the section would in certain classes of cases deprive the prosecution of a valuable weapon.

3. The Chief Commissioner has consulted the Judges of the Judicial Commissioner's Court, the Inspector-General of Police and all Commissioners and District Magistrates, and I am to enclose for the information of the Government of India the opinions recorded by the Judges of the Judicial Commissioner's Court and by Mr. J. Hullah, I.C.S., Deputy Commissioner, Narsinghpur. There is much difference of opinion, but, broadly speaking, the Judges are in favour of maintaining the present system with added safeguards, and the police and the majority of executive officers are in favour of abandoning recorded confession altogether. Mr. Fox-Strangways hesitates in such a matter to put aside the almost unanimous opinion of the Police Department supported as it is by several District Magistrates of experience. But he agrees with those officers who have expressed the view that the abandonment of the magisterial record of confessions would in no way reduce either the temptation or the opportunities to put pressure on accused persons and that thus what he takes to be the main object of the proposed change would not be served. As to the improvement in the efficiency of police investigations which is expected to follow from the removal of the snare of the recorded confession, the Chief Commissioner believes that the steady improvement of the police force, especially in the investigating ranks, is eliminating this source of weakness and that Government should not seek a somewhat problematical improvement in general methods by abandoning altogether the use of confessions so long as it can be shown that they are of definite use in certain cases.

4. There are certainly cases where without a confession recorded early in the proceedings no conviction would ever be obtained. Mr. Fox-Strangways believes that in the Alipur Bomb case the confessions of some of the accused were of extreme value and that without them some of the persons convicted would have escaped. Then there are confessions of crime, such as murder, to which there were no eye-witnesses, confessions made out of bravado by the dacoit or political offender who glories in his crime, and the confession made at or near the scene of the crime, among people who know the facts and the actors and under the pressure of a public opinion which the accused cannot resist. All of these may be retracted later, but a confession made with great detail may often bear upon it such an impress of truth that subsequent retractation does not destory its value. Again an early confession may have great value in enabling the prosecution to select approvers, and the magisterially recorded confession is at least undoubted evidence of the confession having been made and may thus be admissible under section 27 of the Evidence Act when the evidence of the police might be distrusted.

5. The Chief Commissioner agrees with the generally expressed opinion that the power to record confessions before trial might be restricted to first class or specially selected second class Magistrates and does not think it is necessary to limit it to the Magistrate actually inquiring into the case. He does not consider it either practicable or necessary to lay down that an accused person who has confessed should not be remanded to police custody. It is not the man who has confessed, but the man who has not yet confessed who is in need of protection. In order to make certain that the confession was not due to fear of police ill-treatment it would be necessary that the accused should be assured that if he were put up to confess and refused to do so or made only a partial confession he would not be remanded to police custody. The Chief Commissioner considers that this could not be done and that in many cases confessing prisoners must be returned to police custody for the purpose of pointing out property, and so on. In his opinion it is hardly practicable to provide that the accused should always spend one night out of police custody before confessing, though it might be an executive order that this should be arranged for where time and other circumstances allow.

6. As regards the actual procedure before the Magistrate, the Chief Commissioner agrees with the Judicial Commissioner that no further precautions other than those prescribed in section III of Criminal No. 1—7 appear necessary to safeguard the interests of justice.

Enclosure No. 9 (i).

No. 559, dated Narsinghpur, the 30th August 1911.

From—J. HULLAH, ESQ., I.C.S., Deputy Commissioner, Narsinghpur,
To—The Commissioner, Nerbudda Division, Hoshangabad.

I have the honour to reply to your endorsement No. 466, dated the 17th August 1911, forwarding certain papers in which it is suggested that the practice of recording confessions under section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code may be abandoned, and to say that I am wholly opposed to this suggestion.

2. The question may be considered in two aspects—

Firstly: as affecting the administration of justice and the discovering of truth;

Secondly: as tending to improve police work and to prevent oppression by the police.

3. As regards the former of these two aspects, I do not think that we should allow to pass unchallenged the Government of India's statement that "in an unsophisticated community a confessing prisoner will ordinarily persist in his confession throughout the proceedings." Experience, I would submit, shows that this is not "ordinarily" the case. However unsophisticated a prisoner may be, he will almost invariably meet in the under-trial ward of the jail other under-trial prisoners who are a good deal less unsophisticated than himself, and who will point out to him the folly of his confession; moreover there is good reason to believe that the subordinate jail officials are themselves not infrequently guilty of similar well-meant or ill-meant interference.

4. Next, as regards the value of confessions. While it is obvious that considerable value must be attached to confessions which are not retracted until a late stage in the proceedings has been reached—as, for instance, a confession persisted in before the committing Magistrate, but retracted before the Sessions Court—yet I am quite prepared to agree that in many cases confessions, especially those retracted at an early stage of the proceedings, are practically valueless. Such valueless confessions are usually mere bald admissions of guilt with little in the way of supplementary detail or narrative. But there are other confessions, which, though immediately retracted, are so full of detail that they bear on their face the unmistakable impress of truth. The value of detail in a confession does not seem to have received sufficient notice in such rulings as I have been able to consult on the subject of confessions. But I have found one ruling (Indian Law Reports, 20 Allahabad, 133) where this point is well emphasized. The ruling is concerned with the conviction of two persons against whom there was practically no evidence except their own confessions subsequently retracted. The High Court, in upholding the conviction, remarked as follows:—

> "Where confession is not supported by the evidence of witnesses, a Judge must examine very carefully to see whether it gives those details which indicate that it is a natural narrative of what took place in the presence of the man making it . . . . In the present case the confession is full of detail, it is very circumstantial and bears on it, in our opinion, the impress of truth."

If we abandon the practice of sending accused persons before the Magistrates for making confessions, we run the risk of losing not only the three kinds of confessions referred to in paragraph 3 of the Local Administration's letter, but also the not infrequent cases where the confession is full of detail, and therefore of the utmost value.

5. Still a further consideration, in considering the question in its bearing on the courts of justice, is the fact that the Magistrate's record of the confession is conclusive proof that the confession, even if untrue or subsequently retracted, was actually made. Section 27 of the Evidence Act allows the proof of such information, whether it amounts to a confession or not as relates to a fact discovered thereby, and the Hon'ble the Chief Commissioner has remarked that such confessions would not be affected by the repeal of section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code. In reply to this suggestion I would submit that if the practice of recording confessions under section 164 is abandoned, it will always be open to the accused to deny that he ever gave information to the police at all, and to say that therefore the fact discovered could not have been discovered in consequence of such information. The trying court may be over-distrustful of the police, and may be inclined to believe the accused's statement that he never gave the information leading to the discovery of important evidence: in short, that the story of the giving of the information is itself a pure fabrication. But not even the most distrustful court can disbelieve that the accused did make a confession if it has the Magistrate's record to consult.

6. As regards the improvement of police work, there can be no doubt that of late years methods of investigation have much altered, and the alteration has been in the direction of greater judicial acumen. This is partly owing to a higher standard of education among police officers and partly owing to the influence of the bar, which has made it necessary for the police to strengthen the prosecution as much as they can so as to make it unassailable. One of the lessons that they have certainly learnt, is that they must not relax their efforts through reliance on a confession, but must take care to support their cases with evidence as well. While therefore the repeal of section 164 may perhaps make the police even more careful than at present, I think they already realize sufficiently the importance of evidence apart from confessions, and I certainly do not think that the repeal of section 164 will effect such an improvement in police work as will outweigh the considerations that may be urged against such a measure.

7. But after all there can be no doubt that the chief motive underlying the suggestion now under criticism—at least in so far as it may have been made by persons who have no practical experience of India—is the desire to prevent oppression by the police. Here again I do not believe that the measure suggested will effect any real improvement. If the police are over-keen on obtaining confessions, this is not because they regard confessions as important in themselves, but because a confession immediately gives them a line on which to direct their investigation and a clue to evidence that they could not otherwise obtain. To obtain such evidence they will continue to work for confessions even if section 164 is repealed, and accused persons will not be any more secure than before. The way to prevent oppression is not to abandon the recording of confessions by Magistrates, but severely to punish oppression when it is proved, and to aim at improving, by education and precept, the morality of the force. In this direction there has already been considerable progress, and more is certain to follow in the future.

8. To sum up I oppose the suggestion for the following reasons:—

(i) We shall lose many confessions which, owing to the amount of detail which they contain, are obviously true.

(ii) The accused can deny that he ever made a confession, and so defeat section 27 of the Evidence Act.

(iii) Police methods of investigation will not be much improved, and do not really stand in much need of improvement as regards appreciating the value of confessions.

(iv) Oppression will not be diminished, as confessions will still be worked for so as to obtain a line on which to conduct the investigation.

9. There remain to be considered the points raised in paragraph 4 of the Government of India's letter.

10. I agree that no Magistrate below a 1st class Magistrate should be allowed to record confessions. Magistrates of lower class through inexperience and want of ability, are apt to overlook important and indispensable formalities, and are also less independent in their attitude towards the police.

11. I do not at all agree with the suggestion that once a prisoner has confessed he should in no circumstances be given back to police custody. It is before, not after, his confession that he chiefly runs the risk of ill-treatment, while his presence may be absolutely necessary to elucidate the facts revealed by his confession. His return to police custody may be allowed, subject to sanction of the District Magistrate.

12. I do not agree with the suggestion that before a confession is recorded an accused person should have spent at least one night out of police custody. He is likely to come under contaminating influences in the under-trial ward. A recent case in this district strengthens me in my opinion. Three accused persons gave the district superintendent of police an account of a murder, which by its abundance and exactness of detail convinced him of its absolute truth. The accused were at once taken before a Magistrate who refused to record the confession as it was late in the evening and he had no facilities for doing so, not being in court. Next day the accused were brought up for having their confession recorded and denied all knowledge. They persisted in this denial in the Sessions Court, but the Sessions Judge offered pardon, and thus obtained a full confession corresponding exactly in its details with that given to the district superintendent of police. But when an accused is brought up for confession and then refuses to make one, then I think that under no circumstances should he be given back to the police, for in such cases the police are specially likely, through resentment, to exercise oppression.

13. The Bombay rule, regarding questions about ill-treatment, may be adopted. The Hon'ble the Chief Commissioner has already directed in the Local Administration's letter No. 299-IV, dated the 15th August 1911, that the Bombay rule, regarding the examination of prisoner's bodies, shall be adopted.

From—A. C. BEET, ESQ., I.C.S., Registrar, Judicial Commissioner's Court, Central Provinces,
To—The Secretary to the Hon'ble the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, in the Police Dept.

With reference to Mr. Hamilton's letter No. 289-IV-1-37, dated the 8th August 1911, in which the Judicial Commissioner was requested to express his opinion on certain questions relating to confessions by accused persons, I am directed to inform you that the Judges of this Court met to consider the matter and that opinions have been obtained from the three most experienced of the Sessions Judges now serving under the Local Administration.

2. A copy of the letters received from Sessions Judges is enclosed. It will be observed that only Major Morris is in favour of taking away from all Magistrates the power to record a confession made by an accused person before the commencement of an inquiry or trial.

3. The Judges of this court arrived unanimously at the conclusions set out in the subjoined paragraphs of this letter.

4. The power in question should certainly be retained. Besides the three kinds of voluntary confession mentioned in paragraph 3 of the letter under reply there is one which is not uncommon, namely, that made because the accused is among people who know the truth and are anxious that the investigation should be completed: the average criminal is not qualified to judge how far the certainty reached by his fellow-villagers is based on evidence admissible in a court of justice, and thinking denial to be useless, he makes a clean breast of his guilt. Whatever be the motive leading to a voluntary confession, the fact that it is voluntary should be regarded as warranting its prompt commitment to writing by an unbiassed authority, if only for the reason that in some cases independent evidence sufficient for conviction is not obtainable. Power to secure such a record may also be regarded as almost essential if proper advantage is to be taken of section 26, Indian Evidence Act, which allows proof to be given of a confession made by a person in the custody of a police officer, provided a magistrate was actually present at the making: in some cases the police will be able to procure a magistrate to be present, and an authorised record of what may be said is obviously a safer guide than oral evidence. Moreover, the present seems to be altogether an unsuitable time for withdrawing from the police a power they have enjoyed for nearly 40 years, inasmuch as the efforts of Government to improve the system of investigating officers have already begun to bear fruit. Again, a record made under section 164, Criminal Procedure Code, has a special value in cases where it is desirable to tender pardon to one of several accused persons: the Court conducting the trial of the other participators in the crime is hereby enabled to know precisely what the approver's original story was.

5. Although, however, the power to record confessions given by section 164 should not be withdrawn, experience shows that its possession by every magistrate is not desirable. The "nearest magistrate" to whom an accused person should be forwarded under section 167 (1) is too often a naib-tahsildar or an honorary magistrate who may be quite unable to appreciate such elaborate but essential instructions as those contained in sections III and IV of this Court's Criminal Circular No. 1-7. In practice the police do not trouble to get confessions recorded except in serious cases such as no magistrate of the 2nd or 3rd class could enquire into or try: the power in question may therefore be confined to 1st class magistrates without fear of hampering the investigation. At the same time the general power of authorising detention in police custody which section 167 (2), Criminal Procedure Code, confers should also be restricted: this is frequently exercised without regard to the principles laid down in paragraph 3, section IV of the circular above cited, and by the time the order is scrutinized under paragraph 4 ibid the harm sought to be avoided has been done. The authority allowed to deal with applications for detention in police custody should be at least equal in intelligence and independence to the highest class of police officer likely to present such an application, and, speaking generally, this qualification is not likely to be met with except in stipendiary magistrates with powers of the 1st and 2nd class. If the legislature is unwilling to amend section 167 (2) in this sense, the necessary directions should be given by executive order to the magistracy and police and compliance therewith should be rigorously exacted.

6. If the foregoing recommendations are adopted, no further precautions other than those prescribed in section III of Criminal Circular No. 1-7 seem essential to safeguard the interests of justice.

Enclosure No. 10.

No. 141, dated Bangalore, the 13th January 1912.

From—P. B. WARBURTON, Esq., I.C.S., Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Coorg,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 781-790, dated the 12th-19th July 1911, on the subject of recording confessions of accused persons, and in reply to submit the following remarks.

2. The rules* now in force are contained in the Judicial Commissioner's Circulars Nos. 12, dated 27th February 1895, and 2, dated 21st December 1906, and the Standing Orders issued by the District Magistrate of Coorg.

*Copies enclosed.

3. The suggestions made in paragraphs 3 and 4 of the letter under reply are—

(1) The prohibition altogether of the recording of confessions on the motion of the police.

(2) The absolute prohibition of the recording of confessions by 3rd class magistrates, and the limitation of such power to the magistrate having jurisdiction or at least to a 1st class, or specially selected 2nd class magistrate.

(3) An absolute rule that after confession an accused should not be given back into police custody.

(4) That before confession an accused person should spend at least one night out of police custody.

(5) The questioning of accused persons as to ill-treatment and examination of their persons before recording a confession.

4. As regards (1), the local authorities remark that confessions are readily volunteered in the early stages of an investigation in Coorg. There is no reason in their opinion to apprehend that they are extorted by ill-treatment or undue pressure from the police, yet in nearly every instance they are retracted when the case comes on for trial. The reason is not far to seek. After detention for a few days in Mercara Jail with other "under-trials" less unsophisticated than himself, the confessing prisoner determines to have a fight for liberty. He engages a lawyer and retracts his confession, or even if he cannot engage a lawyer, he still retracts and hopes to have a better chance of escape. In such cases the Chief Commissioner is of opinion that a properly recorded confession may be of great use. Important witnesses can be gained over and a clever vakil may be able to make the worse appear the better cause, but it is always difficult to explain away a genuine confession. On the other hand, the recording magistrate, if he exercises due care, should have little difficulty in placing the proper value on a false confession which is being made under the influence of fear or ill-treatment. There can be little doubt that in cases of serious crime a prompt enquiry will often elicit the truth and the guilty man will blurt out his complicity in the crime. If, on the other hand, the accused person is taken into police custody without a magisterial record of his first confession and is subsequently placed in jail, the result may be and often is that he will deny his guilt. It may also be argued that in these circumstances an accused may be left longer in police custody and that a confession made by him at a later date may have been induced by undue influence on the part of the police.

5. In regard to the second point, the Chief Commissioner is in favour of the recording of confessions by the highest magistrate available, but to provide against an accused being unduly long in police custody en route he would require that all confessions shall be so recorded if the accused can be produced before such magistrate in one day's march: if not, the duty should be performed by the taluk magistrate, who, in Coorg, is ordinarily a man of experience with some length of service and quite fit to be trusted to record a confession with due care, though he may be a 3rd class magistrate. It is therefore proposed to frame a rule as follows:—

"All confessions shall ordinarily be recorded by a 1st or 2nd class magistrate if the accused can be produced before him within 24 hours. If not, the duty shall be performed by the nearest 3rd class magistrate."

6. Third point.—The return of confessing prisoners to police custody should be prohibited, except when this is unavoidable to secure the identification of persons or property or the discovery of property: magistrates should be required to state clearly in their order in such cases why it is unavoidable.

7. Fourth point.—The present practice in Coorg on this point is regulated by Magisterial Standing Order No. 2 of 1909 which is as follows:—

"In continuation of Judicial Commissioner's Circular No. 2 of 1906 and of District Magistrate's Standing Order No. 2 of 1908 (Magisterial), magistrates are reminded of their discretion to postpone the recording of a confession which they may have reason to believe is not voluntarily produced. In such cases it will ordinarily be sufficient if the accused is removed from police custody for a few hours, and either remanded to a sub-jail or made to remain in the office or court-room. It is not usually necessary to put off recording a confession to another day, as in that case the accused may be subjected to influences preventing him from making any disclosure, however voluntarily he might previously have been ready to make it." It is proposed to continue the existing practice.

8. Fifth point.—The Chief Commissioner does not think that the body of a prisoner need be examined unless on enquiry he alleges ill-treatment; there are other means of inducing confessions besides physical ill-treatment. If such allegations are made and marks of violence are discovered on the accused's body the magistrate should have him examined by a medical officer without delay, and should place on record the result of the examination.

9. The existing orders seem to deal very completely with the question of confessions. The Chief Commissioner would, however, suggest the following alterations and additions to the rules issued in Judicial Commissioner's Circular No. 2 of 1906 :—

(1) The addition of the rule mentioned in paragraph 5.

(2) For Rule IV, substitute—

"No attempt shall be made to draw unwilling or unguarded admissions from the accused person by close and inquisitorial questioning; but he may properly be questioned so far as may be necessary, to enable the magistrate—

(a) to elicit from him whatever facts he is willing to state,

(b) to understand exactly what is his meaning and how far he intends his confession or admission to go.

Rule IX.—Delete the latter portion of the note to Rule IX (b), viz.: "As to whether the prisoner should be sent to a magisterial lock-up or remanded to the police, the magistrate should be guided according to the opinion formed—

(i) whether the confession is voluntary or improperly obtained, and

(ii) whether in case of opinion that the confession is voluntary, he considers that the return of the prisoner to the police is of importance to the proper preparation of the case."

(4) Insert after Rule IX (b) the following :—

"Magistrates should use their discretion to postpone the recording of a confession which they may have reason to think is not made voluntarily. In such cases it will usually be sufficient if the accused is removed from police custody and from their presence and either remanded to the sub-jail for a few hours or made to remain in the office or court-room. Where no suspicion exists it is inadvisable to put off recording the confession until next day as the accused may meanwhile be subjected to influences which will prevent him from making any disclosure, however ready he might previously have been to make it."

(5) Add a new rule as Rule IX (d), relettering the subsequent clauses :—

"The magistrate shall ask the accused if he has any complaint to make of ill-treatment by the police. If any allegation of ill-treatment is made, the magistrate shall there and then examine the accused's person, if the accused consents, to see whether there are any marks of injuries as alleged, and shall place on record the result of his examination. If there appear to be marks of violence on the accused's body the magistrate shall have him examined by a medical officer without delay."

(6) Add Rule X :—

"A confessing prisoner must on no account be remanded to police custody after confession unless the magistrate is satisfied that such remand is unavoidable in order to secure the identification of persons or property or the discovery of property. The magistrate in such cases will state clearly in his order why the remand is unavoidable."

Enclosure No. 10 (i).

Circular No. 12, dated Bangalore, the 27th February 1895.

From—MR. A. RAMAYA PUNJA, Registrar, Court of the Resident, Mysore, and Judicial Commissioner of Coorg,

To—The Sessions Judges and all Magistrates in the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore and Coorg.

In a recent criminal case it appeared that the statement of an accused person taken under section 164 and section 364, Criminal Procedure Code, was not recorded by the magistrate in the language in which he was examined. The magistrate who was examined stated to the court that he had recorded the confession in the language of the court, first because it was his custom, secondly because his head clerk was absent, thirdly because the statement of the accused was difficult to record or transliterate as it was delivered in "butcher Hindustani." The Resident and Judicial Commissioner therefore invites the attention of all magistrates to the provisions of section 364 of the Criminal Procedure Code which are not satisfied by a plea of custom, of incovenience or of difficulty.

2. The law admits a confession not recorded as directed in the section only where it is not practicable to record such a statement in the language in which the accused is examined or makes his statement; and in the case referred to a grave miscarriage of justice resulted from the omission to comply with the law because the High Court could not admit the confession as evidence.

Enclosure No. 10 (ii).

Circular No. 2, dated Bangalore, the 21st December 1906.

From—MR. N. S. TIRUMALAI AIYANGAR, Registrar, Court of the Resident in Mysore and Judicial Commissioner of Coorg.

To—The Sessions Judges and all Magistrates in the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore and Coorg.

In continuation of Circular No. 12, dated 27th February 1895, the following instructions on the subject of taking and recording statements and confessions of accused persons are issued for guidance:—

I.—Every statement or confession by an accused person, recorded under section 364 or section 164 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, shall, whenever practicable, be recorded in the language in which such statement or confession is made.

II.—When such language is not the language of the court as determined by the local Government under section 558 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, or the language prescribed by an order under section 357 of the Code, the record of the statement or confession should, in all appealable cases, be translated into the language of the district, or into the English language where the sessions judge or magistrate ordinarily writes his proceedings in English, and such translations should be authenticated by the signature of the translator and also of the judge or magistrate before whom the statement or confession is made.

III.—The statement or confession should be written down fully and accurately, and, if not written by the magistrate with his own hand, the magistrate should, as the examination proceeds, make a memorandum of such statement or confession in the language of the court or in English, with his own hand and under his signature.

IV.—The magistrate should only question the accused person so far as may be necessary to enable the magistrate to understand clearly the accused person's meaning. The statement must be recorded in the form of question and answer, and every question put and every answer made to such question, should be written down in full.

V.—When the accused person has concluded his statement or confession the written record of his statement or confession should be read out or shown to him by, or in presence of, the magistrate, and any explanations or additions by the accused person to such statement or confession should be written down in the manner prescribed above.

VI.—The magistrate shall then desire the accused person to add his signature or mark to such statement or confession. If the accused person declines to sign or affix his mark, the magistrate shall state the fact and the reason, if any, assigned by the accused person for so declining.

NOTE.—In cases in which the magistrate records an English rendering of the statement made by the accused in his own vernacular, the mark or signature of the accused should be affixed to the statement recorded in the accused's vernacular and not to the English counterpart.

VII.—The magistrate shall then certify, under his own hand, that the statement or confession of the accused person was made voluntarily; that it was taken in his presence and hearing; that it was read over to him and was admitted to be correct, and that it is a full and true account of the statement made by the accused.

VIII.—The magistrate may state in writing any other circumstance attending the making or recording of the statement or confession of an accused person. Any such memoranda made by the magistrate, if not embodied in the certificate, must be separately signed by him.

IX.—When the statement to be recorded is a confession under section 164 of the Code, the following additional formalities must be observed :—

(a) It is not desirable that any police officers should be present when a confession is being recorded under section 164, except such as may be necessary to secure the safe custody of the accused person when, in the magistrate's opinion, the duty cannot safely be left to other attendants. In any case it is undesirable that the police officer making the investigation should be present.

(b) Before recording the confession the magistrate shall write (in the form appended to this circular) in the language in which he ordinarily writes his judgments, a brief memorandum of the enquiry made by him, and which he is by law bound to make, in order to ascertain that the accused person is acting voluntarily in making a confession. The certificate at the foot of the form becomes a useless formula to a superior court unless the recording officer shows by what steps he has satisfied himself the confession is voluntarily made.

NOTE.—Magistrates should enquire into the circumstances under which a confession is made, the length of time a confessing prisoner has been under suspicion before arrest, and the opportunities afforded to his accusers or to the police to induce a confession improperly. As to whether the prisoner should be sent to a magisterial lock-up or remanded to the police, the magistrate should be guided according to the opinion formed—

(i) whether the confession is voluntary or improperly obtained, and

(ii) whether in case of opinion that the confession is voluntary, he considers that the return of the prisoner to the police is of importance to the proper preparation of the case.

(c) One important point upon which the magistrate should invariably question the accused person is as to the length of time during which he (the accused person) has been in the custody of the police. It is not sufficient to note the date and hour recited in the police papers, at which the accused person is said to have been formally arrested.

(d) When recording the confession he should note (i) the date and hour of the commission of the alleged offence, (ii) the date and hour of the first detention in custody by the police, (iii) the section of the Code under which the confession is recorded.

(e) The record will be forwarded in due course to the magistrate by whom the case is inquired into or tried.

(f) In every case in which the record of a confession by an accused person taken under section 164 is received by the magistrate inquiring into or trying the case, the magistrate shall ask the accused person whether he made the statement purporting to have been made by him before the magistrate from whom the record of the confession was received. The statement shall be shown or read to the accused person, and the fact noted by the magistrate, and the accused person's answer to the question shall be recorded in full.

(g) Confessions taken under section 164 of the Code of Criminal Procedure shall be recorded in the form appended to this circular. A reference to the provisions of section 80 of the Evidence Act will show the great advantage to be derived in subsequent proceedings, in the form of presumption dispensing in the first instance with proof, if magistrates are careful in observing the directions laid down by law and supplemented by the above instructions.

Standing Order No. 2 of 1908.
Magisterial.

Coorg District Magistrate's Office,
Dated 6th March 1908.

From some specimens of confessions recently recorded by magistrates, it appears that the nature of the memorandum required by Judicial Commissioner's Circular No. 2, dated 21st December 1906, to be prefixed to the statement of the accused is not clearly understood. Attention is therefore drawn to the provisions of paragraph IX (b) and (c) of the Circular, which require the magistrate to record not the actual questions he asks accused in order to find out if the confession is voluntary or not, and accused's answers, but a statement of the grounds which lead him to believe that the confession is voluntary.

2. The following is a specimen of the kind of entry which should be made under the heading "Memorandum of Inquiry into the voluntariness of the confession":—

"The police papers show that accused has been in custody for seven days, and accused's own statements confirm this. Three of those days were spent in travelling, and for only two has he been in the custody of the officer conducting the investigation. Before questioning accused all police officers were excluded from the court. Accused assures me that what he has to say will be said of his own free will, and not in consequence of any inducement offered by the police or others, or any ill-treatment caused to him. I see no reason to suppose that he has been subjected to any form of pressure, and I believe that his confession will be voluntarily made.

District Magistrate.

Enclosure No. 10 (iii).

Standing Order No. 2 of 1908.
Magisterial.

Coorg District Magistrate's Office,
Dated 6th September 1909.

In continuation of Judicial Commissioner's Circular No. 2 of 1906, and of District Magistrate's Standing Order No. 2 of 1908 (Magisterial), magistrates are reminded of their discretion to postpone the recording of a confession which they may have reason to believe is not voluntarily produced. In such cases it will ordinarily be sufficient if the accused is removed from police custody for a few hours, and either remanded to a sub-jail or made to remain in the office or court room. It is not usually necessary to put off recording a confession to another day, as in that case the accused may be subjected to influences preventing him from making any disclosure, however voluntarily it might have been made previously.

Enclosure No. 11.

No. 3383-G., dated the 20th November 1911.

From—The Hon'ble Lieutenant-Colonel Sir GEORGE ROOS-KEPPEL, K.C.I.E., Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor-General, North-West Frontier Province,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department.

I have the honour to address you with reference to your letter No. 781—790 of 12th July 1911, dealing with the question of confessions. I am not in favour of altering the existing rules in this province which appear to me to work well. It is true that many persons who make initial confessions withdraw these later, but in these cases it is very rare for an accused to give as a reason for the withdrawal of his confession that it has been obtained by pressure; he is usually content to flatly deny that he ever made such a confession at all.

2. While these confessions are often of little value in the conviction of an individual offender, they are frequently of incalculable value in a country where raiding, gang robbery, murder by gangs, cattle lifting and rioting are rife, as an arrested person may and often does in the first despondency of the moment of arrest make a confession and tell the whole story of the crime, giving the names of his companions and mentioning where the stolen property is deposited: the man may deny this confession later, but in the meantime the police, working on the information which he has given them and which they could have obtained from no other source, have discovered the stolen goods, arrested the receiver in whose house they were found and arrested many members of the gang, with the result that people who were afraid to come forward while the gang was at large become willing and ready to give evidence and a dangerous organization is broken up. So far from restricting the power of taking confessions, I would encourage it by all the means in my power, leaving it to the sense of the magistracy and judiciary to assess individual confessions at their proper value and to bring to notice any case in which the prisoner states that his confession has been extorted by torture. Under our dual system of judicial trial, with its numerous appeals, and of the trial of accused persons by their peers under the Frontier Crimes Regulations, it is almost impossible for an innocent man to be convicted in criminal cases, and I am glad to say that it is my belief that the practices of extorting confessions, suborning witnesses and of judging the police by the percentage of convictions to cases are not prevalent in this province.

3. The measures you propose are, I presume, intended to be used as a remedy and not as a prophylactic, and I cannot too strongly urge in the interests of a simple and direct administration that the Government of India may consider the advisability of deferring their application in this province until there are some symptoms of disease. In no part of India do the police live so hard and so dangerous a life as in the North-West Frontier Province, and nowhere is it so necessary to support and protect them. As I have attempted to explain, circumstances deter them from the practice of oppression, and district and police officers are fully aware of the views of the Government of India and of my wishes regarding police procedure. All ranks of the police have worked honestly, on the whole the results are satisfactory, and I can only express the hope that the Government of India will allow a system, which is working well, to continue and will not tie my hands by the imposition of a number of rules which, while they are doubtless required in the more developed and civilised parts of India, are singularly inapplicable to the province in my charge.

Enclosure No. 12.

Extract from Lord Brampton's address to English police constables.

"Much discussion has on various occasions arisen touching the conduct of the police in listening to, and repeating statements of, accused persons. I will try, therefore, to point out what I think is the proper course for a constable to take with regard to such statements."

"When crime has been committed, and you are engaged in endeavouring to discover the author of it, there is no objection to your making inquiries of, or putting questions to, any person, from whom you think you can obtain useful information. It is your duty to discover the criminal if you can, and to do this you must make such inquiries, and if in the course of them you should chance to interrogate and to receive answers from a man who turns out to be the criminal himself, and who inculpates himself by these answers, they are nevertheless admissible in evidence, and may be used against him."

"When, however, a constable has a warrant to arrest or is about to arrest a person on his own authority, or has a person in custody for a crime, it is wrong to question such a person touching the crime of which he is accused. Neither judge, magistrate or juryman can interrogate an accused person—unless he tenders himself as a witness, or require him to answer questions tending to criminate himself. Much less, then, ought a constable to do so, whose duty as regards that person is simply to arrest and detain him in safe custody. On arresting a man a constable ought simply to read his warrant, or tell the accused the nature of the charge upon which he is arrested, leaving it to the person so arrested to say anything or nothing as he pleases. For a constable to press any accused person to say anything with reference to the crime of which he is accused is very wrong. It is well, also, that it should be generally known that if a statement made by an accused person is made under or in consequence of any promise or threat, even though it amounts to an absolute confession, it cannot be used against the person making it. There is, however, no objection to a constable listening to any mere voluntary statement which a prisoner desires to make, and repeating such statement in evidence; nor is there any objection to his repeating in evidence any conversation he may have heard between the prisoner and any other person. But he ought not, by anything he says, or does, to invite or encourage an accused person to make any statement, without first cautioning him that he is not bound to say anything tending to criminate himself, and that anything he says may be used against him. Perhaps the best maxim for a constable to bear in mind with respect to an accused person is, 'keep your eyes and your ears open, and your mouth shut.' By silent watchfulness you will hear all you ought to hear. Never act unfairly to a prisoner by coaxing him by word or conduct to divulge anything. If you do, you will assuredly be severely handled at the trial, and it is not unlikely your evidence will be disbelieved."

CANTONMENTS.

REGULATIONS.

No. 139.—The following draft of a Notification, which it is proposed to issue in exercise of the powers conferred by section 24 of the Cantonments Act, 1910 (XV of 1910), is published as required by section 25, sub-section (1) of the said Act, for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby, and notice is given that the draft will be taken into consideration by the Governor-General in Council on or after the 7th March 1914.

Any objection or suggestion which may be received from any person with respect to the draft before the date fixed aforesaid will be considered by the Governor-General in Council.

DRAFT NOTIFICATION.

No. 140.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 24, clauses (1) (2) and (31) of the Cantonments Act, 1910 (XV of 1910), the Governor-General in Council is pleased to make the following rules regulating the grant and occupation of land belonging to Government in the Cantonment of Aden :—

1. Land for building or other purposes shall ordinarily be granted on lease, but may be disposed of otherwise in the discretion of the Cantonment Authority subject to the approval of the General Officer Commanding. Quit rent at the rate of six pies per square yard shall be leviable annually in the case of such land.
2. Land may be granted temporarily for any purpose by the Cantonment Authority on permit in Form A hereto appended and subject to such conditions as the Cantonment Authority consider advisable. Quit rent at the rate of two pies per square yard shall be leviable annually in the case of land granted temporarily under this rule.
3. Before any land is granted to any person on lease or otherwise under these rules and before the right to obtain a lease of any land is put up to auction under the following rule, the written approval of the General Officer Commanding shall be obtained where such approval is required by any restrictions attaching to the land under the Indian Works of Defence Act, 1903, or a Notification published thereunder.
4. The right to obtain a lease may be put up to auction to the hightest bidder or a lease may be granted by private agreement as the Cantonment Authority may direct subject to the approval of the General Officer Commanding.
5. (1) The term for which a lease is granted shall not exceed 99 years but any less term may be fixed by the Cantonment Authority.
   (2) Leases may be granted in one of the forms indicated in Schedule VI of the Cantonment Code, 1912, but the Cantonment Authority may vary the form in their discretion: Provided that the terms of the lease to be executed for any plot shall be notified with the conditions of sale under rule 6 (a).
6. When the right to obtain a lease has been put up to auction, the following provisions shall apply :—
   (a) Notice of the sale shall be given in Form B hereto appended, the terms of which may be varied by the Cantonment Authority.

(c) The area of a plot shall not ordinarily be less than 640 square feet, and each plot shall be conveniently marked out, numbered and mapped, so that intending purchasers may know the plots which are for sale.

(d) Each plot shall be put up separately to auction and shall be knocked down to the bidder offering the highest price above the reserve.

(e) The purchaser of a plot shall be entitled, subject to the provisions of this rule, to have a lease of the plot purchased, but nothing in these rules shall be deemed to imply that the purchaser shall acquire any right over the land other than that which is expressed by the terms of the lease granted to him, and the proprietary right in the soil shall not be conveyed by the sale.

(f) At the conclusion of the auction, the purchaser shall deposit 10 per cent. of the purchase-money, and in default of such deposit the sale shall be void and the plot may be re-sold.

(g) It shall be optional to the purchaser in whose favour a sale is confirmed to pay the purchase-money in a lump sum or to pay a yearly rent equal to 4½ per cent. of the purchase-money, and at the conclusion of the auction the purchaser shall state in writing which of the above alternatives he elects to adopt in case the sale is confirmed, and such election shall be irrevocable.

(h) The sale shall be subject to confirmation by the Cantonment Authority and it shall be in the discretion of the Cantonment Authority not to accept the highest bid and if the sale is not confirmed it shall be void and the deposit shall be returned to the purchaser.

(i) When the sale has been confirmed then—

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY.

ANGLO-AMERICAN EXPOSITION, LONDON.

The following information relative to the Anglo-American Exposition which will be held in London between May and October 1914 is published for general information.

The Government of India have decided not to participate in the Exposition.

ANGLO-AMERICAN EXPOSITION, LONDON (SHEPHERD'S BUSH), 1914.

The object of the Anglo-American Exposition is to celebrate in a fitting manner the hundred years of Peace and Progress between the English-speaking peoples since the Treaty of Ghent in 1814. What more appropriate means could be adopted to commemorate these epoch-making events than to materialise in a magnificent joint display the vast gains which have accrued to mankind through this peaceful development of Great Britain and the United States of America during the past century? The Exposition will be held at Shepherd's Bush, London, between May and October of 1914, and will demonstrate in a practical manner the progress which has been made by the British and American people in every branch of civilisation during that century, and will place on view in chronological order the great achievements of that epoch—from inception to perfection—showing not only how each nation has improved on its own inventions, but also where both have worked hand in hand to perfect the creation of the other. Thus there will be unfolded the rich treasures of a hundred years of British and American Art.

A hundred years of the history of the two nations—their famous Statesmen, Authors, Artists, Inventors, Philanthropists, Financiers, Merchants, Manufacturers, and others. Men and women who have helped in the advancement of civilisation and in making each nation what it is to-day will be represented, with such objects of historical interest as are associated with them and their times.

A hundred years of progress in Education, Science, Literature, Inventions and Productions, Improvements and Comforts in Social Life, Betterment of the conditions of Working Men and Women.

In placing before the world the fruits of the intellect and genius of the people of both nations, what a great opportunity presents itself of showing in practical ways the advancement in Navigation; in Railway Transport; in Girder, Suspension, and Cantilever Bridges. The use of Steel in Architecture, the boring of Tunnels Underground and Over-head Railways, Aquedects, Lighthouses, the work of the Panama Canal. Printing—from the simple hand press to the modern rotary press and Linotype—Lithography, Electricity, Electric and Hydraulic Power, Coal-gas and Electric Light, the Storage of Power, Pneumatic Dispatch, the Telegraph, Telephone and Wireless, Phonograph and Gramophone, Photography—from the Daguerreotype to Coloured and Animated Photography. The invention and creation of new Metals, the advancement in Mining, the utilisation of Rubber, Calculating and Recording Instruments, the great advance in Agricultural Machinery and all kinds of Labour-saving Devices, the marvellous achievements in Chemistry—in fact, the harnessing of the very Elements for the use and comfort of the nations.

No Exposition has ever been afforded such unique and interesting opportunities, and certainly there never was an occasion more fitting for a great Exposition of the work and achievements of two nations of the same blood, celebrating their hundredth anniversary of peace and concord, where people of the same family, although separated by a great ocean, will be able to join hand in hand to unite in shaping their mutual destinies and as kinsmen advancing the welfare of humanity and of the whole civilised world.

Great Britain is now the largest customer of the United States and the United States is a valued consumer of British products; and the conjunction of the respective products of the two countries will provide a suitable stimulus for the still further increase of their mutual trade.

The Anglo-American Exposition was inaugurated at a large and influential meeting held at the Mansion House on March 26th, 1913, under the Presidency of the Lord Mayor of London, at which all parts of the United Kingdom were represented.

The Lord Mayor, in addressing the distinguished assembly, stated that the Exposition would do much to maintain and strengthen the bonds of friendship which exist to-day, and had existed for so long, between the peoples of the two great nations. Great Britain was the largest customer of the United States, and they were almost our largest customer. In 1912, the Exports to England amounted to over $564,000,000, to the next largest, Germany, $306,000,000 odd. The imports were, from Great Britain and Ireland, $272,940,700,—nearly $273,000,000, and next from Germany, $171,380,380. These figures showed what an enormous trade there was between the two countries, but the greatest bond of all was the feeling of friendship and kinship which united the two countries, and which the Exposition would do much to cement, strengthen, and improve.

The following resolution, which was warmly supported by the Lord Mayor of Cardiff who came from Wales, and many other distinguished gentlemen who came from all parts of Great Britain expressly to attend the meeting was unanimously carried with acclamation :—

"London and the United Kingdom welcome the Anglo-American Exposition to be held at Shepherd's Bush next year, in celebration of the hundred years of peace and progress of the English-speaking peoples, as a means of strengthening the bond of friendship and kinship between the American and British nations, of drawing them closer together, and of further developing their great commercial and industrial relations."

It was also resolved—

"That all profits shall be devoted to some public objects of national utility to the United Kingdom and the United States."

The whole assembly pledged themselves to do everything in their power to make the Anglo-American Exposition to be held in London in 1914 a great success.

The imposing Exposition Palaces, most decorative in architectural design, containing 1,000,000 square feet of floor space and entirely fireproof, nothing but steel and concrete having been used in their construction, have been erected in the most beautifully laid-out Grounds with its Gardens, Lakes and Lagoons. These buildings are now ready for the reception and installation of American and British Exhibits, practically a year before the opening of the Exposition, fixed for the 1st May 1914. The plan, which shows the allotment of the various buildings to the different classes of Exhibits, gives also a comprehensive idea of the importance of the scheme. About 20 acres are also available for the erection of Government, States, Cities, and Colonial buildings and pavilions, as well as outdoor Exhibits.

The Fine Art Palace, which has been pronounced the largest and best, equipped building of its kind in Europe, containing 30 galleries for paintings, in addition to the superb central Sculpture Hall, covering 30,000 square feet, will be devoted to a collection of American and British modern and retrospective art, such as it is believed has never been brought together in any Exposition in Europe.

The Congress Hall, situated in the centre of the Exposition Grounds, will be devoted to Congresses and Conferences on subjects of interest to America and the British Empire.

The Exposition Grounds at Shepherd's Bush, within 15 minutes of the centre of London's main thoroughfare, cover over 100 acres. The main entrance is connected directly with the terminus of the Central London Railway and the Metropolitan and Great Western Railway Station, and is also in close proximity to the West London, London and North-Western, Great Western, London and South-Western Railways, and in direct communication with the District, North London, London, Brighton and South Coast, South Eastern and Chatham, and the Great Central Railways, in the centre of a network of tramways and omnibuses affording easy means of communication with all parts. The various methods of transport are capable of conveying to the spot over 80,000 persons a hour, or nearly a million visitors a day. Favourable arrangements for the conveyance of passengers have been made with all the lines of Railways by which travellers reach London from the Continent and elsewhere, and frequent excursion trains will run direct to the Exposition from the various provincial centres of population.

The musical arrangements will be upon a scale of magnitude unprecedented at any Exposition ever held in London, and will include a number of the best bands of the British Guards, as well as American bands of the highest possible standard, furnishing continuous music from the opening to the closing of the Exposition daily.

The Great Stadium (the largest in the World), which has a seating capacity for 100,000 people, will form part of the Exposition, and possesses the finest running and cycle track, as well as the splendid swimming tank, 100 metres in length. It is intended to organise International Sports, Historical Pageants, Spectacular Productions, and Fireworks.

Facilities will be given to exhibitors and visitors by the establishment of a commercial bureau, by which visitors can at once obtain full information as to the locality where every exhibit can be found, its nature and character, and the literature which has been prepared in connection with it.

The Board of Trade has certified the Anglo-American Exposition under the provisions of the Patents and Designs Act, 1907.

Diplomas for Grand Prizes, Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals and Honourable Mention will be granted to exhibitors upon the award of an International Jury.

The Garden Club, under the Presidency of His Highness the Duke of Teck, which already numbers several thousands of distinguished members, will form the centre of social life of the Exposition.

Amusements of the most varied nature will be provided, the dignity of the Exposition being maintained by keeping them in a separate part of the Exposition Grounds, as has been the case at the World's Columbian Exposition, 1893, and at the Buffalo and St. Louis Expositions since.

In addition to the British Restaurants, Buffets and Tea Rooms, etc., a number of buildings have been set aside for American Restaurateurs desirous of taking part in the catering arrangements of the Exposition.

TARIFF FOR SPACE.

The price for Exhibit Space for the display of articles will be $2.50 per square foot.

The charge for more than one frontage will be $2.50 per foot run additional frontage.

Special terms will be quoted for special attractive Exhibits and exceptional positions.

INDIA OFFICE, LONDON,

Financial (Funds).

No. 1.

To His Excellency the Right Honourable the Governor-General of India in Council.

MY LORD,

Indian Civil Service Family Pension Regulations. Valuation as at 31st March 1911.

You will have learned from my Despatch No. 7, Financial (Funds), dated 3rd November 1911, that I had appointed Mr., now Sir George, Hardy, K.C.B., Fellow of the Institute of Actuaries and lately President of that body, to undertake a valuation of the Indian Civil Service Family Pension Scheme as at 31st March 1911, a period of six years having elapsed since the previous valuation. Sir George Hardy's Report has been greatly delayed in consequence of the Chancellor of the Exchequer's demand for his services in connection with the National Health Insurance Act. A further delay has been caused by the receipt of the letter from the Secretary in your Financial Department, No. 813 F. E., dated 3rd July 1913, enclosing a memorandum prepared by Mr. M. W. Fenton, C.S.I., and submitted by him to the Royal Commission on the Public Services in India. The memorandum was also transmitted by the Commission to this Office under cover of a letter dated 8th August 1913, of which I enclose a copy. It is understood that the memorandum summarizes the criticisms of the scheme offered by numerous Indian civilians who gave evidence before the Commission. It was in the hands of the Actuary while he was considering his Report, and his recommendations will be found to meet, as far as circumstances permit, the representations it contains.

2. I enclose copies of Sir George Hardy's two Reports dated 11th and 20th November, together with the consolidated accounts for the period from 1st April 1905 to 31st March 1911.

3. A perusal of the two Reports will show that the whole Family Pension scheme has been investigated with the utmost thoroughness, and that new tables of mortality and marriage experience have been prepared which in the Actuary's words "may be regarded as a really trustworthy basis for the Financial Estimates and one which will be of value in the future." The results of the valuation will, it is hoped, in view of Sir George Hardy's exceptional authority, be accepted by all concerned as a complete exposition of the true condition of the scheme and as being in accord with the best rules of actuarial practice.

4. Sir George Hardy was also asked to investigate the cost of the benefits provided by the States in view of the increase in the personnel of the service, which at the time of the institution of the scheme was estimated at 900. He shows that, while the existing Regulations provide that the maximum contribution by the State to pensions is not to exceed 35,000*l.* a year, the increased personnel may ultimately involve a total cost of 39,900*l.*, but he considers that as the lower figure of 35,000*l.* will not, under present conditions, be attained for 60 years from now, the possibility of an ultimately increased charge may be disregarded. I concur in that view.

5. In view of the decision conveyed in my Despatch No. 3, Financial (Funds), dated 3rd March 1911, to reduce the rate of interest on the balances of the Indian Military Service Family Pension Scheme, from 4½ to 4 per cent., to which effect has been given since 1st May 1911, Sir George Hardy was directed to value the Indian Civil Service Family Pension Scheme at the two rates of 4½ and 4 per cent. The valuation statement, which assumes that subscriptions are paid without rebate, shows a surplus of 770,897*l.* on a 4½ per cent. basis, and a surplus of 601,909*l.* on a 4 per cent. basis. "The existence of the surplus," the Report states, "is due to the fact that mainly, in consequence of light mortality prevailing among subscribers since the establishment of the present pension regulations the contributions have proved more than sufficient to provide for the liabilities incurred." The constitution of the Military and the Civil Schemes are alike in providing that the rules should not bring any charge on the revenues of India (except as regards the direct contribution of a portion of the Civil pensions) and in view of the above results, I see no justification for continuing the 4½ per cent. rate in the case of the Civil Scheme. I have accordingly decided that from the beginning of the month following the date of the publication in India of the Reports and this Despatch, until at least the date of the publication of the next valuation, the rate of 4 per cent. shall be charged upon the arrears of contributions levied under these Regulations and that the same rate shall be allowed in the half-yearly pro formâ accounts on the balances shown therein. I have, therefore, taken the surplus available for disposal on the present valuation as 601,909*l.*

6. I recognise that there is force in the representations received through the Royal Commission that the continuance of subscriptions after retirement is a considerable burden on subscribers, even on those who draw the maximum annuity, and this burden is felt in an enhanced degree by those who retire earlier on medical grounds with a considerably smaller income. Sir George Hardy shows that out of every 100 subscribers entering the service and surviving to the age of retirement, 97 marry before retirement and 3 afterwards. Relief given on retirement would be of ultimate benefit to almost every subscriber, and could hardly fail to be generally acceptable. I have decided, therefore, to use the major portion of the surplus of 601,909*l.* in terminating all subscriptions on retirement. But it follows that if benefits are to accrue to widows or to children resulting from marriages after retirement, they must be specially provided for, and Sir George Hardy is preparing a scale of enhanced donations payable on such marriages and on such births which, making due allowance for subscriptions while in active service, will make the necessary provision for liabilities of this kind subsequently arising. It will be at the option of the subscriber to make this provision or not as he may think fit. In order, however, to prevent an abuse of this concession by any who might marry in a state of health which indicated a very short term of life, it will be provided that a subscriber marrying after retirement and wishing to make provision under the scheme should produce a health certificate showing that he is free from any bodily complaint of a dangerous tendency and is believed to be a good life. The surplus also allows of giving some relief to unmarried subscribers and widowers. I have decided that for these the full monthly contribution after 18 years' service shall remain at 4*l.* 15*s.* instead of being advanced to 5*l.* 15*s.* after 23, and to 7*l.* 5*s.* after 28 years' service. The Report shows that the cost of the above concessions would amount to 498,000*l.*, and further that as the result of the cessation of subscriptions upon retirement it would be necessary to increase the table of Disparity Fines.

7. With reference to the second point to which the Royal Commission draw attention, viz., the age at which sons' pensions now cease, there appears to be a widespread desire that these pensions should be payable to the age of 24, and Sir George Hardy estimates that on the condition that the monthly contribution for sons of subscribers in active service be extended to the age of 24, the cost of the continuance of pensions to that age would amount to 15,250*l.* I have accordingly decided to alter the rules to provide for this change also.

8. The 513,250*l.* distributed as above leaves 88,659*l.* of the surplus undisposed of; but this would not permit a continuance of the 12½ per cent. rebate on subscriptions allowed since 1st August 1908, which would cost 112,040*l.*

9. You will observe that the letters from the Royal Commission, as well as Mr. Fenton's memorandum, draw attention to the charges made in the pro formâ accounts for management, the reserve for which, as stated in the Report of 20th November (page 21), stands at 41,000*l.* in the Valuation of Assets and Liabilities. The charge now made is at the rate of 200*l.* a year in this country and 2½ per cent. on gross receipts and payments in India. These charges, which have gradually increased, amounted for the year ended 31st March 1912 to 1,638*l.*, and to them the amount of the actuary's fee at intervals of five or six years must be added. The actual cost to Government, however, is difficult to estimate, as, while no one official's time is wholly engaged on this scheme, a large number of officers give a portion of their time to some branch of work in connection with it. Moreover, a share of the pensions of retired officials and a portion of the general office charges may be correctly debited to this work, and in any case the actual cost will be a very fluctuating figure. For these reasons, the charges are particularly open to challenge, and have excited criticism on various grounds. The question has also assumed prominence in consequence of the recommendation of Lord Welby's Committee that in the case of the New Fund proposed to be established for Military, Medical, and Marine Officers, such charges shall be wholly borne by the State. Sir George Hardy points out that the removal of this item from the Indian Civil Family Pension Scheme would set free the item of 41,000*l.* for disposal. I am aware that a concession in this matter to the Indian Civil Family Pension Scheme may render a consideration of the same question necessary on the occasion of the next valuation of the Indian Military Service Family Pension Scheme, but after fully weighing the matter I have thought it desirable to remove this item from the field of controversy as regards the Civil Scheme, and the cost of management will in future be a charge to Indian Revenues.

10. If the 41,000*l.* be added to the undistributed surplus of 88,659*l.* already mentioned, a balance of 129,659*l.* is available, and this would permit of a continuance of the abatement of 12½ per cent. at present allowed, namely, on subscriptions but not on donations. This would cost 112,040*l.* and leave a final balance of about 17,000*l.*

11. The Actuary points out that, "although 17,000*l.* is not in itself a very substantial margin, in comparison with the total liabilities upon the funds, a safeguard is provided in the power to reconsider the continuance of the abatements at each successive valuation." It may also be added that the scheme will have the benefit of the 4½ per cent. rate for nearly three years after the date as at which the valuation has been made, which will increase the margin to the extent of about a further 15,000*l.*

12. I have to request that you will publish the two reports and this despatch in the Gazette of India. The changes announced will have effect from the first day of the following month. The date of publication should be communicated to me by telegram, and as soon as possible thereafter copies of the amended Regulations will be despatched.

13. I hope that the material advantages now accruing to the subscribers as a body will allay the discontent to which expression has been given.

I have the honour to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient, humble servant,

ENCLOSURES.

ENCLOSURE No. 1:—Sir George Hardy to India Office.

REPORT ON VALUATION AS AT 31ST MARCH 1911.

140, St. Stephen's House, Westminster, S. W.,

MY LORD MARQUESS, 11th November 1913.

In accordance with your instructions, conveyed to me by the late Sir R. T. W. Ritchie, I have made valuations of the Indian Civil Service Family Pensions as at 31st March 1911, at the two rates of interest prescribed, namely 4 per cent. and 4½ per cent., and I now beg to submit my report upon the results of these valuations, and also upon the further question referred to me, namely, as to the probable effect of the regulations affecting benefits prov ded at the cost of the State, in view of the increase in the number of active service members beyond the 900 contemplated when the present scheme was instituted.

2. In order to provide a suitable basis for the calculations, it is necessary to determine approximately what is likely to be the future experience with regard to the following:—

(i) The rates of mortality at various ages of subscribers, and of actual and prospective incumbents.

(ii) The rates of marriage of the widows and of the daughters of subscribers.

(iii) The rates of marriage of unmarried subscribers, and the relative ages of husbands and wives at marriage.

(iv) The number of sons and daughters born to subscribers of various ages.

(v) The ages at which subscribers will retire from active service.

3. The data available for this purpose at previous valuations have been somewhat meagre, and on this account I have found it necessary to make an investigation into the experience, not only of the Indian Civil Service Family Pensions, but also of the old Funds—the Bengal, Madras and Bombay Civil Funds—which furnish valuable information on the rates of mortality prevailing among subscribers and beneficiaries at the older ages. The materials for this investigation, which were furnished to me by Mr. Walter Badock, C.S.I., the Accountant-General and Director of Funds, cover a period of 21 years from 1st April 1890 to 31st March 1911 in each case. The examination and analysis of the statistics thus brought together, and the preparation therefrom of the requisite tables of graduated rates of mortality, marriage, etc., have necessarily somewhat delayed the valuation, but in compensation for this we have for the first time what may, I think, be regarded as a really trustworthy basis for the financial estimates, and one which will be of value in the future. It will be convenient here to refer briefly to the results of this statistical investigation under its various heads.

Mortality of Subscribers.

4. I have not considered it necessary to investigate separately the mortality experience of married and unmarried subscribers. It is possible, judging by the experience of similar funds, that the mortality of the married subscribers, at all events at the younger ages, is somewhat lighter than that of unmarried subscribers, but the data are not sufficient to establish this, and the point is not financially important. The data do not indicate any material difference between the mortality rates of active and retired subscribers.

5. The following table furnishes a summary of the experience with respect to the mortality of subscribers, both active and retired, the facts being arranged for convenience in quinquennial groups of ages. With regard to the older funds it has not been thought necessary to give the statistics separately for each fund, either here or in the tables that follow :—

* These figures and the corresponding figures in the remaining tables of similar character, represent the number of complete years of life under observation at these ages.

6. It is of interest to compare this mortality experience with that of the subscribers to the Indian Military Pensions, and with a standard British table, such as that representing the mortality of male annuitants (excluding the experience of the first five years from their date of entry), in the recently published Government annuity experience. This will be done most conveniently by setting out, in fairly large age groups, the estimated deaths according to these standards, on the basis of the numbers exposed to risk at each age, side by side with the deaths actually experienced. In the following table this comparison is made :—

TABLE II.

7. It will be seen from the last two columns of this table that while the mortality of the subscribers to the Civil Funds has been lower generally than that shown by either of the tables used for comparison, it has been relatively lowest in middle life, especially in the age group 50 to 59, and relatively highest for ages under 40 and over 80. A feature of the experience, not apparent in Table II, but clearly shown in Table I, where the facts are given more in detail, is the comparatively heavy rate of mortality in the few years following entry into the service, particularly marked in the age group 25 to 29. This is no doubt due to the effect of the climate upon recently entered lives, and is largely counterbalanced by the light mortality in the following age group. The rates of mortality used in the valuation, given in Table A, in the Appendix, follow closely the actual mortality experienced, and may be regarded, I think, as a fair index of the mortality now prevailing among Indian Civil Servants, active and retired.

Mortality of Wives of Subscribers.

8. There were no particulars available as to the mortality among the wives of subscribers in the Bengal, Madras and Bombay Civil Funds, and the experience of the Indian Civil Pensions, in this respect, has so far been very limited. The facts are summarised in the following table from which it will be seen that there have been only 37 deaths of wives of subscribers during the 21 years covered by this investigation :—

9. At those ages beyond the limits of the experience as tabulated above, there is no reason to anticipate that the mortality of wives will differ materially from that of the widows and daughters of subscribers at similar periods of life. As regards these, the experience at the older ages, as will be seen from Table IV, is fairly extensive, the observed deaths between ages 50 and 95 being over 300 in number. I have assumed that for ages over 45 the mortality rates for the wives of subscribers will be the same as those deduced from the experience of the widows and daughters. For ages below 45, the graduated rates adopted, as shown in Table A, represent approximately those actually experienced, as shown in the above summary, with a deduction on the average of about 20 per cent. to cover the uncertainty inseparable from such limited material.

Mortality of Widows and Daughters of Subscribers.

10. Table IV contains a summary of the combined mortality experience of the various funds in respect of the widows and the daughters of subscribers, the latter remaining under observation until marriage only. The figures for the new and for the older funds taken alone are so small that it has not been thought worth while to state them separately.

11. For the same reason, namely, the paucity of materials, the experience as regards widows and daughters has been combined in order to obtain a more satisfactory basis for estimating future rates of mortality than would be afforded by either taken alone. The mortality of the two classes of beneficiaries has, in fact, been very similar, as will be seen from the following statement showing the estimated deaths for various periods of life according to the rates of mortality derived from the combined experience, together with the number of deaths actually observed :—

TABLE V.

Comparison of the Mortality of Widows and Daughters.

70—79 ...	90	89	34	35
Over 80 ...	89	86	15	18
All ages ...	242	235	128	135

12. On the whole there is a striking agreement between the numbers of estimated and actual deaths in each group, and although the mortality of the daughters, in each group of ages, is slightly above, and that of the widows correspondingly below the average of the two classes, the number of deaths is so small that no significance can be attached to this difference. The experience of the Bengal, Madras and Bombay Funds, so far as it is available, does not extend to daughters, other than incumbents, and that of the Indian Civil Pensions includes only a small number of deaths at the earlier ages. The figures in Table IV, however, indicate that the mortality at the younger ages is very similar to that of the daughters of subscribers to the Indian Military Pensions, the deaths under 30 being 6 as against 6·8 expected, according to that standard, and those under age 45 being 20 as against 21·0 expected. In these circumstances I have considered it to be sufficient to employ approximately the same rates of mortality for daughters at the younger ages as were used for the valuation of the Indian Military Pensions, the rates being made identical under age 12, but with a deduction of 10 per cent. to provide a margin for contingencies. The actual rates employed in the calculations are shown in the table appended.

Mortality of Sons.

13. It has been assumed that the mortality of the sons of subscribers will be similar to that in the experience of the Indian Military Pensions, a deduction of 10 per cent. being made from the latter rates, as in the case of the daughters, to provide a margin of safety. Owing to the short period of time of which the pensions of sons are payable any change in the assumed rate of mortality has only a small effect proportionately upon the values of either the contingent or actual pensions.

Remarriages of Widows.

14. The experience of the various funds gives very little basis for estimating the rates of the re-marriage of widows. Of the widows drawing Indian Civil Pensions only 13 had been re-married up to the date of the valuation, and among widows drawing pensions from the Bengal, Madras and Bombay Civil Funds only 10 remarriages took place in the 21 years covered by this investigation. These numbers are insufficient to furnish more than a mere indication of the probable rates of remarriage in future. Uncertainty in regard to this factor of the valuation is, however, of much less importance than would be the case in regard to the marriage rate of daughters. This is owing in the first place to the fact that in the case of a widow one-half of the pension is still payable to the incumbent on her remarriage, and to the further fact that such marriages will be relatively few, as the great majority of widows will become incumbents at ages where the probability of remarriage is small.

15. In the following table a comparison is made between the actual number of remarriges of widows, in certain age groups, and the estimated numbers according to the experience of (a) the Indian Military Pensions combined with the Bengal, Madras and Bombay Funds, 1888—1908 (see column headed I.M.P.), (b) the Bengal Uncovenanted Service Pensions, 1872—1901 (see column headed U.S.F.P.):—

TOTALS ...	1,613	18·22	20·74	23

16. It will be seen that in the aggregate the experience is not very unlike either standard of comparison, but is rather closer to the Uncovenanted Service. In view of the very small extent of the data and the resulting uncertainty, I have employed in the present valuation remarriage rates equal to one-half of those of the Uncovenanted Service Table. This will leave a margin for contingencies similar to that provided in my recent valuation of the Indian Military Pensions.

Marriages of Daughters.

17. The experience as to the marriage rates prevailing at different ages among the daughters of subscribers is drawn almost entirely from the data furnished by the old funds. The facts are summarised in Table VII, which follows:—

TABLE VII.

Marriages of Daughters, 1890—1911.

Age.	At risk.	Married.	Marriage rate per cent.
15—19 ...	589	5	·93
20—24 ...	769	25	3·25

50—54 ...	1,014	2	·20
55—59 ...	874	...	.....
All ages ...	7,788	133	.....

18. It will be seen that the rates of marriage in successive age groups do not progress with much regularity. On the average they are about 5 per cent. less than those deduced from the experience of the Indian Military Pensions, and about 20 per cent. less than in the experience of the Uncovenanted Service Pension Fund, the average age of marriage being moreover appreciably later than in that fund. Apart from the fact that the available data are not very extensive, there is the possibility to be considered of a fall in the marriage rate in the future, the effect of which would be materially to increase the cost of pensions. To provide for this contingency the rates actually employed in the calculations, as shown in Table A in the Appendix, have been taken at 75 per cent. of the graduated rates deduced from the actual experience set out in the above table.

Retirements of Subscribers.

19. The proportionate number of subscribers assumed to retire from active service at the various ages is a very important factor in the valuation. Among subscribers to the Indian Civil Pensions few retirements have as yet occurred, only a small number of subscribers having, at the date of the valuation, reached the ages at which retirements are to be expected. In determining the probable rate of retirements in the future, therefore, it is necessary to be guided, to a large extent, by the experience of the older funds. In Table VIII following will be found a statement of the number of subscribers in active service who were under observation at the various ages, and the number of those who retired at each age. The ages have not been grouped here as in the previous statistical tables as the rate of retirement varies considerably in passing from age to age.

20. So far as it goes the experience of the Indian Civil Pensions is fairly in agreement with that of the old funds. For example, according to the rates of retirement in the former out of 1,000 subscribers entering the service at age 24 or under 950 of the survivors are still in active service at age 45, but only 550 at age 50, these proportions being practically the same as those deduced from the experience of the old funds, although the percentage at the intermediate ages are not so closely in agreement. On the whole it may be said that the tendency, while not very marked, has been towards an earlier average age of retirement; and this tendency is also observable in the experience of the two years that have elapsed since the date of the valuation, the figures for these years having been supplied to me especially with a view to investigating this point. This tendency to an earlier age of retirement will, however, be effectively checked in the course of the next eight or ten years. Hitherto the retirements that have taken place, if we except early retirements on account of health, have been exclusively those of subscribers who entered prior to 1893, at a period, that is, when the average age at which subscribers entered the service, was about 21 years. But in that year a change in the regulations took effect which resulted in the average age at entry into the service being increased to about 24 years. This will be apparent from the figures in the following table:—

TABLE IX.

Number and Ages of Subscribers entering the Service.

1908	53	24·2
1910	51	24·4

21. It will be seen that for three years 1890—92, the average age at entry was 21·1, for the period 1894—1910 it was 24·1, and during the six years elapsed since the last valuation, 1905—10, it has been 24·3. This increase in the age at entry must be expected to produce eventually a corresponding increase though not necessarily of an equal amount in the average age of retirement. On the other hand, there may be factors which will operate in the opposite direction. The question is now under discussion as to how far any surplus brought out by the present valuation can be utilised to cancel the contributions at present payable by retired subscribers, and it is quite possible that such a change in the regulations might affect slightly the average age of retirement.

22. Assuming that the rates of retirement in the future continue to be as shown in the last column of the above table, the effect as regards the value of future contributions will be practically the same as if all subscribers retired at 51 years of age. Duly weighing the various considerations referred to in the preceding paragraph, I am of opinion that it will be sufficient for the purpose of this valuation to assume that retirements will take place in future on the average at age 50; and this has accordingly been done. This assumption will leave an adequate but not unreasonable margin for contingencies.

Withdrawals of Subscribers.

23. The financial effect of the withdrawal of subscribers has to be considered. In the case of married subscribers withdrawals may be regarded as unimportant, as, no sum being allowed for the surrender of the contract, there will generally result a relief of liability to the funds. The withdrawal upon their retirement of unmarried subscribers, however, will generally result in a loss to the funds: and in estimating the present value of the contributions to be received from unmarried subscribers this must be taken into account.

24. If we exclude from consideration early retirements on account of ill-health or other special circumstances, which, from their fewness and for other reasons, are not of importance in this connection, the normal retirements, taking place, say, after 45 years of age, have been very few in the experience of the Indian Civil Pensions. Even if we include the two years elapsed since the date of valuation there have been only 10 such retirements of unmarried subscribers, and two only of these have withdrawn from membership at or subsequent to the date of retirement. The number of such withdrawals will no doubt be kept in check in the first place by the smallness of the contribution required from retired unmarried subscribers, and, secondly, by the probability of marriage, or in the case of widowers, of re-marriage, with the consequent advantage in that event of having remained a subscriber. According to the experience of the old funds, about a third of the unmarried subscribers who retire at the normal ages eventually marry. The element of selection will probably come into operation in the case of those retired subscribers who withdraw, and the probability of marriage or re-marriage in these cases may be less than the average, but this is hardly more than surmise. I have considered that it will be sufficient for the purpose of this valuation to assume that in future 25 per cent. of the unmarried subscribers retiring will cease to contribute, but that, on the other hand, this will not affect the provision that will require to be made for pensions to future wives and children.

Liabilities for Future Wives and Children.

25. In addition to dealing with the liabilities that have actually accrued in the shape of pensions in course of payment and of the liabilities for contingent pensions to existing wives and children it is necessary in a valuation such as the present to bring into the account on the one side the present value of the liabilities for pensions in respect of any future marriages of contributors, whether now single or married, and in respect of any future births of children, and on the other side the present value of the donations and increased contributions which will become payable on the happening of these.

26. These liabilities for pensions to future wives and children have been sometimes referred to as "prospective" to distinguish them, for convenience, from the more immediate and tangible liabilities for pensions in course of payment, or for pensions that may become payable to present wives and children. No material distinction, however, can be drawn between these classes of liabilities. In general, when a subscriber enters the service, the liabilities incurred in return for his contributions are entirely "prospective." The value at that date of the contributions he is required to pay as an unmarried subscriber ought to be sufficient to cover the value of the prospective liabilities for pensions to any widow and any children he may ultimately leave surviving him, allowance being made for the additional contributions and donations that he may be required to pay on marriage or at the birth of children. As regards the pens on to any future widow the cost is largely, though not altogether, met by the additional contributions and donations payable upon marriage, but this is not so as regards pensions to future children, the cost of these being only partly met by additional contributions, the balance being provided out of the contributions of unmarried subscribers. In treating the latter as an asset it is necessary therefore to bring in on the other side of the Valuation Balance Sheet the value of the prospective liabilities they are intended to meet, otherwise a fictitious surplus would result.

27. Even assuming that there were at any particular valuation an approximate balance between the present value of the pensions, and of the additional contributions payable in respect of future marriages and births, this balance would be disturbed by any change, either in the amount of the contributions in the conditions under which they are payable, or in the rate of interest assumed in the valuation. Hence it would be impossible to estimate the financial effect of any such changes unless the present values both of the pensions and of the additional contributions were first ascertained.

28. In order to provide a basis for the valuation of the prospective assets and liabilities above referred to, an estimate must be made of the number of marriages that may be expected to take place among the subscribers of various ages and of the number of future sons and daughters that may be expected to be born in respect of present or future marriages.

Marriages of Subscribers.

29. In the table that follows is a statement of the number of unmarried subscribers under observation in various age groups and the number of marriages during the period 1890—1911, with the average rates of marriages in each age group :—

40—44	262½	15	5·7

30. Allowance has to be made, however, for the change that has occurred in the average age of marriage during the 21 years under review, owing, in the main, to the change in the average age of entry into the service. In the rates of marriage actually employed in the valuation, shown in Table A aforesaid, the effect of this change has been taken into account, the rates of marriage being so taken as to preserve approximately the same number of marriages in the aggregate, but with a slightly higher average age at marriage than is shown by the aboye table.

Births of Future Children.

31. For greater convenience of calculation the number of the births of sons and daughters to fathers of given ages has been compared with the total number of subscribers, whether married or single, under observation at such ages. I have in this instance considered it advisable to confine the investigation to the past six years 1905—1911. During this period the ratio of the number of married men at each age to the total number of subscribers, at that age, has been practically constant apart from small accidental fluctuations at individual ages. The following table gives a summary of the experience in the form of a statement of the number of subscribers under observation, in various age groups, during the six years, and the number of births of sons and daughters to fathers of those ages :—

32. The rates of issue, as regards sons and daughters, employed in the valuation of the prospective liabilities for pensions to unborn children, as given in Table A, have been based upon an analysis of the experience as summarised in the preceding table.

Reserve for Future Expenses of Management.

33. Under the arrangements now in force the annual charge for expenses of management in India is limited to 2½ per cent. of the income from contributions and donations plus 2½ per cent. of the outgo for pensions, and the annual charge for expenses in London to 200*l*. In each valuation, as set out in the Valuation Balance Sheet, the sum reserved for future expenses represents approximately the capitalised value of these charges, properly apportionable to existing contracts.

Basis of Valuations.

34. The valuations have been based upon the rates of mortality among subscribers, and among the wives, widows and sons of subscribers, upon the rates of marriage of widows and of daughters, and upon the rates of marriage and issue of subscribers shown in Table A appended to this report. They are also based upon the assumptions as to retirements and withdrawals above referred to.

35. Valuations have been made upon the bases of rates of interest of 4 per cent. and 4½ per cent. respectively in accordance with instructions, and it is assumed in the case of each valuation that the capital will from year to year be credited with interest at the rate so long as any of the existing contracts remain in force.

Results of the Valuations.

36. The Valuation Balance Sheet appended to this report shows in detail the results of the alternative Valuations at 4 per cent. and 4½ per cent. respectively, upon the assumption that the full rates of contributions and donations as set out in the Regulations are payable in future. It will be seen that according to the valuation made at 4½ per cent. there is an estimated surplus of 770,897*l.*; and according to the valuation made at 4 per cent. an estimated surplus of 601,909*l.*

37. In each case the surplus is much more than sufficient to provide for the continuance of the abatement of 12½ per cent. in the contributions which is at present operative. The existence of the surplus is due to the fact that, mainly in consequence of light mortality prevailing amongst subscribers since the establishment of the present pension regulations, the contributions have proved more than sufficient to provide for the liabilities incurred.

38. As regards any proposals for the disposal of this surplus, certain suggestions have already been put forward with regard to the matters, and I have been instructed to consider and report upon these suggestions without delaying the presentation of this report. I propose in accordance with these instructions to report immediately upon the proposals referred to in a supplementary report.

Cost in future of Benefits provided by the State.

39. It remains to deal with the further question upon which I am instructed to report, namely, as to the probable effect of regulations affecting benefits provided by the State, in view of the increase in the number of active service members beyond the 900 contemplated when the scheme was instituted. At the date of the last valuation, 31st March 1905, the number in active service was 947, and at the date of the present valuations it was 1,168. This increase has been largely due to the fact that the members of the Bengal, Madras and Bombay Civil Funds have been retiring gradually from active service, and their places in the service have been taken by younger men who are subscribers to the Indian Civil Pensions. There were, however, at the date of valuation, only 49 members of the old funds remaining in active service, all of whom are over 50 years, and the majority of whom may be expected to retire within the next year or two. It is not probable, therefore, that the rapid increase in the number of subscribers will continue in the future. In Table IX has already been given a statement of the number of entrants, and the average age at entry for the past 21 years. The figures appear to indicate that the numbers annually joining the service are fairly constant. Over the whole of the 21 years covered by the investigation, the average annual number of entrants has been 50; for the latter half of that period, say the 11 years, 1900—1910, the average number has been 49·5; and for the six years elapsed since the last valuation the average number has been 50·5, so that we may fairly assume a figure of 50 entrants annually, as representing the normal condition of affairs. This number of annual entrants will maintain the numbers in active service at approximately 1,200, which is very nearly the present figure, and it has accordingly been adopted as the basis of the calculations which follow.

40. Upon the assumption of 50 annual entrants into the service in future, at an average age of 24, that the rates of mortality, marriage and issue, as set out in the appended Table A, will be experienced, and that the differences of ages in husbands and wives will be in accordance with experience I have made calculations, as to the probable annual cost of the benefits provided by the State at certain future dates. The net result of these calculations is that on the basis laid down above it may be expected that, when a stationary condition is reached (when theoretically the number of subscribers and of pensioners, and moreover the annual income from subscriptions, donations, and interest, and the annual outgo for benefits, have all become constant) the annual cost of the benefits paid by the State will be approximately :—

For widows' pensions	13,400
For daughters' pensions	24,600
For sons' pensions	1,900
Total annual cost ...	39,900

41. According to the regulation at present in force with regard to the benefits provided by the State, "should it at any time appear from a valuation that the aggregate liabilities on account of these benefits, when the pension list shall have reached a normal state, will exceed 35,000*l.* per annum, they will be subject to such reduction as may be necessary to restrict the annual assistance to 35,000*l.* per annum, but the reduction shall in no case affect the benefits payable to incumbent annuitants." It will be seen that according to the above estimate, the ultimate annual cost to the State of these benefits will somewhat exceed the abovementioned figure, but to an extent which cannot be considered serious, having regard to the present increased numbers in the service. I would point out, however, that the estimate given in the last paragraph, being founded upon the statistical tables employed as a basis for the valuation, which contain, specially as regards the rates of marriage, certain margins to meet contingencies, probably overestimates to some extent the ultimate annual cost to the State. This was unavoidable except by the use of an independent set of tables, the construction of which would have meant a great expenditure of labour and time. It should also be noted that the date at which the cost of pensions will attain its maximum level is very remote, and that upon the basis of the above estimate the annual cost to the Government will not reach 35,000*l.* per annum for about 60 years from the present time. Under these circumstances the discrepancy between the ultimate cost as estimated above and that provided for may be disregarded.

I have, etc.,

ENCLOSURE No. 2:—Sir George Hardy to India Office.

140 St. Stephen's House
Westminster, S. W.,
20th November 1913.

Indian Civil Service Family Pensions.

SIR,

I have now completed my investigation into the questions referred to me in the first part of your letter of the 10th September last in connection with the valuation of the Indian Civil Family Pensions, upon which I have recently reported, namely:—

(1) The feasibility of relieving retired subscribers of the payment of contributions.

(2) The possibility of continuing pensions to sons up to the age of 24.

These questions must be considered first with regard to the sufficiency of the estimated surplus brought out at the valuation to provide for these concessions, and secondly with regard to the equity of employing the surplus for these purposes.

According to the recent valuations, on the assumption that all future contributions will be paid in full, there is upon a 4½ per cent. basis a surplus of 770,897*l.*, and upon a 4 per cent. basis a surplus of 601,909*l.* On the 4½ per cent. basis there can be no doubt of the adequacy of the surplus to provide the additional benefits in question. It will be sufficient, therefore, to consider the matter from the point of view of the 4 per cent. valuation.

A revaluation has been made of the contributions payable by subscribers upon the assumption that these will, except as regards donations on marriage, cease upon retirement, the average age of retirement being taken at 50 as in the valuation. The effect of this assumption upon the items on the asset side of the valuation balance sheet will be seen from the following statement:—

Capitalised value of Contributions at 4 per cent.

In respect of—	As in Valuation report, 11th November 1913.	If ceasing upon retirement.
Present wives ...	722,656	446,848
Future wives ...	319,505	216,930
Present daughters ...	99,489	41,134
Future daughters ...	69,695	38,457
Present sons ...	41,114	26,798
Future sons ...	37,104	25,464
Bachelors and widowers ...	120,060	100,682
Totals ...	1,409,623	896,313

The total value of the contributions would, therefore, be reduced, if they ceased upon retirement, by the sum of 513,310*l*., which is well within the amount of the surplus of 601,909*l*. This surplus, however, is dependent upon the payment of all contributions in full. The capitalised cost of the abatement of 12½ per cent. at present operative, assuming no contributions to be payable after retirement, is estimated at 112,040*l*., and it will be seen, therefore, that the above surplus does not permit both of the total relief from contributions on retirement, and of the continuance of the present abatement of 12½ per cent.

The above estimate assumes that subscribers will remain entitled to claim pensions for their widows, although marriage may take place after retirement, and also for children who may be born to them subsequent to retirement. If no pensions are allowed to widows in the case of those subscribers who marry after retirement, nor to children born after retirement (or if, in the alternative, the cost of such pensions is entirely met by special contributions levied for the purpose), the net cost of relieving subscribers of their contributions after retirement, on the 4 per cent. valuation basis may be put at 490,000*l*. Some allowance is made in this estimate for the possible effect of such a regulation, in a certain number of cases, in either accelerating marriage or postponing retirement until marriage has taken place. It should also be noted that the table of Disparity Fines is affected by the discontinuance of subscriptions on retirement and would require to be increased.

The question of excluding widows from pension in cases where marriage takes place after retirement requires careful consideration. If they are not excluded, the scale of donations remaining as at present, instances will occasionally occur where a subscriber by marrying at an advanced age may bring a heavy liability upon the funds quite out of proportion to the donation he may be called upon to pay. On the other hand if all marriages after retirement are excluded from benefit, contributors who have remained unmarried up to the date of retirement may regard this as a hardship. The cases, however, in which contributors remain unmarried until retirement and marry subsequently are, in the normal course of things, very few. According to the rates of marriage as ascertained from the experience, out of every 100 subscribers entering the service and surviving to the age of retirement, 91 have married, and of the remainder only three marry subsequently. As regards children born after retirement, the saving effected by excluding these from benefit is only about 5,000*l*., so that the question is not financially important. Any hardship to unmarried subscribers might be removed by allowing pensions to widows where subscribers marry after retirement, and to children born after as well as before retirement, but at the same time raising the scale of donations on marriage in the case of retired subscribers, requiring reasonable evidence of health at date of marriage, and requiring donations to be paid on the birth of children the issue of such marriages. In calculating the amount of these donations due allowance should be made for the subscriptions paid during active service. It must be remembered, however, that a considerable part of these subscriptions are required in aid of the pensions to children. It might be left to the option of retired subscribers to secure these pensions for their widows or children.

Some concession to unmarried subscribers and widowers might also be made by providing that the full monthly contribution after 18 years' service should remain at 4*l*. 15*s*. instead of being advanced to 5*l*. 15*s*. after 23 and to 7*l*. 5*s*. after 28 years' service. The cost of this concession would not be serious as it would absorb only between 2,000*l*. and 3,000*l*. of the surplus.

Assuming the above suggestion to be carried out all widows and children receiving pensions as at present (revising the scale of donations for marriages taking place after retirement and adopting a scale for births resulting from such marriages), and no increase being made in the contribution of the unmarried subsequent to that made after 18 years' service, the net cost of these changes may be put down at approximately 498, 00*l*.

The estimated cost of continuing the pensions to sons up to age 24, instead of to age 21 as at present, is 15,180*l*., assuming that the present rates of contribution are also paid up to age 24 in the event of the subscriber surviving. If allowance is made for an abatement of 12½ per cent. on these additional contributions the above figure will be very slightly increased. It may, to avoid complication, be put at 15,250*l*. with sufficient approximation either way.

We may set out the cost of the proposed concessions as under:—

(1) Estimated surplus in the 4 per cent. valuation	601,909
(2) Net cost of all contributions ceasing on retirement, as stated above; but no increase in contributions of unmarried subscribers after 18 years' service	498,000
(3) Net cost of extension of sons' benefits to age 24	15,250
(4) Cost of continuance of abatement of 12½ per cent. of contributions	112,040
Total cost of (2)+(3)+(4) ...	625,290

It will be seen, therefore, that the surplus as it stands is not sufficient to meet both the proposed concessions to subscribers, and at the same time to maintain the present rate of abatement. It would be so, however, but for the reserve necessity under existing conditions for expenses of management. If the necessity for this reserve could be avoided an additional sum would be set free towards meeting the cost of the proposed changes, amounting to 41,000*l*. In that event after making the above concessions to subscribers and maintaining the present rate of abatement there would still remain a balance of about 17,000*l*. undivided surplus, and although this is not, in itself a very substantial margin in comparison with the total liabilities upon the funds, a safeguard is provided in the power to reconsider the continuance of the abatements at each successive valuation.

Summing up the conclusions arrived at above—

(a) If the rate of interest allowed upon the funds is retained permanently at 4½ per cent., the surplus is sufficient to allow of the proposed concessions, and of abatements considerably in excess of those now allowed on contributions.

(b) If the rate of interest is fixed, during the continuance of the existing contracts, at 4 per cent., the funds being charged with expenses of management as at present, the proposed concessions are only possible if the present rate of abatement on contributions is considerably reduced. It could not be put with safety at more than 5 per cent. in lieu of 12½ per cent. as at present.

(c) If the rate of interest is fixed as above, at 4 per cent., and the funds are relieved from any future expenses of management, the surplus will be sufficient to provide for both of the proposed concessions.

A further question of considerable importance will need to be considered, namely, how far the present rates of contribution payable up to the date of retirement only, will be sufficient in the case of new entrants to provide for the proposed benefits. This can be best dealt with while discussing the equity of the proposed methods of disposing of the surplus, as the two questions are intimately related, the latter depending mainly upon the relation of the contributions of various kinds payable by subscribers to the benefits they are intended to secure. It will be sufficient to assume that subscribers enter on the average at 24, that they are then unmarried, and that they retire on the average at 50, all contributions then ceasing. On the basis of the mortality, marriage and issue rates employed in the valuation taking interest at 4 per cent. the case will then stand approximately as under :—

Capitalised value as at the date of entry into the Service of—

(1) Contributions payable during marriage... ...	502
(2) Donations on marriage (revised), say	76
(3) Pension for widow	526

If we suppose the contributions to be subject to an average abatement of 12½ per cent. this will reduce the net value of contributions and donations to 515*l*., or nearly 98 per cent. of the discounted cost of the pension to widow. No provision is made here, however, for expenses of management, which, if we take them at 2½ per cent. on both benefits and contributions, will capitalise at about 24*l*. With these adjustments the figures would be as follows :—

Assets.

Value of contributions less 12½ per cent.	439
Value of donations	76
	515

Liabilities.

Cost of pension to widow	526
Expenses of management	24

It will be seen that when due allowance has been made for expenses of management there is a deficiency. On the other hand contributions payable while the subscriber is unmarried have not been brought into account. This is in accordance with the theory that the object of the contributions from unmarried subscribers is to provide in part for the pensions for children.

If we turn now to the children's pensions we find the relation of payments to benefits is approximately as follows, dealing as before with the average discounted values at the date of entering the service and including pensions to children born after retirement of subscribers :—

	Value of pensions.	Value of contributions.
For sons (up to age 21) ...	41	43
For daughters	148	67
Contributions while unmarried ...	...	148
Expenses of management ...	11	...
	...	258
Less abatements at 12½ per cent. ...	...	32
Totals ...	200	226

If the pensions to sons are continued until age 24 their capitalised value as given above will be increased to 53*l*., while the value of the contributions will only be increased by a decimal. This will bring up the cost of pensions to children, capitalised as at the date of entry into the service to 212*l*., the value of the corresponding contributions, including those payable by the subscriber while unmarried, being 226*l*. as above stated.

Summarising the above results the following would represent the conditions at the date of entry into the service, on the assumptions that—

(1) Contributions cease at retirement.
(2) If marriage occurs after retirement a pension is paid to the widow, the present scale of donations being increased.
(3) Pensions to sons are extended to age 24, the present contributions being similarly extended.
(4) Expenses of management are represented by a charge of 2½ per cent. on both benefits and contributions, including donations.
(5) Interest is credited to the funds at 4 per cent. per annum.

	Capitalised Values.
	Contributions less 12½ per cent. abatement.	Pensions, etc.
Widows' pensions ...	515	526
Children's pensions ...	96	200
Contributions while unmarried ...	130	...
	...	726
Management	...	35
Totals ...	741	761

The conclusion reached as regards new entrants is therefore practically in agreement with that already reached as to the existing body of subscribers, viz., that the contributions and donations payable up to the date of retirement are sufficient to meet the benefits (including the proposed extensions of sons' pensions to age 24) except for the charge for management.

It may further be deduced from the above considerations that the proposed relief from payment of further contributions in the case of retired subscribers is equitable, since on the average, a subscriber will by the date of retirement have practically paid for the benefits secured to him. The large surplus existing on the assumption that contributions will be paid in full up to the end of life, if distributed in the shape of a percentage abatement on all contributions, would not do justice to the older subscribers, and would be much too favourable to those who have more recently entered the service. Moreover, the abatement (which, computed on this basis, would be very large) could not be maintained as regards new entrants as it would bring the value of their prospective payments much below the value of their prospective benefits.

As regards the employment of a portion of the surplus to extend the age up to which sons' pensions are payable from 21 to 24, I regard this as a fair proposal, if arrangements can be made to render it possible by relieving the funds of the present charges for management. The payment of the present rate of contribution would be, of course, similarly extended, but I do not think that any increase in the rate of contributions for sons would be called for. It will be seen that the contributions, in respect of sons' pensions bear a much larger proportion of the cost of those pensions than is the case with the daughters. Excluding the charges for management and allowing for the present rate of abatement we may say that the contributions made on account of wives meet practically the full cost of the pensions on widowhood, those on account of the sons (assuming extension to 24) represent about 70 to 75 per cent. of the cost of the pensions, those for daughters about 40 per cent., the deficiencies being made good and a small margin added to cover general contingencies by the contributions from unmarried subscribers.

I have dealt fully, I think, with the two proposals referred to me, from the point of view of practicability and of equity, the points left over for further consideration being the scale of donations to be paid in the case of marriages after retirement and on the birth of children resulting from such marriages and the revision of the table of Disparity Fines.

As regards the second part of your letter of the 10th September, I am in communication with Mr. Badock and hope to be of assistance to him in reporting upon the matters therein referred to.

I am, etc.,

GEORGE F. HARDY.

ENCLOSURE No. 4:—Royal Commission to India Office.

From the Joint Secretaries to the Royal Commission on the Public Services in India.

12, Queen Anne's Gate,
London, S. W.,
8th August 1913.

SIR,

In the course of their enquiry in India the Royal Commission on the Public Services took evidence with regard to the Indian Civil Service Family Pension Fund. Since their return to this country they have also received from Mr. M. W. Fenton, of the Indian Civil Service, a reasoned memorandum of his views on the same subject, dated the 2nd June 1913, and of this a copy is enclosed. In so far as the evidence taken in India is concerned, the chief points raised relate to—

(i) The hardship involved in the levy of contributions after retirement, and
(ii) The desirability of continuing to sons pensions up to the age of 24.

Mr. Fenton's memorandum speaks for itself. The Royal Commission think that, if there is no objection on the part of His Majesty's Secretary of State for India, it would greatly facilitate the consideration of a very technical question if they could receive in writing the detailed observations of the authorities who control the working of the fund, on the points raised by Mr. Fenton and by the witnesses in India, together with suggestions as to the terms on which the two concessions, prayed for by the latter, could be granted if it is considered impossible to make them out of the existing surpluses. As between the two, the volume of evidence was distinctly in favour of the former. It is clearly felt by the members of the service to be an unjustifiable drain on their pensions to have to continue their contributions after retirement, and the matter is one which will need very careful investigation.

2. The Royal Commission would also be glad to be furnished with the exact figures to show, since the inception of the fund, first, the receipts and expenditure on account of management, and secondly, the value of the contributions actually made by the State.

I have, etc.,
M. S. D. BUTLER,
Joint Secretary.

The Under-Secretary of State for India.

Ordered that the despatch and enclosures be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

J. B. BRUNYATE,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

The following orders, issued by the Government of India in the Department of Commerce and Industry, published in the Gazette of India dated the 7th March 1914, are republished for general information.

J. G. CUMMING,
Offg. Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

NOTIFICATION.

CUSTOMS ESTABLISHMENT.

Delhi, the 7th March 1914.

No. 1105-2-C.—Mr. F. J. G. Geary, I.C.S., an Assistant Collector in the Imperial Customs Service, is granted privilege leave for three months combined with special leave for three months, with effect from the 24th March 1914 or such subsequent date as he may avail himself of the leave.

No. 1327-2.—Mr. F. Buckney, an Assistant Collector, in the Imperial Customs Service, is granted privilege leave for three months with effect from the 14th April 1914, or such subsequent date as he may avail himself of the leave.

RESOLUTION.

POST OFFICE.

Delhi, the 5th March 1914.

No. 1446—1449-29.—In the Resolution of the Government of India in this Department No. 4566—4569-251, dated the 27th June 1910, it was decided that with the abolition of the system of deposits subject to six months' notice of withdrawal, the maximum limit of cash deposits in the Post Office Savings Bank should be raised from Rs. 200 to Rs. 500. The Government of India are of opinion that the existing limits on Savings Bank deposits may with advantage be still further extended, and they have recently had under consideration the question of affording further facilities to the public in this direction.

2. It has now been decided that:—

(a) the present limit on the annual addition to cash held at call should be raised from Rs. 500 to Rs. 750, the new limit being fixed on the depositor's net annual deposit and not as at present on his gross deposit;

(b) the limit on the aggregate amount which may be held at call in any individual account should be raised from Rs. 2,000 to Rs. 5,000;

(c) rupees 5,000 should be fixed as the total limit for investments through the Post Office Savings Bank in Government Securities, irrespective of the increased maximum limit for cash deposits;

3. The Governor General in Council is therefore pleased to direct that the following rules shall be substituted for those published in the Resolution of the Government of India in this Department No. 4566—4569-251, dated the 27th June 1910, and that they shall come into force with effect from the 1st April 1914.

Definitions.

1. For the purposes of these rules—

Deposit means money paid into a Post Office Savings Bank by, or on behalf of, a depositor.

Depositor means the person by whom, or on whose behalf money is deposited.

Account means the account of a depositor in a Post Office Savings Bank.

Balance means the balance at credit of an account.

Minor means a person who has not completed the age of eighteen years.

Guardian includes a father, or, if the father be dead, a mother, or, if both parents be dead, and no guardian of the minor has been appointed, by will or deed or under any enactment for the time being in force in British India, any adult relation of the minor with or by whom the minor is residing or being maintained.

Director-General means the Director-General of the Post Office of India.

Postmaster-General means the chief postal authority in any province or place to which the system of Post Office Savings Banks is extended.

Accountant-General means Accountant-General, Post Office and Telegraphs.

Object of Government in Establishing Post Office Savings Banks.

2. The object of Government in establishing Post Office Savings Banks is to provide a ready means for the deposit of savings and so to encourage thrift. Savings Banks are not to be used for the purpose of keeping a current account, and the Accountant-General is empowered to close accounts, or, in the case of accounts opened on behalf of minors, to stop the receipt of further deposits should he have reason to believe that the accounts are being used for a purpose for which the Savings Bank was not intended.

Business hours.

3. Post Office Savings Banks will be open for the transaction of business between the hours of noon and 4 P.M. every day, with the exception of Sundays, and other Post Office holidays. These hours may, under the authority of the Postmaster-General, be altered to suit local circumstances.

Postal officials bound to secrecy.

4. The officers of the Post Office engaged in the receipt or payment of deposits are not allowed to disclose the name of any depositor, or the amount deposited or withdrawn by him, except to the Postmaster-General or other officers of the Department engaged in carrying out the provisions of these rules.

Persons who may deposit money.

5. Any person may deposit money in a Post Office Savings Bank (a) on his own behalf or (b) on behalf of any minor relative, or (c) on behalf of any minor of whom he is the guardian.

Exception.—A Government official may not open an account on behalf of a minor of whom he is the official guardian

Explanation.—Minors are allowed to deposit money in their own names, and women, whether married or single, are allowed to deposit money in their own names, but subject, in the case of married women, to the limitations laid down in rule 6 (3).

Limitations as to opening accounts and deposits.

6. (1) Any person may open an account in his own name, but may not have more than one such account open.

(2) In addition to the account which a person may open in his own name, he may open any number of separate accounts on behalf of any minors who are related to him or of whom he is the guardian, provided that he shall not open more than one account on behalf of each such minor.

(3) The fact that an account has been opened on behalf of a minor shall not prevent such minor from opening an account in his own name; nor shall the fact that a married man has an account in his own name prevent his wife from opening a separate account in her own name, provided the money to be deposited by her is her own property or earning.

NOTE.—If, through any cause, an account has been opened in contravention of the provisions of this rule the depositor shall not be entitled to claim interest on the account and the Accountant-General may require him to close it at once.

7. Deposits in trust are not allowed, and cannot be recognised.

8. Money cannot be deposited in the name of two or more persons jointly, provided that nothing in this rule shall prevent the deposit of money in the name of a known firm.

9. The smallest sum of money that can be deposited at any time is four annas; and no sum can be deposited that includes a fraction of an anna.

10. The total amount which may be deposited in any one official year—from the 1st April to the 31st of March inclusive,—after deducting the amounts withdrawn during the year, may not exceed Rs. 750.

NOTE 1.—Amounts deposited and withdrawn for purposes of immediate investment, will not be take into account in applying the annual limit of Rs. 750.

NOTE 2.—When an account is transferred from one Post Office Savings Bank to another, only such portion of the amount so transferred as was deposited and withdrawn in the current official year shall be included in calculating the limit of Rs. 750 prescribed in this rule.

11. The total amount at call which a depositor may have at any time, exclusive of interest for the current year, is Rs. 5,000 in the case of an adult and Rs. 1,000 in the case of an account opened on behalf of a minor by his relative or guardian.

NOTE.—The maximum balance of Rs. 5,000 (or Rs. 1,000 if the account was opened on behalf of a minor) may be increased by the addition from year to year of interest calculated on the maximum limit of Rs. 5,000 or Rs. 1,000, as the case may be, and also by interest on investments credited under rule 49.

Powers to withdraw money and limitations as to withdrawals.

12. A depositor may withdraw money from his account only once a week. By the term "week" is meant the period from Monday to Saturday, both days inclusive. A depositor may, therefore, withdraw money from his account on Saturday and again on the following Monday.

13. A minor may only withdraw money deposited by him in his own name. Money deposited on behalf of a minor may only be withdrawn during his minority by his guardian.

14. Women, whether married or single, may withdraw money deposited by them in their own names; and married women may also withdraw money deposited by them as single women, in their own names, their marriage notwithstanding. The fact that a female minor, on whose behalf money has been deposited, is married, or becomes married after the account has been opened on her own behalf, shall not prevent her from withdrawing the money so deposited on attaining majority.

15. A depositor may not withdraw a smaller sum than four annas, and he may not withdraw any sum which includes a fraction of an anna unless it be to close his account, in which case he may withdraw the whole balance at his credit.

How to open an Account.

16. Any person wishing to open an account should apply to the nearest post office that is a Savings Bank. Application need not necessarily be made in person; but the applicant must state his name and address. If he be an Indian he must also state his father's name and caste.

17. The intending depositor must sign a declaration, in the following form, that he has read and accepted the Post Office Savings Bank rules. If he be unable to write, he must attend personally, and, in the presence of a witness, affix his mark or seal to the declaration to be attested by the signature of the witness. If he should apply in person, a copy of these rules will be given to him to read, or they will be read and explained to him should he be unable to read. If he should not apply in person, a copy of these rules with the form of declaration will be sent to him and he must present the declaration duly signed, with the first deposit.

Form of declaration to be signed by depositor on making first deposit.

"I hereby declare that the Post Office Savings Bank Rules have been read $\frac{\text{by me}}{\text{to me}}$ and that I accept them as binding upon me."

"I further declare that I have no account opened by me on my own behalf at any Post Office Savings Bank."*

18. Women may open accounts in their own names through their agents or, if they are married women, through their husbands or agents. The agent or husband will be required to produce a letter of authority in the prescribed form from the depositor and to sign the declaration that the depositor understands and accept the rules. No postal official may under

* NOTE.—The latter sentence is to be scored through in the case of an account opened on behalf of minors, in which case the person opening the account must make the following further declaration:—
"I declare that I have no account on behalf of the minor at any Post Office Savings Bank."
"I declare that the minor was born on (date by—Christian era as nearly as can be ascertained").

this rule be the agent of any woman, except his own wife, in respect of an account held in the post office in which he is employed.

19. When the declaration is presented, duly signed, with the amount of the first deposit or when it has been signed by a depositor attending in person to make a deposit, the amount of the deposit will be entered in a pass-book which will be supplied to the depositor, and the entry will be initialled by the postmaster and stamped with the office stamp. The depositor will be required to sign a receipt for the pass-book.

20. If the account be opened at a sub or branch post office, the pass-book for the depositor will have to be obtained from the head office. A preliminary receipt for the amount of the first deposit will, therefore, be given to the depositor, who will be informed of the date on which he should call to receive the pass-book. When the pass-book is handed over to the depositor, he will be required to return this preliminary receipt and to sign a receipt for the pass-book. The amount of the original deposit will be entered in the pass-book by the head office, and the depositor will therefore have a guarantee that the sum has been received in that office. He should be careful to see that the entry in the pass-book corresponds with the amount entered in the preliminary receipt before giving up the latter.

Pass-book and its importance.

21. The pass-book will show, in the vernacular of the district or in English, as the depositor may wish, the number of his account, with the name of the office from which the book is issued, his own name and address. No deposit can be made and no money can be withdrawn from an account without its production, and the post office will not be responsible for any sum not acknowledged in the pass-book. Depositors should carefully examine their books before leaving the office, and ascertain that the entries are correct. They should also be careful to keep their pass-books in their own possession, as the post office does not accept responsibility for any loss caused to a depositor, if through his negligence, any person shall obtain possession of the book and fraudulently obtain the payment of any sum belonging to the depositor.

NOTE: In the case of an account opened at a sub or branch post office, the pass-book will be sent to the head office as soon as possible after the 30th April, when the pass-book is presented for entry of interest under Rule 30. The depositor will obtain a receipt in exchange for his pass-book, and he must give up this receipt when his pass-book is returned to him.

Loss of Pass-book.

22. No charge will be made for the pass-book at first supplied to a depositor, or for any book issued to him in continuation of the original book which will be retained by the post office. But if a pass-book be lost or spoiled (except under circumstances over which the depositor has no control), or if any account be re-opened with the permission of the Accountant-General (under rule 35) before the expiration of three months from the date of closure, the depositor will have to pay one rupee for a fresh book.

Mode of depositing money after an account has been opened.

23. (1) A depositor may deposit money at the post office at which his account stands as often as he wishes, so long as the prescribed yearly and maximum limits are not exceeded. All that he is required to do is to take or send the amount to be deposited with his pass-book, to the post office. The amount of his deposit will be entered in the pass-book, and the balance struck as shown below. The entry will then be initialled by the postmaster, and stamped with the date-stamp of the office, and the pass-book will be returned to the depositor or his messenger :—

Date.	Date-stamp of post office.	Amount of each deposit or withdrawal (to be entered in words).	Amount deposited.	Amount withdrawn.	Balance at credit of the depositor.	Initials of the postmaster.
1883.			Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
3rd April ...	...	Deposited ten rupees ...	10	...	10	A.B.C.
5th „ ...	...	Deposited twenty-five rupees.	25	...	35	A.B.C.
12th May ...	...	Withdrawn three rupees	...	3	32	A.B.C.

(2) A depositor whose account stands at a head office may deposit money at any of the sub-offices under that head office which are Savings Banks, and a depositor whose account stands at a sub-office may deposit money at the head office of the sub-office or at any of the sub-offices of the head office which are Savings Banks. Similarly, a depositor at a branch office may deposit money at the office to which it is subordinate and if such office is a sub-office, he may also deposit money at the head office of such sub-office. With these exceptions a depositor may deposit money only at the post office at which his account stands.

NOTE 1.—No deposit may be made to an account which has been ordered to be closed.

NOTE 2.—No deposit may be made to an account opened on behalf of a minor after he has attained the age of 18 years.

24. If the amount be deposited at a sub or branch post office, the depositor will receive in addition to the receipt in his pass-book, an acknowledgment from the head office, which will generally be the office at the head-quarters station of the district. This acknowledgment will be delivered to him in ordinary course through the post office. If it should not reach the depositor in proper time, or if, when it reaches him, it should show any signs of erasure, or should not agree with the entry in the pass-book the depositor should immediately apply to the postmaster of the head office, the name of which is in the pass-book, and renew his application again and again until he receives a satisfactory reply.

Mode of withdrawing Money.

25. When a depositor wishes to withdraw money he must present his pass-book personally or by agent at the post office at which his account stands, with a printed form of application for withdrawal, which can be obtained at the post office, signed by himself, and showing the balance at his credit and the amount which he wishes to withdraw. If the pass-book and application for withdrawal are presented by an agent, the name and signature of the agent should be entered in the application for withdrawal before it leaves the depositor's custody, and in any case the entries must be made before the application is presented at the post office. If the depositor is unable to write, he must attend personally and affix his mark or seal to the application. Should he be absolutely unable to attend personally, he must have his mark or seal affixed to the application and attested by some respectable witness, and the postmaster will make payment to the person presenting his application with the pass-pook, after satisfying himself, by such enquiry as he may think proper, of the inability of the depositor to attend and of the genuine character of the application. The mark or seal of a depositor or messenger who cannot write must, at the time he receives payment of a withdrawal, be attested by the signature of a respectable witness (other than the paying officer) who is personally acquainted with the depositor or messenger (as the case may be) and also known to the postmaster or some member of the post office establishment.

NOTE 1.—If a depositor desires to withdraw the whole of the balance shown to his credit in his pass-book, he will be required to close his account.

NOTE 2.—In the case of withdrawals made from the accounts of female depositors by their authorised agents under rule 18, the agent must sign the following certificate on the application for withdrawal :—"Certified that the depositor is on this day alive and sane."

26. Should any person other than the father, or if the father is dead, the mother wish to withdraw money from an account opened on behalf of a minor and claim to do so as guardian of such minor, he will be required to fill in, on a form prescribed by the Director-General, answers to the following questions and such other questions as may be considered necessary, and will only be allowed to withdraw money on the order of the Postmaster-General in accordance with rule 41 :—

(b) Is the father or mother of the minor dead, or are both parents dead? What near relatives of the minor are alive?

(c) Have you been appointed guardian of the minor by will or deed or under any enactment in force in British India? (If the reply to this question is in the affirmative, the applicant should produce the documents on which he relies to support his claim.)

(d) Are you an adult relative of the minor, and does he reside with you or is he maintained by you?

NOTE.—Every application for withdrawal from a minor's account must bear a certificate, in one or other of the forms given below,—according to the circumstances of the case—signed by the person making the application :—

(i) In case of withdrawal from a male minor's account—"Certified that the amount sought to be withdrawn is required for the use of the minor."

(ii) In case of withdrawal from a female minor's account by her husband—"Certified that the amount sought to be withdrawn is required for the use of the minor who is my legally married wife."

(iii) In case of withdrawal from a female minor's account by any other person—"Certified that the amount sought to be withdrawn is required for the use of the minor, who is $\frac{\text{married}}{\text{not married}}$."

27. The amount to be withdrawn will be entered in the pass-book and a fresh balance struck, as in case of a deposit, against the initials of the postmaster and an impression of the date-stamp of the office. The amount will then be paid to the depositor or to the person presenting the pass-book and application, and his receipt taken, in all cases free of stamp duty, on the warrant of payment.

28. (1) The payment of a withdrawal at a sub-post office is subject to the condition that funds are available in the office. If funds are not available, they will be obtained as soon as possible. In such a case the depositor will be informed of the date on which he should come to the post office to receive payment, and he will retain his pass-book. The amount will be paid on presentation of the pass-book on the date mentioned or any subsequent date within one week from that date.

(2) Every application for a withdrawal at a branch post office will be sent to the head or sub-office to which the branch office is subordinate, for a warrant of payment. The depositor will be informed of the date on which he should come to the branch office to receive payment and he will retain his pass-book. The amount will be paid on presentation of the pass-book on the date mentioned or any subsequent date within one week from that date.

(3) Payment at sub and branch offices will be made to the depositor or other person presenting the pass-book under the conditions laid down in rule 25, and his receipt will be taken, in all cases free of stamp duty, on the warrant of payment. The transaction will be entered in the pass-book against the initials of the sub or branch postmaster and an impression of the date-stamp of the office.

NOTE.—In the case of an application to withdraw from (a) a minor's account, (b) a security deposit account, (c) any of the conjoint account, specified in rule 44, payment cannot, in any circumstances, be made until a warrant of payment is received from the head office.

Interest.

29. Interest will be allowed, until further orders, at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum on all deposits subject to the condition stated in this rule. This interest will be allowed for each calendar month on the lowest balance at credit of an account between the close of the fourth day and the end of the month : provided that interest shall be allowed only on sums of complete rupees, and that it shall be calculated to the nearest pie : provided also that interest shall not be allowed on any sum in excess of Rs. 5,000 (or of Rs. 1,000, if the account was opened on behalf of a minor).

NOTE 1.—When an order has been issued to close an account, interest ceases to accrue from the first day of the month in which the order is issued (see end of rule 33).

NOTE 2.—Interest on the account of a deceased depositor ceases to accrue from the first day of the month in which notice is issued to the person or persons recognised by the Postmaster-General as entitled to receive the balance of the account. No interest will be allowed on money deposited after his death in the account of a deceased depositor.

30. The interest calculated as above for each month will be added each year to the balance of each account. Depositors should present their pass-books as soon as possible after the 30th April, in order that the necessary entries may be made in them. If the pass-book be not presented for this purpose, the entry will be made on the next occasion when a deposit is made or when money is withdrawn.

NOTE 1.—Pass-books of depositors in sub and branch post offices will be sent to the head office for the entry of interest under this rule.

NOTE 2.—No balance will be struck in the pass-book after the 31st March until interest has been added for the past year.

Transfer of Accounts.

31. A depositor may have his account transferred, free of charge, to any post office that is a Savings Bank, provided that the account shall have been in existence for at least three months from the date on which it was originally opened. If he should wish to transfer his account, he must present his pass-book personally, or send it to the post office, and must in either case make a written application for transfer. The pass-book will be returned to the depositor (but see Note 3 below), who should present it as soon as possible at the post office to which his account has been transferred, with a specimen of his signature.

NOTE 1.—Accounts cannot be transferred from one head post office to another between the 16th and 31st March, both days inclusive.

NOTE 2.—Accounts ordered to be closed cannot be transferred ; nor can an account be transferred after the death of the depositor.

NOTE 3.—The pass-book of a depositor in a sub or branch post office who wishes to transfer his account will first be sent to the head post office to which the sub or branch office is subordinate to have the orders authorising the transfer entered in the book.

NOTE 4.—When an application for the transfer of an account of a female depositor is made by her authorised agent, the agent must certify as follows above his signature on the application for transfer—"Certified that the depositor is on this day alive and sane."

Closing an Account.

32. When a depositor wishes to close his account, he must present his pass-book with a form of application for withdrawal of the amount shown at his credit in the pass-book. The amount of interest due on his account up to the end of the calendar month preceding the date of presentation will be entered in the pass-book, and a final balance struck. The amount will then be paid to the depositor, and his receipt taken on the warrant of payment. The pass-book will be retained in the post office. If the application to close an account be presented at a sub or branch office, the same procedure will be followed as in the case of an ordinary withdrawal, except that the pass-book will be retained, and that the application and pass-book will, when interest is due, be in all cases sent to the head office for the warrant of payment.

NOTE.—The rule (see rule 12) which prevents a depositor from withdrawing money from his account more than once a week does not apply to the closing of an account, that is to say, an account may be closed within the week in which a withdrawal has been made.

33. If an order to close an account be issued by the Postmaster-General or the Accountant-General under these rules, notice in writing will be sent to the depositor requiring him to present his pass-book and receive payment of the balance at his credit as soon as convenient. After the date of such notice no deposit will be accepted on the account, and no interest will be allowed upon the balance after the end of the calendar month preceding such date.

34. An account opened on behalf of a minor must, if still open, be closed by the person on whose on behalf it was opened, on his attaining the age of 18 years. When the late minor is not in India and delay would cause substantial hardship, the Postmaster-General may allow the late guardian to close the account (on behalf of the late minor) on his indemnifying the post office against loss from any future claim. If a minor after attaining the age of 18 years still remains a minor by law or order of a court of justice, his guardian must close the account on the minor completing 18 years of age. Interest on an account opened on behalf of a minor ceases to accrue from the first day of the month in which the minor attains the age of 18 years.

Re-opening an Account.

35. A depositor who has once closed an account cannot open another account until after the expiration of three months from the date of closure without the permission of the Accountant-General; and a depositor whose account has been closed by order cannot open a fresh account in any case without the permission of the authority which ordered it to be closed.

Dead Accounts.

36. Accounts in respect of which no transactions have taken place for the period specified below will be treated as "dead" and no subsequent deposit or withdrawal will be allowed in the case of such accounts without the previous orders of the Accountant-General :—

When the balance of the account				And when no sum has been deposited or withdrawn and no interest added for does not exceed	10	...	...	3 complete years.
" "	100	...	...	6 " "
" exceeds	100	...	...	12 " "

NOTE 1.—By "transaction" in this rule is meant not only a deposit or withdrawal but also the presentation of the pass-book for the entry of interest.

NOTE 2.—A dead account does not lapse to Government, but may be re-opened at any time on the application of the depositor, and the interest that has accumulated will be added to the principal when the account is revived.

Procedure to be followed in cases of succession and guardianship.

37. If a depositor should die, leaving in a Post Office Savings Bank a balance, whether in cash or in Government securities, or both, not exceeding one thousand rupees, and if probate of his will, or letters of administration of his estate, or a certificate granted under Act VII of 1889, be not produced to the Postmaster-General within three months of the death of the said depositor, the Postmaster-General may pay the said sum of money to any person appearing to him to be entitled to receive it or to administer the estate of the deceased.

NOTE.—If the deceased depositor was a minor in whose name more accounts than one stand open the balances at credit of all these accounts will be added together for the purpose of applying this rule.

38. Balances whether in cash or Government securities, or both, in excess of Rs. 1,000 may only be paid on production of probate, letters of administration or a certificate under Act VII of 1889, unless otherwise ordered by the Director-General, who has discretionary power to dispense with such evidence in cases where he is of opinion that to require it would cause hardship, and that to dispense with it would involve no appreciable risk. If the balance in excess of Rs. 1,000 be that of a cash deposit account opened on behalf of a deceased minor—the balance of which, excluding interest, cannot under these rules exceed Rs. 1,000—the discretionary power may be exercised even if the condition of hardship be not established.

NOTE.—In the case of a deceased minor on whose behalf more accounts that one have been opened, and the total balance (excluding interest for the current year) at credit of these accounts exceeds Rs. 1,000, the first sentence of this rule will apply.

39. If any depositor becomes insane or otherwise incapable of managing his affairs, and if such insanity or incapacity be proved to the satisfaction of the Postmater-General, then the Postmaster-General may, from time to time, make payment out of the deposits to any proper person. Where a committee or manager has been duly appointed to administer the depositor's estate, nothing in this rule authorises payments to any person other than such committee or manager.

40. The deposits of non-commissioned officers and soldiers of the British Army who die intestate, desert, or become insane or otherwise incapable of managing their affairs, will be made over, on application to the President of the Committee of Adjustment; or to the legal representative of the deceased as defined in section 29, Regimental Debts Act, 1893 (56 Vict., ch. 5).

41. When any person other than the father, or, if the father is dead, the mother claims to withdraw money from an account opened on behalf of a minor as being the guardian of such minor, the Postmaster-General may authorise the applicant to withdraw money from the account for the minor's use, in accordance with the following rules:—

(a) Where the applicant claims to be guardian under the law, on production of proof of the claim to the satisfaction of the Postmaster-General.

(b) Where the applicant claims as guardian duly appointed by will or deed, on production of the documents supporting the claim.

(c) Where the amount of the account does not exceed Rs. 250 and the applicant does not claim to be guardian under clause (a) or clause (b), upon his giving evidence to the satisfaction of the Postmaster-General that he (the applicant) is the guardian of the minor.

(d) Where the amount of the account exceeds Rs. 250 and the applicant does not claim to be guardian under clause (a) or clause (b), upon the applicant producing a certificate of administration granted under Act VIII of 1890.

(e) In any case of doubt the applicant (not being the father or mother of the minor) may be required to produce a certificate of administration, under Act VIII of 1890, before payment is made to him.

NOTE.—An authority given by the Postmaster-General under (e) will not hold good for a subsequent withdrawal if the balance of the account then exceeds Rs. 250.

Public Accounts.

42. The following special conditions govern the opening of "Public Accounts" and their transactions:—

(a) Accounts may be opened by secretaries, treasurers, or managers of the funds of any dispensary, church or other religious institution, school, orphanage, asylum or library, or of any other funds contributed, for purposes other than the private or personal advantage or amusement of the contributors. Race, racquet, billiard, mess and similar funds, the objects of which are of a private or personal nature, cannot be allowed accounts.

Illustration.—The funds of regimental and public bands, which are maintained for purposes other than private advantage or amusement, are admissible.

Explanation.—(1) A library fund is admissible, even though the library is open only to subscribers.

(2) If an institution has two or more distinct funds which cannot, under their constitution and in accordance with the conditions imposed by the donors, be amalgamated an account is admissible for each such fund.

(3) The prohibition of current accounts when applied to a public account extends only to the use of the account for full details of the income and expenditure of the fund and does not prevent the periodical credit of subscriptions or other receipts, or the periodical withdrawal of money for expenditure, e.g., a building fund raised for the erection of a church or charitable institution is admissible.

(b) Secretaries, treasurers, or managers of societies registered under the Co-operative Societies Act, 1912 (II of 1912), or under similar enactments in force in Native States, as well as liquidators of Co-operative Societies appointed as such under the provisions of section 42 of Act II of 1912, may be allowed accounts.

(c) Secretaries and managers of benevolent funds (that is, funds formed by mutual subscription as an insurance against domestic misfortune) may be allowed accounts.

(d) Officers of Government or of public institutions, such as railway and steamer companies, and the like, who collect subscriptions, voluntary or departmental, from their subordinates for departmental purposes, may be allowed accounts.

Explanation.—For the purpose of this rule, the term "Officers of Government" includes any officer of the Government of a Native State the Posts of which have been amalgamated with the Imperial Post.

(e) Public accounts of the kind specified above must be designated by names indicating the objects to which the money is devoted, as A—pore Dispensary Fund, Workmen's Sick Fund, etc., and information must be given in writing regarding the object and source of income of the fund.

(f) Each new public account must be authorised by the Postmaster-General before it is opened. The Postmaster-General is empowered to direct that a public account be closed should its object at any time be such that the account could not, under the rules, be opened as a public account.

(g) In every case in which the holder of a public account, other than a public account held by an officer of Government in his official capacity, is changed, a fresh declaration (see rule 17) must be filled up.

(h) The limitations laid down in rule 6 are not meant to prevent any person from opening more than one ex-officio or public account.

(i) The prohibition against deposit in the name of two or more persons jointly (see rule 8) does not apply to public accounts.

(j) The annual limit of Rs. 750 and the maximum limit of Rs. 5,000 for deposits (see rules 10 and 11), as well as the maximum limit of Rs. 5,000 for calculation of interest (see rule 29), do not apply to public accounts. But no public account may have at any time more than Rs. 10,000 at its credit, exclusive of interest for the current year, and no interest will be credited on any sum in excess of Rs. 10,000.

(k) The amount of withdrawals within a calendar month from a public account is limited to Rs. 1,000, unless the person who holds the account gives notice to the post office at which the account stands, of his intention to make additional withdrawals. The notice must specify the amount to be withdrawn and be given one month in advance by means of an ordinary letter addressed to the postmaster which should specify the date on which it is intended to make the withdrawal, and if it is intended to withdraw the amount in two or more instalments, specific information must be given in the notice as to the number of instalments and the amount and date of withdrawal of each instalment.

NOTE.—The period of the notice prescribed above may in the case of public accounts opened under clause (b) of this rule be reduced by the Postmaster-General by general or special order.

(l) In the form of declaration (see rule 17), which every intending depositor is required to sign, the words "I further declare that I have no account opened by me on my own behalf at any Post Office Savings Bank" should be scored through in the case of a public account.

43. No account may be allowed for money—

(a) which is the property of Government, or

(b) which has been received for credit of Government, or

(c) which has been drawn from the Treasury for expenditure on account of Government, or

(d) which is raised by taxation, either local or municipal, or

(e) which is collected or received or held in trust by any public officer or court in accordance with any law, provided that the money is the property of Government.

NOTE 1.—Nothing in this rule prevents the opening of a public account for money which is not the property of Government by the managers of funds held in trust for the relief of the poor, for the provision of education or medical relief, or for the advancement of any other object of general public utility, irrespective of whether such managers are public officers or not.

NOTE 2.—Nothing in this rule prevents the opening of an account for a judicial deposit in accordance with a special order passed by a court of law in a particular case directing the investment of the money in the Post Office Savings Bank. Such an account, when admitted, is subject in every respect to the rules and limitations which govern ordinary private accounts.

Regimental, Police, and other conjoint accounts.

44. The following special conditions govern the opening of the conjoint accounts specified below and their transactions :—

(a) The Commanding Officer of a Native Regiment may open a single account with the Post Office Savings Bank on account of the men of his regiment, making his own arrangements about the separate accounts of the individuals, and about the distribution to them of the interest credited upon the conjoint account. In other respects the account shall, except when the contrary is stated, be subject to the general rules for other accounts. The Commanding Officer must, when opening the account, sign a certificate, that, to the best of his belief, the money is the property of the men of the regiment.

(b) District Superintendents of Police, and officers in command or charge of any Police Force, may open similar accounts on account of the men of the Police Force under their command or charge.

(c) Chairmen of District Boards and Municipalities are also allowed to have similar accounts on account of servants and such Boards and Municipalities, in accordance with rules which may be sanctioned from time to time by Local Governments.

(d) Managers of Provident Funds authorised by Government in connection with Courts of Wards and other institutions administered or controlled by Government are also allowed to open similar accounts on behalf of non-pensionable employés paid from the funds of the Courts of Wards or other institutions in accordance with rules which may from time to time be sanctioned by Local Governments or Administrations.

(e) Secretaries of Cantonment Committees are also allowed to open similar accounts on behalf of non-pensionable employés paid from cantonment funds, in accordance with rules which may from time to time be sanctioned by the Government of India.

NOTE.—Nothing in this rule shall be held to prevent any member of any of the abovementioned classes of persons, for whom a conjoint account has been opened, from opening an account of his own, in his individual capacity.

(f) The annual limit of Rs. 750 and the maximum limit of Rs. 5,000 for deposits (see rules 10 and 11), as well as the maximum limit of Rs. 5,000 for calculation of interest (see rule 29), do not apply to accounts opened under this rule.

(g) Except with the special sanction of the Director-General, the amount of withdrawals within a calendar month from an account opened under this rule is limited to Rs. 1,000, unless the person who holds the account gives notice to the post office at which the account stands of his intention to make additional withdrawals. The notice must specify the amount to be withdrawn and be given one month in advance, by means of an ordinary letter addressed to the postmaster, which should specify the date on which it is intended to make the withdrawal, and if it is intended to withdraw the amount in two or more instalments, specific information must be given in the notice as to the number of instalments and the amount and date of withdrawal of each instalment.

(h) In the form of declaration (see rule 17), which every intending depositor is required to sign, the words "I further declare that I have no account opened by me on my own behalf at any Post Office Savings Bank" should be scored through in the case of accounts opened under this rule.

Security deposit accounts.

45. The following special conditions govern the opening of security deposit accounts and their transactions:—

(a) Government servants, servants of railway companies, of local authorities and of Courts of Wards who are required by their employers to deposit security, contractors who are required by Government or local authorities to deposit security, and persons who are authorised under section 202 of the Sea Customs Act, VIII of 1878, to act as agents for the transaction of business in any Custom House on behalf of the public, and are required under that section to deposit security, may be allowed separate accounts for the security deposit only.

Explanation.—For the purpose of this rule, the term "Government servants" includes any servant of the Government of a Native State the posts of which have been amalgamated with the Imperial Post.

NOTE.—Local authority means any body corporate, municipal committee, or other persons legally entitled to the control or management of any local or municipal fund or legally entitled to impose any cess, rate, duty or tax upon any persons within any local area.

(b) A person undertaking more than one work or contract at the same time may be allowed a separate account in respect of each.

(c) The maximum limit for each separate account is Rs. 500, and the amount may be deposited in a single sum or by instalments.

(d) A person may open a security deposit account either in his own behalf or on behalf of another person. More than one account, however, may not be opened as security for the same person in respect of the same work or contract.

(e) A security deposit account may be opened in the joint names of the persons undertaking the same work or contract.

(f) The depositor will be required to sign a letter (in a form prescribed by the Director-General) addressed to the postmaster, undertaking not to make any claim on the Savings Bank for the principal of the sum deposited, except with the express written sanction of the person referred to in the letter to whom the security is pledged; not to object to the payment by the Bank of the whole or part of the principal to such person on his claiming it and not to make any claim for interest from the date on which interest has ceased to accrue owing to the payment of the principal to such person or from the date on which such person has sanctioned the repayment of the deposit.

(g) The officer to whom the security is pledged as above may, with the consent of the person pledging the security, open an account for such security in his own name, e.g., "Executive Engineer, A—pore, on account of security of A.B." In this case the deposit will be received from the officer to whom the security is pledged and the pass-book will be issued to him.

(h) Interest on security deposits will accrue and be paid in the usual manner, subject to the conditions specified in the letter mentioned in clause (f) of this rule. No interest, however, will be allowed on any sum in excess of Rs. 500, that may be at credit of a security deposit account.

(i) The prohibition against the transfer of an account until it has been in existence for three months (see rule 31) does not apply to security deposit accounts.

(j) In the form of declaration (see rule 17), which every intending depositor is required to sign, the words "I further declare that I have no account opened by me on my own behalf at any Post Office Savings Bank" should be scored through in the case of a security deposit account.

INVESTMENTS.

Purchase of Government Securities.

46. (1) Any person whether previously a depositor in the Post Office Savings Bank or not may invest through the Post Office in Government securities, in one of the 3½ per cent. loans, specifying in his application either the sum to be invested or the nominal value of the securities to be purchased: provided that the sum to be invested or the nominal value of securities to be purchased shall be in whole rupees, and not less than Rs. 10: provided also that the total amount invested through the Post Office, after deducting any sum sold through the Post Office, shall not exceed Rs. 5,000 in the case of an adult or Rs. 4,000 in the case of a minor.

(2) If the nominal value of securities purchased is less than Rs. 100, an Investment Certificate will be issued. If the nominal value of the securities is Rs. 100, the investor may have either an Investment Certificate or a whole piece of Government paper for the amount, and if the nominal value of the securities is above Rs. 100, he may have either, (i) an Investment Certificate for the entire amount, or (ii) whole pieces of Government paper of Rs. 100 or any multiple of Rs. 100, and an Investment Certificate for the remainder, provided that the remainder is not less than Rs. 10.

NOTE.—In the case of all applications for the purchase of Government Securities, either the whole or a portion, of the balance standing at the credit of the depositor's Savings Bank account may be made available, or a special deposit made, for the purpose of providing the amount required.

(3) When whole pieces of Government paper are required, the investor has the option of requesting, in his application, that the paper should remain in the custody of the Accountant-General, or be delivered to him. In the former case, a receipt from the Accountant-General for the paper will be delivered to the investor. When paper is to be delivered to the investor, it will be enfaced for payment of interest at the district treasury and be forwarded to the Post Office for delivery to the investor. In the case of Government securities represented by an Investment Certificate, the securities will remain in the custody of the Accountant-General, and no paper can be delivered to the investor or enfaced for payment of interest at the treasury.

(4) Applications for Investment Certificates and Government Promissory Notes must be made on separate forms of application prescribed by the Director-General. If the applicant is already a depositor in the Post Office Savings Bank, he should present his pass-book with his application; if he is not already a depositor, a pass-book will be prepared and delivered to him.

(5) When an application for an Investment Certificate is presented at a head or a sub-post office, an Investment Certificate signed by the head or sub-postmaster, as the case may be, will be handed to the investor across the counter of the post office. When the application is presented at the branch post office, an Investment Certificate will be obtained for the investor from the head office or the sub-office to which the branch office is subordinate. The Accountant-General will fix the rate at which Government securities presented by Investment Certificates can be purchased. This rate will be communicated to head and sub-postmasters and will remain in force until it is changed by the Accountant-General.

(6) Two or more Investment Certificates may, at any time, be exchanged for a single certificate of their aggregate value, also, one or more Investment Certificates of the nominal value of not less than Rs. 100 may at any time be exchanged for a whole piece of Government paper of Rs. 100 or any multiple of Rs. 100. The certificates to be exchanged must be presented at the local post office, entered in the appropriate form of application prescribed for the purpose by the Director-General. Separate forms are provided for exchanging—

(7) In each case in which an Investment Certificate is issued by a sub-office, the depositor will receive a confirmation by post from the head office showing the number, date, and nominal value of the Investment Certificate and the cash balance left at credit of the account after the transaction. If the confirmation does not reach the depositor in proper time, or if, when it reaches him, it shows any signs of erasure, or does not agree with the entries in the Investment Certificate or the pass-book, the depositor should immediately apply to the postmaster of the head office and renew his application until he receives a satisfactory reply.

(8) Applications for Government Promissory Notes presented at any post office will be forwarded to the Accountant-General at Calcutta who will take the necessary steps for the purchase. The investor will be charged with the actual price paid for the Government Promissory Notes. The entries in connection with the investment will be noted in the pass-book by the head office.

NOTE.—The limit of Rs. 5,000 for investments through the Post Office does not apply to investments in connection with public accounts, with regimental, police, and other conjoint accounts, or with security deposit accounts.

Sale of Government securities.

47. (1) Any depositor may apply for sale through the Post Office of the whole, or of any portion, of any Government securities which may have been purchased for him through the Post Office, whether held by himself or held for him by the Accountant-General, provided that the securities bear no endorsement other than those made by and in favour of the Accountant-General and that, if only a portion of the Government securities is specified for sale, the normal value of this portion must not be (a) less than Rs. 10 or (b) such a sum as would leave a balance of securities of the nominal value of less than Rs. 10.

(2) Applications for the sale of (a) Investment Certificates, and (b) Government Promissory Notes, must be made on separate forms of application prescribed by the Director-General. In the former case, the application must be accompanied by the Investment Certificates, and the securities will be sold at the same rate as that fixed by the Accountant-General for the purchase of securities represented by Investment Certificates. In the latter case, such of the Government Promissory Notes to be sold as are not held by the Accountant-General, must be presented with the application endorsed in favour of the Accountant-General, and these, together with any Government Promissory Notes in the custody of that officer which are specified for sale, will be sold at the current market rate.

(3) The result of sale will be intimated to the depositor by the Accountant-General through the postmaster concerned, with the least possible delay after the receipt of the application. The proceeds of sale, together with any interest that may be due, will be credited to the depositor's Savings Bank account in the first instance and, if the annual or total cash limit of his account is hereby exceeded, the excess will not bear interest and must be withdrawn by the depositor.

NOTE.—Securities purchased in the name and on behalf of a minor cannot be sold during the minority except by the minor's legally constituted guardian, and the definition of guardian in rule 1 of these rules does not apply to the sale of such securities.

Safe Custody of Government Promissory Notes.

48. (1) A depositor may tender at a Post Office Savings Bank for safe custody by the Accountant-General, Government Promissory Notes which have been purchased for him through the Post Office. The tender must be made on the form prescribed by the Director-General, and the notes tendered must be endorsed by the Accountant-General. A receipt for the notes from the Accountant-General will be delivered to the depositor.

(2) A depositor may also, at any time, apply through the local post office for the delivery to him of any Government Promissory Notes which have been purchased for him through the Post Office. The application must be made in the form prescribed by the Director-General. The notes will be delivered to the depositor on his surrendering the receipt originally granted to him by the Accountant-General, duly endorsed, in acknowledgment of his having received back the notes.

Interest on Government Security.

49. So long as Government securities purchased through the Post Office remain in the custody of the Accountant-General, under rules 46 (3) and 48 (1), interest when due* will be drawn and advised to the local Post Office Savings Bank by the Accountant-General for credit to the depositor's account. If the annual or total cash limit of the account is exceeded, the excess will not bear interest.

50. No fee, commission, or brokerage of any kind is charged for the purchase, sale, safe custody or delivery out of custody of Government securities bought through the Post Office or for the realisation and remittance of interest on such securities. So long as Government securities purchased through the Post Office remain in the custody of the Accountant-General, under rules 46 (3) and 48 (1), the interest thereon is exempt from income-tax.

*NOTE.—In the case of Government securities represented by Investment Certificates, interest will, for the present, be due on the 1st May and 1st November of each year.

No. 121.—The following Order of His Majesty in Council for varying the provisions of the Principal Order in Council of the 24th June 1912, in so far as they relate to the Kingdom of Italy, published in the London Gazette of the 10th February 1914, is republished for general information :—

"Whereas His Majesty, by virtue of the authority conferred on Him by the Copyright Act, 1911, and having regard to the provisions of the Berlin Copyright Convention, was pleased to make an Order in Council, dated the 24th day of June 1912 (hereinafter called the Principal Order), extending the protection of the said Act to certain classes of works to which protection is guaranteed by the said Convention :

And whereas it is provided in Article (2), proviso (i), of the Principal Order that Sections 1 (2) (d) and 19 of the Copyright Act, 1911, and such other part or parts thereof as confer upon the owner of the copyright in a literary, dramatic or musical work the exclusive right of making any record, perforated roll, cinematograph film, or other contrivance by means of which the work may be mechanically performed and such other part or parts thereof as confer copyright in any record or perforated roll shall not apply in the case of any work of which the country of origin is Italy :

And whereas His Majesty has received an assurance from the Italian Government to the effect that the widest protection is granted in Italy to works of British origin, to the authors of which is reserved the exclusive right of every form of reproduction, execution, or representation by any means whatever (including the cinematograph as well as mechanical musical instruments) :

And whereas in view of this assurance it is expedient to revoke the provision above referred to in Article (2), proviso (i), of the Principal Order :

NOW, THEREFORE, His Majesty, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, and by virtue of the authority conferred upon him by the Copyright Act, 1911, is pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows :—

(1) The provisions of Article (2), proviso (i), of the Principal Order are hereby revoked so far as they relate to works of which the country of origin is Italy.

(2) In the application of the provisions of Article (3) of the Principal Order to works of which the country of origin is Italy, the commencement of this Order shall be substituted for the commencement of the Act and for the commencement of the Principal Order.

(3) In the application to works of which the country of origin is Italy of Sections 1 (2) (d) and 19 of the Copyright Act, 1911, the commencement of this Order shall be substituted for the commencement of the Act, and for the passing of the Act in Sections 19 (7) and 19 (8), wherever those expressions occur, and the 1st day of July 1914 for the 1st day of July 1913.

(4) Where any person has, before the date of this Order, taken any action whereby he has incurred any expenditure or liability in connection with the reproduction or performance of any work at a time when such reproduction or performance would, but for the making of this Order, have been lawful, nothing in this Order shall diminish or prejudice any rights or interest arising from, or in connection with such action, which are subsisting or valuable at the said date unless the person who, by virtue of this Order, becomes entitled to restrain such reproduction or performance agrees to pay such compensation as, failing agreement, may be determined in accordance with the provisions of the Copyright Act, 1911.

(5) This Order shall come into operation on the first day of April 1914, which date is in this Order referred to as the commencement of the Order.

Applications can only be considered so far as the requisite space is available. They should reach the management in Dar-es-Salaam not later than April 1st.

To ensure due attention large exhibits should be accompanied with a sketch plan with full details of the structure intended and particulars as to size, etc.

Applications when once made cannot be withdrawn.

4. ADMISSION OF EXHIBITS.

Permission to show exhibits and their disposal in the various groups is accorded by a permit from the Home Working Committee, which reserves the right to refuse without explanation applications or articles for exhibition.

5. EXHIBITORS NOT DOMICILED IN DAR-ES-SALAAM.

Exhibitors who have no agent in the Protectorate or who do not intend to send a special representative to the Exhibition can obtain the names of firms or persons willing to act as such. No responsibility is accepted by the Committee in this connexion.

6. FEES FOR EXHIBITION ROOM.

(a) The charges for the rent of ground area or wall space are as follows :—

In closed rooms, 30 marks per square metre.

In open halls, 20 „ „ „

Out of doors, 10 „ „ „

Every square metre commenced will be reckoned full and whatever shape the space required may be the nearest rectangular measure will be taken as the basis of computation. Charges for special situations unless in the open, such particularly as are open on three or four sides, will be increased by from 20 per cent. to 60 per cent. and are subject to special arrangement.

Wall spaces will not be rented for a smaller size than 3 sq. m. Rate of charge, 6 marks per sq. m. Should wall space without ground space be rented so that it becomes necessary to leave a passage or space free, the latter will be charged for.

The minimum charge for an exhibit independent of size is 60 marks.

Cattle and birds will only be allowed in open spaces. The charges therefor are per head :—

Cattle	1·00	Stall money.
Smaller animals	·50
Birds	·25

Fodder, etc., will be provided and charged for at cost price by the Management, if desired.

Arrangements for housing animals at night will be made by the Management.

Veterinary supervision and, if necessary, treatment will be furnished gratis during the exhibition.

(b) Combined exhibits by several exhibitors will be reckoned as one. The names of the combined exhibitors must be stated in the application. They must choose a representative, who will pay the rent and be responsible to the Home Working Committee in all matters. All sharers in a combined exhibit, however, are responsible for the carrying out of the conditions imposed in the Exhibition contract.

(c) Half of the rent is payable on receipt of the permit to exhibit; the remaining half must be paid not more than three months later.

(d) The granting of a permit to exhibit on application pledges the applicant to pay the rent of the space allotted, whether the exhibits arrive late or not at all. If it be shown afterwards that more than the allotted space was occupied the rent is to be increased by so much.

(e) In case of mistakes arising or in case exhibits should be returned (section 7) the Committee is only responsible for the refund of the rent paid for the place in question and not for compensation.

The Committee reserves to itself the right to grant reductions in rent in special cases.

7. ASSIGNMENT OF SPACES, DELIVERY, EXHIBITION AND DECORATION.

(a) Spaces allotted will be placed at an early date at the disposal of the person renting them. All preparatory work in connexion with exhibits must be finished 14 days before the opening of the exhibition, except in the case of live animals, fresh vegetables, etc., for which a later date can be arranged.

In the case of every structure to be erected inclusive of heating apparatus, etc., a sketch must be submitted through the Home Working Committee.

The Committee will endeavour to obtain the usual special reductions on freights by sea and rail for the exhibits, as well as entry free of duty.

Special arrangements are being made with local forwarding agents for carriage of exhibits from railway station or steamer at reduced rates and the names of these agents will be communicated at request by the Home Committee.

(b) Exhibits must be provided with the name of the exhibitor in clear writing as well as the designation Exhibit (Ausstellungsgut). The exhibits or the cases, packing, etc., must have the number assigned in the permit written on them.

(c) The erection of special structures and the delivery and setting in place of the exhibits must be done at the cost and risk of the exhibitor or his responsible agent. Should the exhibits not be delivered or not be in place by a date which will be communicated in good time by the Committee, the latter has the right to declare the place forfeited. The same holds good if the rent is not paid at the proper date. The refund of rent paid in part or in full is impossible and the exhibitor has no claim to compensation.

(d) Exhibits must not be set up in such a way as to affect detrimentally the adjoining stand or to overhang. The same rule applies to advertising placards, decorations, etc., the setting up of which is subject to the approval of the Committee. Should any exhibitor, who does not set up any private structure in the exhibition room, desire to erect a partition or wall he must previously obtain sanction and the Committee has the right to dispose of the back of the said partition for the benefit of the exhibition.

(e) Every exhibitor is responsible for the decoration of his stand which must not interfere with the general view. The use of inflammable material for this purpose is forbidden.

If the exhibition stand be not ready on the due date the Committee has the right to undertake this itself at the cost of the exhibitor or to utilise the space in some other way without giving the exhibitor any claim to compensation or refund of rent paid.

(f) The Committee has the right to remove from the exhibition at the cost of the exhibitor any exhibit which is liable to cause danger or fire, or is ill-smelling, which does not correspond to the description given in the application, or for any other reason is offensive, without giving the exhibitor any claim to compensation.

(g) All packings must be removed from the exhibition not later than eight days before the opening thereof. Otherwise this will be done at the cost of the exhibitor by the Committee who will then dispose of the articles removed without any payment to the owner.

(h) Exhibitors have no right to allow other persons to occupy either wholly or in part the spaces assigned to them without the permission in writing of the Committee. In case of urgent necessity the Committee has the right to change the allotted space.

8. PROVISION OF AND RENT FOR MOTIVE POWER.

Exhibitors must give timely notice if they wish their exhibits to be shown in operation. They will be subject to special regulations. Electricity can be supplied at the established price and further particulars will be supplied by the Committee on application in Dar-es-Salaam or in Berlin. All arrangements for supplying the current will be made by the Committee at the cost of the exhibitor who will make a proportionate advance before the electricity is supplied.

9. ENTRANCE.

All exhibitors or accredited representatives have free entry to the exhibition. Employees of exhibitors in attendance on the exhibits receive non-transferable service tickets, price 1 rupee each.

10. CUSTODY AND CLEANING OF EXHIBITS.

A general supervision of the exhibits will be undertaken by the personnel of the Committee. Fire and light can only be obtained by exhibitors with the sanction of the Management.

The Committee is not responsible for losses or damage of any kind. The general cleaning of the exhibition will be done by the Management, but each exhibitor is responsible for keeping his own space clean and in order. Otherwise this will be done by the Management at his expense. All cleaning must be finished daily before visiting hours.

All exhibits are to remain uncovered during visiting hours and neither they nor the stand numbers may be removed before the exhibition is closed.

11. FIRE INSURANCE.

Articles on exhibition in the closed rooms or in the corrugated-iron sheds can be ensured by the Committee, which will endeavour to obtain low premiums from the companies represented here. Insurance charges must be paid by the exhibitor with the second instalment of the rent.

12. ADVERTISEMENT IN THE EXHIBITION.

Business documents and advertisements may not be distributed on the exhibition grounds outside the exhibitor's stand and must in every case receive the express sanction of the Committee.

13. SALE OF EXHIBITS.

Exhibits may be sold if they are announced as for sale in the application. They must be marked "For sale" and the price shown. 10 per cent. sale commission is to be paid to the Committee on all articles sold and they may only be removed from the stand during the exhibition if they are at once replaced with similar exhibits. Special conditions attach to the sale of commodities in bulk, also to the sale of picture post-cards, etc. Goods must not be offered for sale in such a manner as to cause annoyance in any way or permission to sell may be withdrawn without giving any claim to refund of the commission or compensation of any kind.

14. PHOTOGRAPHS, SKETCHES, ETC.

Exhibitors and all other persons are forbidden, unless written sanction has been obtained from the Committee, to photograph, sketch or draw any particular exhibits in the exhibition grounds.

15. Order of arrangement.

An order of arrangement, binding on all exhibitors, will be published later.

16. Exhibition Catalogues.

An official catalogue will be published. Rates of charges for the insertion of particulars regarding exhibits may be obtained from the Home Committee.

17. Marks of Distinction and Prizes.

These will be accorded by a Committee of experts for exceptional merit on the part of exhibitors or their collaborators. Exhibitors may make suggestions, but may only serve on the Prize Committee if they are not competing. Medals, etc., will be awarded by various Societies and possibly by the State.

18. Removal and Despatch of Exhibits.

Exhibits may not be removed from their proper place in the exhibition until the latter is over without permission in writing from the Committee.

After close of the exhibition the exhibits must be removed from the grounds within four weeks. Structures, foundations and debris must be removed within the same space of time and the place restored to its former condition. The removal of exhibits is only permitted on production of the removal permit which will be granted on payment of all fees. The removal of all debris, etc., connected with the exhibition as well as the restoration of the ground to its former condition must be carried out at the cost and risk of the exhibitors. The same holds good of the removal of all exhibits.

In case of delay the removal or setting aside of exhibits will be carried out by the Management at the cost of the exhibitor and exhibits not removed in time will be forfeited. Should fees in arrear and other expenses not be covered by the sale of such exhibits, the Committee's claim on the exhibitor holds good.

19. Claims.

Claims of whatever description must be brought to the notice of the Management or the Home Working Committee not later than eight weeks after the close of the exhibition and if dismissed may be made the subject of legal proceedings within four weeks from the date of receipt of the decision. Later claims cannot therefore be entertained.

20. Law Court.

For hearing law-suits arising between the Home Working Committee and the exhibitors their representatives, employees and agents, the competent court is the Amtsgericht Berlin-Mitte or the Landgericht I, Berlin.

For hearing law-suits arising between the Management and the exhibitors, their representatives, employees and agents, the Court at Dar-es-Salaam is competent.

21. Conclusion.

The exhibitors pledge themselves, by handing in the proper application duly filled in, to accept the terms above for themselves, their representatives, employees and agents and agree to comply with all other rules made by the Committee or Management in the interests of the exhibition.

Any form of agreement other than the above is only legally valid if properly drawn up in writing.

FOURTH SCHEDULE.

Statement respecting the Valuation of the Liabilities under Life Policies of the National Indian Life Insurance Company, Limited, made by the Actuary.

I.

The date up to which the Valuation is made is 31st December 1911.

II.

The principles upon which the Valuation is made are determined by the Directors in accordance with the Articles of Association of the Company. Sections 139 and 140 of the Articles are as follows :—

139. "The Directors shall cause an actuarial investigation to be made into the financial condition of the Company so far as concerns its life insurance business only as at a date not later than five years after the incorporation of the Company and quinquennially thereafter or at such shorter periods as the Directors shall determine on such basis of valuation and by such methods as they may think fit and after making such provisions as the Actuaries shall think desirable for any special or other Reserve Fund shall determine the amount of profit (if any) which is divisible and such declaration shall be conclusive and binding on the members and policy-holders. After the Company has determined to carry on any business other than that of life insurance, the Directors may, if and whenever they see fit, cause a similar investigation to be made into the financial condition of any particular branch of the Company's business other than life insurance and may determine the amount of profit (if any) to be divided in respect of that particular branch."

140. "The holders of participating policies shall be entitled to receive by way of bonus nine-tenth parts of the divisible profits arising from the life insurance business of the Company as declared at the actuarial examination and such share of the profits shall be distributed among the participating policy-holders at such time on such principles and by such methods either by anticipation (in the case of policies becoming claims between any two divisions of profits) or otherwise as the Directors may from time to time determine. And the Directors may, if they see fit, guarantee on behalf of the Company the payment to the holders of any particular class or classes of policies issued by the Company of a bonus not exceeding one-half per cent. of the amount of such policies, such bonus to be payable on maturity of the policies and to be included in and form part of the working expenses of the Company."

The liabilities were, with the exception of a few minor classes of Assurance, valued on a net premium basis, by taking the difference between the present value of the Sums Assured and the present value of the future net Premiums receivable, such net Premiums being those for one year older than the nearest age at entry, except in the case of Endowment Assurances where one year older than the true age next birthday at entry was used. A further addition of six years was made to all ages to allow for climatic extra. In a few minor classes of Assurance the Reserve is a proportion or accumulation of the premiums paid. Policies on under-average lives, for the whole term of life, were valued at the rated-up age. Other classes including Endowment Assurances were valued at the true ages, half the year's extra premium being added to the Reserve. A Reserve has also been made to provide for the unexpired risk in the first year of Assurance.

III.

The Table of Mortality used in the Valuation was the British Offices Life Tables (1893) Om with six years added to all ages.

IV.

The rate of interest assumed in the calculation was Three and One-half per cent.

V.

Provision for future expenses and profits has been made by reserving the whole of the "Loading," or difference between the Premiums actually payable and the net Premiums calculated as above; and by the assumption of a lower rate of interest than that being earned by the Funds.

The "Loading" reserved represents 23·4 per cent. of the relative Office Annual Premiums in respect of Assurances With Profits and 13·4 per cent. in respect of Assurances Without Profits.

All proposals relating to the construction or alteration of cemeteriess attached to Government churches in cantonments and of other cemeterie in charge of the Military Works Services, whether attached to Government churches or not, should, under the Home Department orders Nos. 58-71, dated the 18th February 1909, be submitted by the ecclesiastical authorities to the General Officer Commanding the Division or Independent Brigade within whose jurisdiction the cantonment is situated, who will forward them to the Director-General of Military Works when the cost of the work is less than Rs. 2,500 and when the work is to be carried out by the Military Works Services, and to the Quartermaster-General in India in other cases. The Director-General will submit proposals forwarded to him direct to the Department of Education after consulting the Quartermaster-General unofficially. In the case of proposals forwarded to him by the General Officer Commanding, the Quartermaster-General, after satisfying himself of the necessity for the work proposed, will, when the work is to be carried out by the Military Works Services, request the Director-General of Military Works to submit the proposals, together with approximate estimates of their cost and the reports of the local military officers, for the consideration of the Department of Education. When, however, the work is to be carried out by the Public Works Department, the Quartermaster-General will request the General Officer Commanding concerned to forward the proposals to the local Government, which, after examination, will transmit them, with any remarks it may desire to offer, to the Government of India in the Department of Education for consideration. Education for consideration. All proposals relating to the construction or alteration of churches in cantonments should, under the Home Department orders Nos. 58-71, dated the 18th February 1909, be submitted by the ecclesiastical authorities to the General Officer Commanding the Division or Independent Brigade within whose jurisdiction the cantonment is situated, who will forward them to the Director-General of Military Works when the cost of the work is less than Rs. 2,500 and when the work is to be carried out by the Military Works Services, and to the Quartermaster-General in India in other cases. The Director-General will, except in cases which fall under rule 23A, submit proposals forwarded to him direct to the Department of Education after consulting the Quartermaster-General unofficially. In the case of proposals forwarded to him by the General Officer Commanding, the Quartermaster-General, after satisfying himself of the necessity for the work proposed, will, when the work is to be carried out by the Military Works Services, request the Director-General of Military Works to instruct his subordinate officers to forward the proposals, together with approximate estimates of their cost and the reports of the local military officers, to the local Government, which should then submit them for the consideration of the Government of India in the Department of Education. When, however, the work is to be carried out by the Public Works Department, the Quartermaster-General will request the General Officer Commanding concerned to forward the proposals to the local Government, which, after examination, will transmit them, with any remarks it may desire to offer, to the Government of India in the Department of Education for consideration. III.—No officer will be permitted to present himself for examination by two standards of the same language simultaneously, and there shall be an interval of at least one year between the Higher Standard and High Proficiency tests and also between the Proficiency and High Proficiency tests, and an interval of at least two years between the High Proficiency and Degree of Honour tests in the same language. A candidate may compete for the higher examinations in any language without first undergoing any inferior test, but if he passes in the higher test, he will not be permitted to go up afterwards and pass the lower test. He may, however, present himself for examination in more than one language on the same day, but in this case he will be required to perform the exercises within the time allotted for one.

An officer who has passed the Degree of Honour in any language may be allowed to appear again in the same test in that language under the conditions prescribed in rule XV.

IV.—No officer will ordinarily be permitted to appear more than twice as a candidate at the same examination; but if a special recommendation be made by the examiners a candidate will be allowed to appear a third time.

V.—No officer will be permitted to earn a reward for passing an examination by the Higher Standard or the Proficiency Standard after the expiration of ten years or the High Proficiency Standard after the expiration of fifteen years, counted from the date of his first arrival in India, provided that in the presidencies of Madras and Bombay, where there are several vernaculars, the Local Governments may, in exceptional cases, extend the time-limit in the case of the Proficiency and High Proficiency examinations in the vernaculars. In the case of an examination for the Degree of Honour standard there shall be no limit of time and an officer will be permitted to earn a reward by passing this examination at any time within the period of his service.

VI.—Officers may be permitted to attend the examinations after the expiry of the periods specified in rule V, but no reward will be granted to them if they pass; and their leave must be limited to such time as may be necessary to enable them to attend the examination, and no extra expense must, under any circumstances, be caused to the State. In such cases it will be within the competence of Local Governments to refuse applications for permission to attend any particular examination, when compliance with such applications would involve inconvenience to the public service.

In the case of military officers in permanent civil or political employ, the limit of time specified in rule V within which an officer can earn a reward for the Higher Standard, the Proficiency and the High Proficiency examinations, respectively, may, for special reasons, be extended by the Local Government, Resident or Agent to the Governor-General under whose orders the officer is serving.

In its application to police officers the period of time specified in rule V will be reckoned in the case of officers appointed after an examination held in this country from the date of appointment in India, the date of first arrival in India holding good for officers selected in England.

In the case of an officer of the Indian Educational Service or a Chaplain the period of time will be counted from the date of his first appointment to the Educational or Ecclesiastical Departments, respectively.

VII. Officers who are natives of India are not eligible for rewards for passing in the vernacular of the district in which they were born or educated. The Local Government shall determine in each case what languages come within this definition.

VIII.—Examinations will be held quarterly on the first Monday in January, April, July and October of each year by the Board of Examiners at Calcutta.

In Madras, the examinations will be held half-yearly in January and July by the Board of Examiners, with the exception that candidates for the examinations in Arabic will be examined at present either at Calcutta or at Bombay.

In Bombay, examinations by the Proficiency, High Proficiency and Degree of Honour standard in all languages will be held quarterly by the Civil and Military Examination Committee, simultaneously with the examination of military officers, on the first Monday in January, April, July and October. Examination by the Higher Standard will be held monthly on the first Monday. The Committee will also hold special meetings whenever directed to do so, either by His Excellency the Governor or the Lieutenant-General Commanding the Forces, Bombay, for the examination of any candidate or candidates who cannot attend during the regular monthly or quarterly sittings.

Examinations in Burmese and Pali will be held yearly in November at Rangoon by the Central Examination Committee.

When the first Monday in a month or a quarter is a gazetted holiday, the examination will be held on the following Monday or, if that is also a gazetted holiday, on the next working day thereafter.

NOTE.—The term gazetted holiday should be held to mean—

(1) Holidays prescribed or notified under section 25 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881;

(2) Holidays on which, by Government Notification in the Gazette, any public office is ordered to be closed for the transaction of public business without reserve or qualification.

In addition to the quarterly examinations held at Calcutta, the Secretary to the Board of Examiners, Calcutta, will conduct examinations, for candidates other than officers serving in the presidencies of Madras and Bombay, twice annually, at Lucknow and Lahore in March and in September or October, as necessity may arise, as follows :—

Lucknow	...	Urdu.—Proficiency and High Proficiency. Persian.—Higher Standard. Hindi.—Proficiency and High Proficiency.
Lahore	...	Urdu.—Proficiency and High Proficiency. Persian.—Higher Standard and High Proficiency. Hindi.—Proficiency and High Proficiency.

The exact dates of the examinations and the places at which they will be held will be notified to intending candidates on application to the Board of Examiners, Calcutta.

Officers desirous of attending examinations for which they are eligible must apply for leave to do so to the Commissioners of Divisions or Heads of the Departments in which they are serving at least three months before the date of examination. In the case of officers serving in Coorg, the application should be made to the Chief Commissioner. Officers attached immediately to the Government of India must apply to the Department of Education through the Department of the Government of India under which they are serving. The application must be accompanied by a certificate from the Accounts Officer under whose audit control the applicant is serving, of his eligibility under rule V to appear at the examination, and should be forwarded in sufficient time to reach the Board of Examiners or the Examination Committee concerned in the case of High Proficiency and Degree of Honour at least six weeks, and in the case of other examinations at least one month before the date of examination.

An officer who has been granted permission to appear for an examination but decides not to avail himself of it should intimate his decision to the Board of Examiners or the Examination Committee concerned at least ten days before the date of the examination.

(2) Save as is provided in Schedule IV, there shall not be any iron or steel in the construction of any package unless the same is covered with suitable material so as effectually to prevent the exposure of such iron or steel.

(3) Every package, when actually used for the packing of one explosive, shall not be used for the packing of any other explosive or any other article or substance :

Provided that this rule shall not prevent the packing of inner packages containing a propellant in an outer package with inner packages containing gunpowder or other propellant :

Provided also that with ammunition (Division 1) there may be packed in the same package any article which is not of an inflammable or explosive nature, or liable to cause fire or explosion.

(4) Nothing in this rule shall be deemed to prohibit the use of an additional package, whether inner or outer : provided that such additional package shall not be of such character as shall have been prohibited in writing by the Chief Inspector of Explosives.

SCHEDULE I.

PRESCRIBED TESTS.

[Vide Rule 16.]

I.—Heat Test as applied to Explosives of the Nitro-compound Class.

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS.

Apparatus required.

1. A water bath, consisting of a spherical glass or copper vessel [(a) Fig. 1] of about 8 inches diameter, and with an aperture of about 5 inches; the bath is filled with water to within a quarter of an inch of the edge. It has a loose cover of sheet copper about 6 inches in diameter (b), and rests on a tripod stand about 14 inches high (c), which is covered with coarse iron wire gauze (e , and is surrounded with a screen of thin sheet tin or copper (d). Within the latter is placed an Argand burner (f), with glass chimney. The cover (b) has four holes arranged as seen in Fig. II, No. 4 to receive the regulator, No. 3 the thermometer, Nos. 1 and 2 the test-tubes containing the gun-cotton or other materials to be tested. Around holes 1 and 2 on the under side of the cover are soldered three pieces of brass wire with points slightly converging (Fig. III); these act as springs and allow the test-tubes to be easily placed in position and removed.

FIG. I.

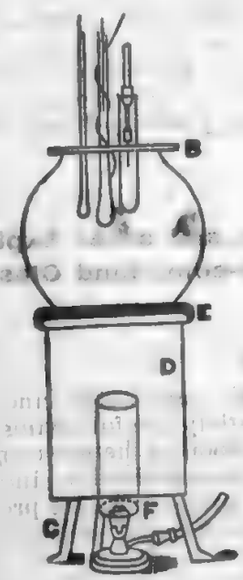

FIG. II.

FIG. III.

FIG. IV

*2. Scheibler's or Page's temperature regulator.

*3. Two cells of Le Clanché's battery No. 1 } if Scheibler's regulator
*4. A few yards of insulated copper wire } is used.

5. Test-tubes from 5¼ to 5½ inches long, and of such diameter that they will hold from 20 to 22 cubic centimeres of water when filled to a height of 5 inches.

6. India-rubber stoppers, fitting the test-tubes and carrying an arrangement for holding the test-paper, viz., a narrow glass tube passing through the centre of the stopper, drawn out so as to form a hook, or terminating in a platinum wire hook (Fig. IV).

7. A thermometer, with range not less than from 30° to 212° Fahrenheit.

8. A minute clock.

Materials required.

(a) Test-paper.—The test-paper is prepared as follows:—45 grains of white maize starch (cornflour), previously washed with cold water, are added to 8½ ounces of distilled water; the mixture is stirred, heated to boiling, and kept gently boiling for 10 minutes; 15 grains of pure potassium iodide (i.e., which has been re-crystallized from alcohol) are dissolved in 8½ ounces of distilled water. The two solutions are thoroughly mixed and allowed to get cold. Strips, or sheets, of best white English filter paper, weighing air dry, from 4·1 to 4·6 grammes per 100 square inches, previously washed with water and re-dried, are dipped into the solution thus prepared, and allowed to remain in it for not less than 10 seconds; they are then allowed to drain and dry in a place free from laboratory fumes and dust. The upper and lower margins of the strips, or sheets are cut off, and the paper is preserved in well-stoppered or corked bottles and in the dark.† The dimensions of the pieces of test-paper used are about $\frac{4}{10}$ inch by $\frac{8}{10}$ inch (10 mm. by 20 mm.)

(b) Standard tint-paper.—A solution of caramel in water is made of such concentration that when diluted one-hundred times (10 cc. made up to 1 litre) the tint of this diluted solution equals the tint produced by the Nessler test in 100 cc. water containing 0·000075 grm. of ammonia or 0·00023505 grm. of chloride of ammonium. With this caramel solution lines are drawn on strips of white filter paper‡ by means of a clean quill pen. When the marks thus produced are dry the paper is cut into pieces of the same size as the test-paper previously described, in such a way that each piece has a brown line across it near the middle of its length, and only such strips are preserved in which the brown line has a breadth varying from $\frac{1}{4}$ mm. to 1 mm. ($\frac{1}{30}$ of an inch to $\frac{1}{25}$ of an inch).

II.—Testing Dynamite, Blasting Gelatine, and other Explosives of the First Division of the Nitro-compound Class.

A.—DYNAMITE, ETC., ETC.

Nitro-glycerine preparations, from which the nitro-glycerine can be extracted in the manner described below, must satisfy the following test.

This test, however, though at present looked upon as the most important, as far as testing the purity of the nitro-glycerine is concerned, is in England only one of several which any given sample of nitro-glycerine preparation has to satisfy in order to establish its compliance with the definition in the Authorised List.

* This is not absolutely required, as the temperature of the bath can be kept constant by proper attention to the heating flame.

† When a paper is freshly prepared, and as long as it remains in good condition, a drop of dilute acetic acid, put on the paper with a glass rod, produces no coloration. In process of time, however, the stronger the light to which the paper is exposed, the sooner a drop of acid produces a brown or bluish coloration (a single hour of direct sunlight produces a marked effect), and whenever this is the case the paper should be rejected. After preparation the paper should be kept in the dark for a month before being taken into use. After that, if carefully kept in the dark, it will remain good for 6 months or more, but should be tested from time to time as above.

‡ This paper must be carefully washed with distilled water in the first instance, to remove any traces of bleaching matter, and dried.

Apparatus required.

A funnel 2 inches across (d), a cylindrical measure divided into grains (e) (see sketch).

Mode of operation.

About 300 to 400 grains of dynamite (b) finely divided are placed in the funnel which has previously been loosely plugged by some freshly-ignited asbestos (a).

The surface is smoothed by means of a flat-headed glass rod or stopper, and some clean washed and dried Kieselguhr (c) is spread over it to the depth of about ⅛ inch.

Water is next carefully dropped from a wash bottle upon this Kieselguhr, and when the first portion has been soaked up more is added; this is repeated until sufficient nitro-glycerine has been collected in the graduated measure (e) below.

If any water should have passed through with the nitro-glycerine, it should be removed with a piece of blotting paper, and the nitro-glycerine, if necessary, filtered through a dry paper filter.

Application of the Test.

The thermometer is fixed so as to be inserted through the lid of the water bath described under I, into the water (which is to be steadily maintained at a temperature of 160° Fahr.*) to a depth of 2¾ inches. Fifty grains of nitro-glycerine to be tested are weighed into a test-tube in such a way as not to soil the sides of the tube. A test-paper is fixed on the hook of the glass rod so that when inserted into the tube it will be in a vertical position. A sufficient amount of a mixture of half distilled water and half glycerine to moisten the upper half of the paper is now applied to the upper edge of the test-paper by means of a camel's-hair pencil, the cork carrying the rod and paper is fixed into the test-tube and the position of the paper adjusted, so that its lower edge is about half-way down the tube; the latter is then inserted through one of the perforations of the cover to such a depth that the lower margin of the moistened part of the paper is about five-eighths of an inch above the surface of the cover. The test is complete when the faint brown line, which after a time makes its appearance at the line of boundary between the dry and moist part of the paper, equals in tint the brown line of the standard tint-paper.

The nitro-glycerine under examination will not be considered to have satisfied the test unless the time necessary to produce the standard tint as above described is at least 15 minutes.

* For explosives supplied for His Majesty's Military and Naval Services the temperature is fixed by the War Office at 180°.

B.—BLASTING GELATINE, GELATINE DYNAMITE, AND ANALOGOUS PREPARATIONS.

Fifty (50) grains of blasting gelatine are to be intimately incorporated with one hundred (100) grains of French chalk.* The mixture is to be gradually introduced into a test-tube of the dimensions prescribed above for the dynamite heat test, with the aid of gentle tapping upon the table, between the introduction of successive portions of the mixture into the tube, so that when the tube contains all the mixture it shall be filled to the extent of 1¾ inches (one inch and three-quarters) of its height. The test-paper is then to be inserted and the heat is to be applied in the manner prescribed above for the dynamite heat test, and the sample tested is to withstand exposure to 160° Fahr. for a period of ten (10) minutes, before producing a discoloration of the test-papers corresponding in tint to the standard colour test which is employed for governing the results of the dynamite heat tests.

(For Exudation and Liquefaction tests for Blasting Gelatine, etc., etc., see Appendix.)

N.B.—Non-gelatinized nitro-glycerine preparations from which the nitro-glycerine cannot be expelled by water, are tested without any previous separation of the ingredients, the temperature being as above (160° Fahr.) and the time being seven (7) minutes.

C.—CORDITE AND BALLISTITE.

1. Apparatus required.

The apparatus necessary for the application of the heat test to cordite is identical with that described above for explosives of the nitro-compound class generally† with the addition of a mill and a nest of sieves‡ similar to those used at Waltham Abbey for preparing the cordite for testing (see instructions below).

2. Preparation of the sample to be tested.

Pieces half-an-inch long are cut from one end of every stick selected for the test; in the case of the thicker cordites, each piece so cut is further sub-divided into about four portions. These cut pieces are then passed once through the mill, the first portion of material which passes through being rejected on account of the possible presence of foreign matter from the mill. The ground material is put on the top sieve of the nest of sieves and sifted. The portion which has passed through the top sieve and been stopped by the second is taken for the test. If the mill is properly set the greater portion of the ground material will be of the proper size.

If the volatile matter in the explosive exceed 0·5 per cent. the sifted material should be dried at a temperature not exceeding 140° Fahr. until the proportion does not exceed 0·5 per cent.

After each sample has been ground, the mill must be taken to pieces and carefully cleaned.

* This can be readily effected by carefully working the two materials together with a wooden pestle in a wooden mortar.

The French chalk should be of good commercial quality, and, after being carefully washed with distilled water and dried in a water oven it should be exposed under a bell jar to moist air until it has taken up about 0·5 per cent. of moisture. It should then be bottled for use; and with ordinary care the limits of 0·5 per cent. can be maintained in keeping.

† In the Waltham Abbey apparatus the cover (Fig. II) has all the holes around the circumference instead of having one in the centre and three around the circumference.

‡ A nest of two sieves with the holes drilled in sheet copper. The holes in the top sieve have a diameter = 14 B. W. G., those in the second = 21 B. W. G.

If too hard for the mill, it may be softened by exposure to the vapour of acetone, or reduced to the necessary degree of subdivision by means of a sharp moderately coarse rasp. Should it have become too soft in the acetone vapour for the mill, it should be cut up into small pieces which may be brought to any desired degree of hardness by simple exposure to air.

Explosives which consist partly of gelatinized collodion cotton and partly of ungelatinized gun-cotton are best reduced to powder by a rasp, or softened by exposure to mixed ether and alcohol vapour at a temperature of 90° to 100° Fahr.

3. Application of the Test.

The thermometer is fixed so as to be inserted through the lid of the water bath described under paragraph 1, so as to be immersed in the water to a depth of 2½ inches. The water is maintained at a constant temperature of 180° Fahr. When this temperature is reached, 25 grains of the sifted cordite are put into one of the test-tubes, and collected at the bottom by gentle tapping. A test-paper is fixed on to the hook of the glass rod, so that when inserted into the tube it will be in a vertical position. A mixture of equal parts of distilled water and pure glycerine (Price's) is now applied to the upper edge of the test-paper by means of a camel's-hair pencil, in sufficient amount to moisten the upper half; the stopper carrying the rod and paper is fixed into the test-tube and the position of the paper adjusted so that its lower edge is about half-way down the tube: the latter is then inserted through one of the perforations of the cover to the same depth as the thermometer. The lower margin of the moistened part of the paper should then be about five-eighths of an inch above the surface of the cover. The test is completed when the faint brown line, which after a time makes its appearance at the margin between the wet and dry portions of the test-paper, equals in depth of tint the brown line drawn on the standard tint-paper.

4. The time which elapses between the insertion of the test-tube and the completion of the test must not be less than 15 minutes.

N.B.—In the case of ballistite the treatment is the same, except that when it is in a very finely granulated condition it need not be cut up.

III.—Testing Gun-cotton, Schultz's Gunpowder, E. C. Powder, and other explosives of the 2nd Division of the Nitro-compound Class.

A.—Compressed Nitro-Cellulose, Tonite, etc., etc.

Sufficient material to serve for two or more tests is removed from the centre of the cartridge by gentle scraping, and, if necessary, further reduced by rubbing through a sieve with a clean hard brush.

The fine powder thus p oduced is spread out in a thin layer upon a paper-tray 6 inches by 4½ inches which is then placed inside a water oven, kept, as nearly as possible, at 120° Fahr.

The wire-gauze shelves in the oven should be about 3 inches apart. The sample is allowed to remain at rest for 15 minutes in the oven, the door of which is left wide open.

After the lapse of 15 minutes the tray is removed and exposed to the air of the room for two hours, the sample being at some point within that time rubbed upon the tray with a brush, in order to reduce it to a fine and uniform state of division.

Application of the Test.

The cover of the water-bath is fitted with the gas regulator which is inserted through the centre hole (No. 4). The thermometer is fixed into hole No. 3. The water in the bath is then heated to 170° Fahr., and the regulator set to maintain that temperature. Twenty grains of the sample to be tested are weighed out, placed in the test-tube, and gently pressed down until the specimen occupies a space of not more than $1\frac{5}{16}$ inches in a test-tube of the dimensions specified. A test-paper is affixed to the hook of the glass rod or tube, and moistened by touching the upper edge with a drop of distilled water containing 50 per cent. of Price's glycerine. The quantity of liquid used must be only sufficient to moisten about half the paper. Th corkcarrying the rod and test-paper is then fixed into the test-tube, and th latter inserted into the bath to a depth of 2½ inches, measured fromthe cover, the regulator and thermometer being inserted to the same depth.

The test-paper is to be kept near the top of the test-tube, but clear of the cork, until the tube has been immersed for about five minutes. A ring of moisture will about this time be deposited upon the sides of the test-tube a little above the cover of the bath; the glass rod must then be lowered until the lower margin of the moistened part of the paper is on a level with the bottom of the ring of moisture in the tube; the paper is now closely watched. The test is complete when the faint brown line, which makes its appearance at the line of boundary between the dry and moist parts of the paper, equals in tint the brown line of the standard tint-paper.

The interval of time between the first insertion of the tube containing the sample of gun-cotton in the water at 170° and the production of the standard tint constitutes the test, and this interval of time must be not less than 10 minutes, or the sample will not be considered to have satisfied the test.

B.—GELATINIZED AND SEMI-GELATINIZED NITRO-CELLULOSE PREPARATIONS.*

Twenty-five grains introduced into the test-tube* of the dimensions prescribed for the dynamite heat test, then proceed as for blasting gelatine, etc., taking the temperature at 180° Fahr., and the time as 15 minutes.

C.—NITRO-CELLULOSE NOT INCLUDED IN A. OR B., SCHULTZ'S POWDER, E. C. POWDER, ETC., ETC.

Sufficient of the sample, without further mechanical division, is dried in the oven as above, and then exposed for two hours to the air. The test as directed above for compressed nitro-cellulose, etc., is then applied, the minimum duration of test being the same, viz., 10 minutes.

D.—PICRIC ACID.

(1) The material shall contain not more than 0·3 part of mineral or non-combustible matter in 100 parts by weight of the material dried at 160° Fahr.

(2) It should not contain more than a minute trace of lead.

(3) One hundred parts of the dry material shall not contain more than 0·3 part of total (free and combined) sulphuric acid, of which not more than 0·1 part shall be free sulphuric acid.

(4) Its melting point should be between 248° and 253° Fahr.

E.—AMMONITE, BELLITE, ROBURITE, AND EXPLOSIVES OF SIMILAR COMPOSITION.

These are required to stand the same heat test as compressed nitro-cellulose.

IV.—Testing Chlorate-Mixtures.

The material must not be too sensitive† and must show no tendency to increase in sensitiveness on keeping.

The material must contain nothing liable to reduce the chlorate.

Chlorides calculated as potassium chloride must not exceed 0·25 per cent.

The material must contain no free acid, or substance liable to produce free acid.

Explosives of this class containing nitro-compounds will be subject to the heat test as if they belonged to Class III.

V.—Testing Ammunition (Divisions 2 and 3).

Any explosive made up into ammunition (other than Division 1), for which a test is provided in the schedule, is to be tested as if not so made up.

* If in a compressed form it should be broken up in the same manner as cordite and ballistite.

† They will be considered too sensitive if they can be exploded however partially by means of a glancing blow with a broomstick on soft wood (such as deal).

APPENDIX.

Exudation and Liquefaction Test for Blasting Gelatine, Gelatine Dynamite and analogous Preparations.

TEST FOR LIQUEFACTION.

A cylinder of blasting gelatine is to be cut from the cartridge to be tested, the length of the cylinder to be about equal to its diameter and the ends being cut flat.

The cylinder is to be placed on end on a flat surface without any wrapper, and secured by a pin passing vertically through its centre.

In this condition the cylinder is to be exposed for one hundred and forty-four (144) consecutive hours (six days and nights) to a temperature ranging from 85° to 90° Fahr. (inclusive), and during such exposure the cylinder shall not diminish in height by more than one-fourth of its original height, and the upper cut surface shall retain its flatness and the sharpness of its edge.

Note.—If the blasting gelatine and the gelatine dynamite to be tested be not made up in a cylindrical form, the above test is to be applied with the necessary modifications.

TEST FOR LIABILITY TO EXUDATION.

There shall be no separation from the general mass of the blasting gelatine or gelatine dynamite of a substance of less consistency than the bulk of the remaining portion of the materials under any conditions of storage, transport, or use, or when the material is subjected three times in succession to alternate freezing and thawing, or when subjected to the liquefaction test hereinbefore described.

TABLE SHOWING DISTANCES WHICH SHOULD ORDINARILY BE KEPT CLEAR ROUND MAGAZINES.

[See rule 44.]

In any case where any of the items enumerated in the first column of this Table is, in the opinion of an Inspector of Explosives, effectively screened from a magazine either by the natural features of the ground or by good and substantial artificial mounds of earth or mine refuse, of such height that a line drawn from any part of the magazine to any part of the item in question will pass through the intervening ground or mound, the distance from that item (except for quantities of one thousand pounds of explosives and under) will be reduced one-half: Provided that when a natural hill so intervenes as to afford a degree of protection which, in the opinion of an Inspector of Explosives, justifies a further reduction, the distance shown in the Table will be reduced to one-quarter. In no case, however, is the distance from a Viceregal Residence to be less than one mile.

N.B.—The figures in small italics are the distances to be observed when ordinary gunpowder only is to be stored or other explosives up to the equivalent of five thousand pounds of gunpowder, every half pound of such other explosive being reckoned as one pound of gunpowder.

NOTES.—(a) This table furnishes the basis on which applications for licenses will be considered, but is susceptible to modifications under special circumstances on the advice of the Chief Inspector of Explosives with the Government of India.

(b) This rule applies to two or more magazines kept on the same premises—

(1) belonging to the same occupier, or

(2) so kept by mutual consent of the respective occupiers.

(c) Detonators may be kept in an annexe near to or adjoining a magazine under the following conditions :—

(1) The amount of explosive contained in the detonators must not exceed 100 lbs. reckoned in the proportion of not less than 2½ lbs. of explosives per 1,000 detonators. (This proportion represents roughly about 44,000 detonators of "sextuple" strength ; with detonators of greater strength the number would be of course less.)

(2) The detonator annexe must be so constructed that not less than two feet of masonry and three feet of air space shall intervene between any detonators in such annexe and the interior of the main magazine.

Secy. to the Govt. of India.

No. 4016—4050-91, dated Simla, the 22nd May 1914.

RESOLUTION—By the Govt. of India, Dept. of Commerce and Industry.

IN the Resolution of the Government of India in this department, No 4519—4554-47, dated the 29th May 1907, it was decided that in view of the satisfactory financial position of the Post Office Insurance Fund, the sums eventually payable in respect of existing policies in the Life Branch of the Fund should be increased by 10 per cent., and that the premia payable in respect of sums assured under policies issued on and after the 1st April 1907, should be correspondingly reduced. A recent investigation made into the past experience and present position of the Fund has shown that there is still a substantial surplus on the total operations connected with it, and that it is possible to make a distribution of a considerable portion of the surplus without affecting the financial stability of the Fund. His Majesty's Secretary of State has accordingly sanctioned the grant to holders of policies, on the valuation date 31st March 1912, of a bonus at the rate of 2 per cent. in the case of Whole Life Assurances, and 1 per cent. in the case of Endowment Assurances, in respect of each year's premium paid since 31st March 1907 up to that date.

Revised tables have been drawn up showing the new premia rates applicable to future entrants and are annexed hereto.

ORDERED—that this Resolution be commnnicated to the several Departments of the Government of India, to all Local Governments and Administrations, to all Heads of Departments subordinate to this Department, and to the Accountant-General, Post Office and Telegraphs.

Ordered, also, that a copy be forwarded to the Director-General of Posts and Telegraphs, for necessary action.
